DIPLOMATIC HORIZONS EXPAND

Nixon to Visit Peking

THE MAN who engineered the visit, Dr. Henry Kissinger, far right, joins President Nixon in receiving an enthusiastic crowd after leaving a Los Angeles restaurant where they dined following Nixon's announcement that he will visit mainland China in the near future. (AP Wirephoto)

Surprise Speech Stuns U.S.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (CP) — President Nixon announced Thursday night he will visit Peking within 10 months at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai of the People's Republic of China. The president said he will seek a "normalization" of relations between the United States and China.

The White House added today that the visit will take place well before the 10 months pass.

The visit was arranged last weekend by Chou and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's adviser on national security affairs who made a secret stop in Peking during a 10-day trip around the world.

The president's unexpected announcement was made on television and radio.

Speaking for five minutes from the National Broadcasting Co. studios in Burbank, Calif. Nixon said the purpose of his mission "is to seek a normalization of relations between the two countries and also to exchange views on questions of concern to the two sides."

EFFECT CAMPAIGN

The Nixon journey is expected to have an impact on the 1972 presidential campaign in the United States and may have an influence on the search for a negotiated peace in Vietnam.

Now it is more widely assumed than ever that the Nixon administration will not challenge the bid this fall for admission of mainland China to the United Nations.

In fact, Nixon's reference to "normalization of relations" seemed to suggest that his visit to Peking will be climaxed by establishment of full diplomatic relations between the United States and the Communist government which took over mainland China 22 years ago.

Nixon said: "I will undertake what I deeply hope will become a journey for peace — peace not just for our generation, but for future generations on this earth we share together."

The president quoted from a joint announcement, made simultaneously in Peking.

ACCEPTS INVITATION

"Knowing of President Nixon's expressed desire to visit the People's Republic of China, Premier Chou En-lai, on behalf of the government of the People's Republic of China, has extended an invitation to President Nixon to

Formosa Lodges Protest

TOKYO (CP) — Nationalist China lodged a strong protest today against President Nixon's plan to visit Communist China and a South Korean spokesman termed the trip shocking news. But other Asian allies of the United States approved.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu was not immediately available for comment, but an aide said: "This is something he considers as an encouraging development."

The report reached the Far East in mid-morning and took government officials and the public by surprise. Newspapers rushed out extra editions and anxious callers jammed newspaper switchboards for details.

James C. Shen, Nationalist China's ambassador to the United States, said in Washington he was not informed of Nixon's plans until about half an hour before the president's broadcast.

His report apparently did not reach Taipei before the news reports and at the news top officials of President Chiang Kaishek's regime went into a hurried conference. Afterward, a spokesman said, the government had "lodged a strong protest to the government of the United States."

SURPRISES OFFICIALS

Nixon's announcement surprised officials and private citizens in South Korea. A spokesman for the foreign ministry said "it was shocking news."

Seoul citizens, many with bewildered looks, intently read the news on bulletin boards in front of newspaper buildings before the evening papers hit the streets.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government termed Nixon's announcement a "very good thing." Acting Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura said: "We welcome the visit as an improvement of relations between the United States and China." He said his government was informed in advance of Nixon's plans.

Prime Minister Sir Keith Holyoake of New Zealand called Nixon's announcement heartening and said: "I hope this development will give more depth to recent tendencies on the part of China toward more relaxed relations with other countries."

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand, whose country has troops in Vietnam, said Nixon's trip may help bring peace to Southeast Asia.

"It is big news and important news," he said while attending the Asian foreign ministers conference in Manila.

HAIL NEWS

Prime Minister Trudeau today described President Nixon's decision to visit Peking as "a very significant move."

He told reporters he was "very pleased" that a dialogue has been established between the United States and China.

Mr. Trudeau said there is a growing international awareness that mainland China cannot be frozen out of world affairs.

The prime minister said timing for his own tentatively scheduled visit to Peking has

Air Canada Union Strikes Saturday

By DAVID BARKER

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada will be hit by the first of a series of rotating strikes of its maintenance and ground personnel at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Mike Pitchford, chief negotiator for the International Association of Machinists which represents the 6,200 Air Canada employees involved, announced the decision at a news conference today.

He said the union would decide tonight what city or region would be affected by the first 24-hour walkout.

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline will try to maintain "normal operations as long as possible, but it cannot make any preparations until it finds out where the first strike will take place.

The spokesman said Mr. Pitchford had promised "to give us ample advance notice" of strike action so that the travelling public would not be inconvenienced.

"We'll try to keep operating unless it becomes too much for us to handle."

The starting time of the first 24-hour strike would be 8 a.m. local time in the region affected.

Mr. Pitchford said the union is not prepared to discuss its contract dispute with Air Canada unless the airline agrees to resume talks "without any prior restrictions."

POSITION UNCHANGED

In a telegram sent to airline President John Baldwin, the union said bargaining is impossible if Air Canada refuses beforehand to discuss any proposals that would cost more than a contract offer it made a week ago.

"It is still apparent that Air Canada's position toward the resumption of bargaining remains essentially unchanged from that taken by your committee last Friday, July 9," the telegram said.

"It is not possible to bargain effectively under these circumstances."

The union therefore was not prepared to resume talks unless Air Canada "is free to enter into negotiations without any restrictions on any matter remaining in dispute."

The union says the main issues at stake are job security, length of contract, overtime pay and scheduling of shifts.

ASK MACKASEY AID

In another telegram to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, the union asked for his intervention "contingent on your ability to persuade Air Canada to resume collective bargaining without any prior restrictions."

"It is our feeling that unless Air Canada agrees to lift their restrictions on their negotiations concerning matters to be discussed we do not believe any useful purpose would be served by your department."

The union has promised to give advance notice of strike action for the convenience of the travelling public.

Air Canada's operations have not been disturbed since the end of a 24-hour study session Tuesday by 5,200 employees in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Airline president John Baldwin talked with Mr. Pitchford on the telephone Wednesday night and Thursday in an attempt to find some common ground in the dispute.

Face-to-face negotiations broke down last Friday.

Tobacco Ad Restriction Challenged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight firms concerned with tobacco advertising have started a court challenge of British Columbia's pending ban on tobacco and alcohol.

A writ filed in B.C. Supreme Court Thursday by four major tobacco companies, three publishing firms and the advertising wing of the Canadian Football League claims the provincial government went beyond its powers when it passed legislation last spring that would ban such ads effective Sept. 1.

The writ names Attorney-General Leslie Peterson as defendant.

It is filed on behalf of Benson and Hedges (Canada) Ltd., Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd., Macdonald Tobacco Marketing Ltd., Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd., Maclean-Hunter Ltd., Southstar Publishers Ltd., Time Canada Ltd., and CFL Properties Ltd.

CFL Properties handles advertising contracts for the football league, such as those connected with ads in game programs in the nine CFL cities, including Vancouver.

The plaintiffs seek a Supreme Court declaration that

Armed Gang of Irishmen Snatch Man From Hospital

BELFAST (Reuter) — An armed gang of Irish Republican militants burst into a heavily-guarded hospital here today and snatched a wounded patient as nurses watched helplessly.

One of the gunmen broke the hospital's security by donning a white doctor's gown, walking calmly into the ward and then producing a sub-machine-gun from under his coat.

The gang of five men were believed to be members of the militant provisional branch of the outlawed Irish Republican Army and the wounded man a comrade captured in a bomb incident in a Roman Catholic part of Belfast this week.

A car drew up outside the Royal Victoria Hospital in the heart of the Catholic part of Belfast.

The five gunmen scrambled out, entered the building and tied and gagged two security guards. Apparently acting on inside information, they made their way to the ward where their comrade was under police guard.

The bogus doctor then held up the police guards with his submachine-gun and called his four colleagues, also armed, who trooped in.

One of the policemen was reported to have been slightly injured when he resisted. The patient was carried out by the men.

The wounded man had been shot in the thigh during his capture and was reported to have lost a leg. He and his rescuers clambered into the waiting car and drove off.

Security forces immediately threw a net around the city and roadblocks were set up on all highways leading to the Republic of Ireland where the gang was expected to try to smuggle the patient.

Thursday, Prime Minister Brian Faulkner told the people of Londonderry, where some of the most violent and bloody clashes have taken place involving Catholics, Protestants and British troops, that they could have social and economic benefits, or they could have riot and the fruits of riot—"destruction, injury and death."

"They cannot have both," he said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Train Derailed

QUESNEL (CP) — Eight cars of a Pacific Great Eastern railway train left the track today about three miles south of here. There were no injuries. Rail crews expected to have the track back in service later today or Saturday. Cause of the derailment was not known.

U.S. Economy Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' economy advanced steadily but unspectacularly in the April-June period, but inflation slackened to the lowest rate in three years, the government said today.

Boycott Announced

BELFAST (Reuter) — Northern Ireland's main opposition party announced today it will boycott the Ulster Parliament following the British government's refusal to hold an independent inquiry into the shooting of two civilians by British troops last week.

Vote Defies Nixon On Pakistan Aid

WASHINGTON (WP) — The House foreign affairs committee voted Thursday to cut off military and economic aid to Greece unless it restores constitutional rule, and to suspend major aid to Pakistan until the "reign of terror" in East Pakistan is remedied.

This major, double challenge of Nixon administration policy by the once-passive House committee caught U.S. officials by surprise. State department sources said they hope to overturn the actions in the full House or in the Senate.

The following votes were reported taken in a closed meeting of the House committee which is still in the process of marking up the current $3.3 billion foreign aid authorization bill.

● On a 17 to 12 vote, to stop all military assistance and sales to Greece until the present military junta permits a return to constitutional rule, unless President Nixon specifies in writing that continued U.S. aid is required by "overriding requirements of the national security of the United States."

Even if the president makes that finding, U.S. military aid to Greece still would be limited to the $80 million ceiling for the fiscal year that ended June 30. Instead, $117 million is being requested for Greece in the current 12-months that started July 1.

● On a 17 to 6 vote, to suspend all military and economic aid to Pakistan, until the president reports to congress that Pakistan is "cooperating fully in allowing the situation in East Pakistan to return to reasonable stability" and millions of refugees who have fled to India have been allowed to return to East Pakistan to reclaim lands and property to the extent feasible.

KOREAN REQUEST

The aid suspension for Pakistan would permit use of $100 million voted earlier by the committee for refugee relief. But the withholding vote on other aid would suspend $118.3 million requested by the administration for development and technical aid to Pakistan.

Among other actions taken by the committee, an attempt to increase by $50 million the $239.4 million sought by the administration for military aid to South Korea was defeated 16 to 12.

The votes to withhold Greek-Pakistan aid funds were described by congressional sources as "a questioning of the administration's judgment," arising in large part from the "re-thinking" under way in Congress stimulated by U.S. policy in the Indochina war.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D — Ohio) led the fight to ban arms aid to Greece, which he lost in the committee on Wednesday on a 14 to 12 vote. At that time, a more moderate proposal by Rep. Paul Findley (R — Ill.) to limit military grants to Greece also was defeated.

Arabs Report Rocket Attacks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — Palestinian Arab commandos said the Jordanian air force was using rockets and napalm against them in fierce fighting in the north Jordan town of Ajloun that still raged early today.

In Damascus, guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat said fighting between the army and the commandos had continued into its fourth straight day.

Jordanian authorities, meanwhile, said in Amman that the army had forced the commandos out of their last stronghold in Jordan and moved them to an unpopulated area overlooking the ceasefire line with Israel.

NBC LEVELS PUBLIC CHARGE:

Drug Proceeds Buy Votes

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky had no immediate comment today on a report that the illegal drug traffic is helping to finance their presidential campaigns.

Phil Brady, a National Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Saigon, said his report was based on information from Vietnamese sources. It was broadcast Thursday on NBC news.

Brady said the sources told him that many illegal drugs are brought in by the South Vietnamese Air Force with the "blessing" of Ky, a former air force commander.

And, they added, Ky needs the money more than ever before for his presidential campaign chest."

Ky, who has announced he will oppose Thieu in the Oct. 3 election, has denied previous allegations that he smuggled narcotics and gold.

Brady said Thieu is obsessed with being re-elected and because he needs money for the campaign he is "not asking where it comes from."

Brady quoted his sources as saying "another outfit pushing drugs is the Vietnamese national police," commanded by Maj.-Gen. Tran Thanh Phong.

"The biggest pusher is said to be Lt.-Gen. Dang Van Quang," Brady reported, adding that Quang was relieved of his command for corruption several years ago but "today Quang is Thieu's closest adviser", and has "filled Thieu's campaign chest."

Representative Robert H. Steele (Rep. Conn.), told a House of Representatives subcommittee in Washington last week that Maj.-Gen. Ngo Dzu, a military commander, was a major trafficker in narcotics.

But Brady said that "according to extremely reliable sources," Dzu "is being framed by others higher up who are involved in drugs." Brady said Vietnamese and American officials have the evidence.

Pledge to Taiwan Removed From Pact

MANILA (AP) — Nine traditionally anti-Communist Asian governments ended a three-day conference today with an agreement to give close study to events in Communist China.

A joint communique omitted a paragraph from the first draft that would have pledged continuing support for the Nationalist Chinese regime's claim to be the only legitimate government of the Chinese people.

Most of the delegates to the sixth ministerial conference of the Asia and Pacific Council also welcomed United States President Nixon's announcement that he is going to Peking.

Members of council are Australia, Nationalist China, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, Philippines, Thailand and South Vietnam.

The other ministers overrode protests of the Nationalist Chinese foreign minister, Chow Shu-kai, who warned that the Nixon trip could be a Peking trick and "a result of the psychological warfare of Communist China." Chow's government later filed an official protest with Washington.

Chow had tried earlier to convince the conference that dealing with the mainland regime is futile.

Rock Festival Set for Uvic On July 31

A rock festival with the apparent blessing of the city centennial committee has been set for the University of Victoria campus July 31.

Four Uvic students, including Martlet editor Mark Hume, say the 12-hour rockfest will feature a number of local bands and folk artists, as well as a 27-piece Chamber group and Vancouver singer Tom Northcott.

Performances will be in the gymnasium, with loudspeaker systems accommodating any fans who can't get into the 1,700-capacity building.

Proceeds will go to youth self-help groups, including Cool Aid, Native Friendship and NEED, food co-op and recycling activists.

NEEDS MONEY

Organizers said today the festival would need financial support and the centennial committee's Jim Allan said the city likely would provide it.

"We've been looking for some way to involve the young people in substantial numbers in the centennial show," Allan said. "There are plenty of activities for the younger people — Cubs, Scouts and so on — and plenty for the older generation, but nothing for the late teens and early 20s group."

The committee earlier had offered to support a festival planned for Centennial Stadium or MacDonald Park. That one was cancelled by organizer Denis Scherk when he turned down the use of local amplifying equipment and insisted on the city paying for a sound system from Vancouver.

"Scherk was adamant on that equipment and the price was simply too high," Allan said.

City aldermen also have given tentative support to the idea of a rock festival to liven up what Ald. Clyde Savage termed the "sometimes dull" city of Victoria.

Municipal Heads To Meet Here

The Capital Regional District will be host to a board of directors meeting in November of the Canadian Federation of Municipalities.

District board chairman, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, said the meeting could be a prelude to a full-scale convention of the organization in Greater Victoria in 1975.

At the executive meeting this fall, he said "we hope to make" a formal presentation inviting support for this area as the site for the 1975 convention.

Fire Damages Car, House

A faulty car gas line caused a fire Thursday that did about $3,000 damage at 838 Shamrock.

A Saanich fire department spokesman said the car was parked in the basement near some electrical equipment that is thought to have ignited gas fumes from the leaky gas line. The car and home were damaged.

Mrs. Jean Harris is the resident of the home, but the car is owned by Aleta Harris, 427 Linden, the department said.

New Citizens To Be Sworn In

A group of new Canadians will be presented with certificates of Canadian citizenship in Victoria Citizenship Court, 816 Government St., on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

Judge Norman Oreck, president of B.C. Citizenship Court, will preside.

OPENS PARK ON MONDAY

Premier Bennett will officially open a new park at the Inner Harbor Monday at 4 p.m.

Centennial Park, on the south side of the harbor between the Bapco paint property and the CPR docks, is the centennial project of the Capital Improvement District Commission.

During the brief ceremony a totem pole will be unveiled. It is one of the poles commissioned for presentation to each of the provinces and territories and the federal government by the B.C. Centennial Committee.

The park consists of a seawall, waterfront promenade, shrubs, flowers and walkways with standards for flying the flags of Canada and the 10 provinces.

Grant Awarded

ESTON, Sask. (CP) — A $25,000 federal grant will be given this municipality to aid in construction of an airport, Transport Minister Don Jamieson announced Thursday. The money will be used to construct a 2,160-foot gravel runway.

Jobless Aided

LONDON (Reuter) — In a move to cut Britain's 724,000 unemployment total, the government has announced a two-year, $240 million development plan for regions where the jobless rate is especially high.

Mime Workshop To Open Here On July 26

A mime workshop will be held at the Open Space Theatre, 510 Fort, three mornings a week, beginning Monday, July 26.

The two-hour sessions will be directed by Kaz Piesowocki, formerly with the Polish National Mime Troupe and now an instructor with the Vancouver City College.

He will be at the theatre Monday to Friday of next week from 9 to 10 a.m. each day to give information on the workshop program.

The instruction will include physical exercises and training in various mime skills.

HALIBUT CATCH FORFEITED

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Vancouver halibut boat skipper Mike Hoffenden has given up his 13,000-pound catch and part of his gear to the U.S. government in exchange for his freedom from charges of illegally fishing within the U.S. three-mile territorial limit.

The young bearded skipper was en route Thursday night to Ketchikan, where his vessel is being held by the coast guard, after the out-of-court settlement.

No dollar value was placed on the gear or halibut.

EMERGENCY CAUSES EMERGENCY

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Captain William Wolf of the Anderson Township volunteer fire department, wanted to advertise the department's forthcoming festival with a gigantic balloon.

He obtained a 35-foot balloon and was filling it with air when the emergency phone rang.

He dashed inside the fire house to answer the call and dispatch the life squad, but he had left the automatic air compressor on.

Now Wolf is looking for a big patch.

Save the Egg

LONDON (Reuter) — British scientists are working on a plan to breed hens with shorter legs so the eggs they lay will be less likely to crack, it was reported here.

Three Nations Squabble Over Ownership of Island

SAIGON (Reuter)—South Vietnam has joined nationalist China and the Phillippines in a squabble over ownership of the tiny Spratly island group in the South China sea.

In a statement, the foreign ministry said the Spratly Islands have been part of Vietnamese territory "from time immemorial."

The foreign ministry said south Vietnam has full sovereignty over the Spratly and Paracel island groups and "therefore rejects any claims from any foreign power over those islands."

The dispute comes at a time of speculation over the possibility of oil fields under the South China Sea.

The Spratly Islands, about 300 miles southeast of South Vietnam, have been claimed at various times by China, Nationalist China, the Philippines, South Vietnam, France and The Netherlands.

The latest dispute over ownership of the 22 tiny islands flared up early this month when a Filipino congressman charged that an "alien force" fired at him from the islands during a fishing trip.

The Manila government charged that Nationalist China was illegally occupying the islands and asked the Taipei government to withdraw its troops from the area.

The Philippines said the islands should be under the trusteeship of the powers that defeated Japan in the Second World War.

Outlining the historical background of South Vietnam's claim to Spratly, the foreign ministry said the islands figured as part of Vietnamese territory on the first maps published by Vietnam in 1834.

Nixon to Visit Peking

THE MAN who engineered the visit, Dr. Henry Kissinger, far right, joins President Nixon in receiving an enthusiastic crowd after leaving a Los Angeles restaurant where they dined following Nixon's announcement that he will visit mainland China in the near future. (AP Wirephoto)

Surprise Speech Stuns U.S.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (CP) — President Nixon announced Thursday night he will visit Peking within 10 months at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai of the People's Republic of China. The president said he will seek a "normalization" of relations between the United States and China.

The White House added today that the visit will take place well before the 10 months pass.

The visit was arranged last weekend by Chou and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's adviser on national security affairs who made a secret stop in Peking during a 10-day trip around the world.

The president's unexpected announcement was made on television and radio.

Speaking for five minutes from the National Broadcasting Co. studios in Burbank, Calif. Nixon said the purpose of his mission "is to seek a normalization of relations between the two countries and also to exchange views on questions of concern to the two sides."

EFFECT CAMPAIGN

The Nixon journey is expected to have an impact on the 1972 presidential campaign in the United States and may have an influence on the search for a negotiated peace in Vietnam.

Now it is more widely assumd than ever that the Nixon administration will not challenge the bid this fall for admission of mainland China to the United Nations.

In fact, Nixon's reference to "normalization of relations" seemed to suggest that his visit to Peking will be climaxed by establishment of full diplomatic relations between the United States and the Communist government which took over mainland China 22 years ago.

Nixon said: "I will undertake what I deeply hope will become a journey for peace — peace not just for our generation, but for future generations on this earth we share together."

The president quoted from a joint announcement, made simultaneously in Peking:

ACCEPTS INVITATION

"Knowing of President Nixon's expressed desire to visit the People's Republic of China, Premier Chou En-lai, on behalf of the government of the People's Republic of China, has extended an invitation to President Nixon to

Formosa Lodges Protest

TOKYO (CP) — Nationalist China lodged a strong protest today against President Nixon's plan to visit Communist China and a South Korean spokesman termed the trip shocking news. But other Asian allies of the United States approved.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu was not immediately available for comment, but an aide said: "This is something he considers as an encouraging development."

The report reached the Far East in mid-morning and took government officials and the public by surprise. Newspapers rushed out extra editions and anxious callers jammed newspaper switchboards for details.

James C. Shen, Nationalist China's ambassador to the United States, said in Washington he was not informed of Nixon's plans until about half an hour before the president's broadcast.

His report apparently did not reach Taipei before the news reports and at the news top officials of President Chiang Kaishek's regime went into a hurried conference. Afterward, a spokesman said, the government had "lodged a strong protest to the government of the United States."

SURPRISES OFFICIALS

Nixon's announcement surprised officials and private citizens in South Korea. A spokesman for the foreign ministry said "it was shocking news."

Seoul citizens, many with bewildered looks, intently read the news on bulletin boards in front of newspaper buildings before the evening papers hit the streets.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government termed Nixon's announcement a "very good thing." Acting Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura said: "We welcome the visit as an improvement of relations between the United States and China." He said his government was informed in advance of Nixon's plans.

Prime Minister Sir Keith Holyoake of New Zealand called Nixon's announcement heartening and said: "I hope this development will give more depth to recent tendencies on the part of China toward more relaxed relations with other countries.

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand, whose country has troops in Vietnam, said Nixon's trip may help bring peace to Southeast Asia.

"It is big news and important news," he said while attending the Asian foreign ministers conference in Manila.

HAIL NEWS

Prime Minister Trudeau today described President Nixon's decision to visit Peking as "a very significant move."

He told reporters he was "very pleased" that a dialogue has been established between the United States and China.

Mr. Trudeau said there is a growing international awareness that mainland China cannot be frozen out of world affairs.

The prime minister said timing for his own tentatively scheduled visit to Peking has

Air Canada Union Strikes Saturday

By DAVID BARKER

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada will be hit by the first of a series of rotating strikes of its maintenance and ground personnel at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Mike Pitchford, chief negotiator for the International Association of Machinists which represents the 6,200 Air Canada employees involved, announced the decision at a news conference today.

He said the union would decide tonight what city or region would be affected by the first 24-hour walkout.

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline will try to maintain normal operations as long as possible, but it cannot make any preparations until it finds out where the first strike will take place.

The spokesman said Mr. Pitchford had promised "to give us ample advance notice" of strike action so that the travelling public would not be inconvenienced.

"We'll try to keep operating unless it becomes too much for us to handle."

The starting time of the first 24-hour strike would be 8 a.m. local time in the region affected.

Mr. Pitchford said the union is not prepared to discuss its contract dispute with Air Canada unless the airline agrees to resume talks "without any prior restrictions."

POSITION UNCHANGED

In a telegram sent to airline President John Baldwin, the union said bargaining is impossible if Air Canada refuses beforehand to discuss any proposals that would cost more than a contract offer it made a week ago.

"It is still apparent that Air Canada's position toward the resumption of bargaining remains essentially unchanged from that taken by your committee last Friday, July 9," the telegram said.

"It is not possible to bargain effectively under these circumstances."

The union therefore was not prepared to resume talks unless Air Canada "is free to enter into negotiations without any restrictions on any matter remaining in dispute."

The union says the main issues at stake are job security, length of contract, overtime pay and scheduling of shifts.

ASK MACKASEY AID

In another telegram to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, the union asked for his intervention "contingent on your ability to persuade Air Canada to resume collective bargaining without any prior restrictions."

"It is our feeling that unless Air Canada agrees to lift their restrictions on their negotiations concerning matters to be discussed we do not believe any useful purpose would be served by your department."

The union has promised to give advance notice of strike action for the convenience of the travelling public.

Air Canada's operations have not been disturbed since the end of a 24-hour study session Tuesday by 5,200 employees in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Airline president John Baldwin talked with Mr. Pitchford on the telephone Wednesday night and Thursday in an attempt to find some common ground in the dispute.

Face-to-face negotiations broke down last Friday.

Tobacco Ad Restriction Challenged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight firms concerned with tobacco advertising have started a court challenge of British Columbia's pending ban on tobacco and alcohol ads.

A writ filed in B.C. Supreme Court Thursday by four major tobacco companies, three publishing firms and the advertising wing of the Canadian Football League claims the provincial government went beyond its powers when it passed legislation last spring that would ban such ads effective Sept. 1.

The writ names Attorney-General Leslie Peterson as defendant.

It is filed on behalf of Benson and Hedges (Canada) Ltd., Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd., Macdonald Tobacco Marketing Ltd., Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd., Maclean-Hunter Ltd., Southstar Publishers Ltd., Time Canada Ltd., and CFL Properties Ltd.

CFL Properties handles advertising contracts for the football league, such as those connected with ads in game programs in the nine CFL cities, including Vancouver.

The plaintiffs seek a Supreme Court declaration that

Armed Gang of Irishmen Snatch Man From Hospital

BELFAST (Reuter) — An armed gang of Irish Republican militants burst into a heavily-guarded hospital here today and snatched a wounded patient as nurses watched helplessly.

One of the gunmen broke the hospital's security by donning a white doctor's gown, walking calmly into the ward and then producing a sub-machine-gun from under his coat.

The gang of five men were believed to be members of the militant provisional branch of the outlawed Irish Republican Army and the wounded man a comrade captured in a bomb incident in a Roman Catholic part of Belfast this week.

A car drew up outside the Royal Victoria Hospital in the heart of the Catholic part of Belfast.

The five gunmen scrambled out, entered the building and tied and gagged two security guards. Apparently acting on inside information, they made their way to the ward where their comrade was under police guard.

The bogus doctor then held up the police guards with his submachine-gun and called his four colleagues, also armed, who trooped in.

One of the policemen was reported to have been slightly injured when he resisted. The patient was carried out by the men.

The wounded man had been shot in the thigh during his capture and was reported to have lost a leg. He and his rescuers clambered into the waiting car and drove off.

Security forces immediately threw a net around the city and roadblocks were set up on all highways leading to the Republic of Ireland where the gang was expected to try to smuggle the patient.

Thursday, Prime Minister Brian Faulkner told the people of Londonderry, where some of the most violent and bloody clashes have taken place involving Catholics, Protestants and British troops, that they could have social and economic benefits, or they could have riot and the fruits of riot—"destruction, injury and death."

"They cannot have both," he said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Train Derailed

QUESNEL (CP) — Eight cars of a Pacific Great Eastern railway train left the track today about three miles south of here. There were no injuries. Rail crews expected to have the track back in service later today or Saturday. Cause of the derailment was not known.

U.S. Economy Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States' economy advanced steadily but unspectacularly in the April-June period, but inflation slackened to the lowest rate in three years, the government said today.

Boycott Announced

BELFAST (Reuter) — Northern Ireland's main opposition party announced today it will boycott the Ulster Parliament following the British government's refusal to hold an independent inquiry into the shooting of two civilians by British troops last week.

Vote Defies Nixon On Pakistan Aid

WASHINGTON (WP) — The House foreign affairs committee voted Thursday to cut off military and economic aid to Greece unless it restores constitutional rule, and to suspend major aid to Pakiston until the "reign of terror" in East Pakistan is remedied.

This major, double challenge of Nixon administration policy by the once-passive house committee caught U.S. officials by surprise. State department sources said they hope to overturn the actions in the full House or in the Senate.

The following votes were reported taken in a closed meeting of the House committee which is still in the process of marking up the current $3.3 billion foreign aid authorization bill.

● On a 17 to 12 vote, to stop all military assistance and sales to Greece until the present military junta permits a return to constitutional rule, unless President Nixon specifies in writing that continued U.S. aid is required by "overriding requirements of the national security of the United States."

Even if the president makes that finding, U.S. military aid to Greece still would be limited to the $80 million ceiling for the fiscal year that ended June 30. Instead, $117 million is being requested for Greece in the current 12-months that started July 1.

● On a 17 to 6 vote, to suspend all military and economic aid to Pakistan, until the president reports to congress that Pakistan is "cooperating fully in allowing the situation in East Pakistan to return to reasonable stability" and millions of refugees who have fled to India have been allowed to return to East Pakistan to reclaim lands and property, to the extent feasible.

KOREAN REQUEST

The aid suspension for Pakistan would permit use of $100 million voted earlier by the committee for refugee relief. But the withholding vote on other aid would suspend $118.3 million requested by the administration for development and technical aid to Pakistan.

Among other actions taken by the committee, an attempt to increase by $50 million the $239.4 million sought by the administration for military aid to South Korea was defeated 16 to 12.

The votes to withhold Greek-Pakistan aid funds were described by congressional sources as "a questioning of the administration's judgment," arising in large part from the "re-thinking" under way in Congress stimulated by U.S. policy in the Indochina war.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D — Ohio) led the fight to ban arms aid to Greece, which he lost in the committee on Wednesday on a 14 to 12 vote. At that time, a more moderate proposal by Rep. Paul Findley (R — Ill.) to limit military grants to Greece also was defeated.

Arabs Report Rocket Attacks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) — Palestinian Arab commandos said the Jordanian air force was using rockets and napalm against them in fierce fighting in the north Jordan town of Ajloun that still raged early today.

In Damascus, guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat said fighting between the army and the commandos had continued into its fourth straight day.

Jordanian authorities, meanwhile, said in Amman that the army had forced the commandos out of their last stronghold in Jordan and moved them to an unpopulated area overlooking the ceasefire line with Israel.

NBC LEVELS PUBLIC CHARGE:

Drug Proceeds Buy Votes

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky had no immediate comment today on a report that the illegal drug traffic is helping to finance their presidential campaigns.

Phil Brady, a National Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Saigon, said his report was based on information from Vietnamese sources. It was broadcast Thursday on NBC news.

Brady said the sources told him that many illegal drugs are brought in by the South Vietnamese Air Force with the "blessing" of Ky, a former air force commander.

"And, they added, Ky needs the money more than ever before for his presidential campaign chest."

Ky, who has announced he will oppose Thieu in the Oct. 3 election, has denied previous allegations that he smuggled narcotics and gold.

Brady said Thieu is obsessed with being re-elected and because he needs money for the campaign he is "not asking where it comes from."

Brady quoted his sources as saying "another outfit pushing drugs is the Vietnamese national police," commanded by Maj.-Gen. Tran Thanh Phong.

"The biggest pusher is said to be Lt.-Gen. Dang Van Quang," Brady reported, adding that Quang was relieved of his command for corruption several years ago but "today Quang is Thieu's closest adviser" and has "filled Thieu's campaign chest."

Representative Robert H. Steele (Rep. Conn.), told a House of Representatives subcommittee in Washington last week that Maj.-Gen. Ngo Dzu, a military commander, was a major trafficker in narcotics.

But Brady said that "according to extremely reliable sources," Dzu "is being framed by others higher up who are involved in drugs." Brady said Vietnamese and American officials have the evidence.

Pledge to Taiwan Removed From Pact

MANILA (AP) — Nine traditionally anti-Communist Asian governments ended a three-day conference today with an agreement to give close study to events in Communist China.

A joint communique omitted a paragraph from the first draft that would have pledged continuing support for the Nationalist Chinese regime's claim to be the only legitimate government of the Chinese people.

Most of the delegates to the sixth ministerial conference of the Asia and Pacific Council also welcomed United States President Nixon's announcement that he is going to Peking.

Members of council are Australia, Nationalist China, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, Philippines, Thailand and South Vietnam.

The other ministers overrode protests of the Nationalist Chinese foreign minister, Chow Shu-kai, who warned that the Nixon trip could be a Peking trick and "a result of the psychological warfare of Communist China." Chow's government later filed an official protest with Washington.

Chow had tried earlier to convince the conference that dealing with the mainland regime is futule.

Defending Champion In Thunderbird Lead

Defending champion Tony Parkes of Sydney, Australia, was leading on over-all points today as 42 boats started sailing the last of a seven-race series for the Thunderbird World Championships.

He moved from third to first position after Thursday's two races, coming fourth in the first and winning the next.

The Australian crew established a healthy lead on the windward legs of the last race as the wind built up to 20 knots giving them the weather conditions under which they normally race at Sydney.

Victoria skipper John Malleson, who had held the overall top position for the past two days, slipped to third. His sloop Sunday came seventh in the first race Thursday and had to settle for ninth in the next.

MAINTAINS PLACE

Bob Grundison, the Victoria skipper who led after Monday's racing and has been in second place since, maintained his position with a third and a fourth Thursday. There are only 2¼ points between his Owl and Parkes' Moonraker II.

Tony Redstone of Pittwater, Australia, is still in contention in fourth spot. He sailed Chinook to fifth place in the first race and sixth in the second race of the day.

Gene Boudreau, a New Brunswick pharmacist, had to drop out of the series Thursday. One of his crew, Emile Cormier, developed back trouble and is in hospital.

DISAPPOINTED

Another disappointed skipper Thursday was Seattle airline pilot Frank Francisco. His Virada II won the first race and was third over the finish line in the second one.

But, with the noise of the wind in the rigging and concentrating on jockeying for position at the start line, he had failed to hear the race committee's warning that he had jumped the gun.

Had his second race counted he would have been in second position with 14½ points.

The leading boats in Thursday's last race were: 1, Moonraker II,. 2, Bob McLean's Sonata, Seattle; 3, Darrell Emmott's Kalua, Evergreen, Wash.; 4, Owl; 5, Dave Anstey's Hussy II, Victoria; 6, Chinook; 7, Victor Smith's Yare, Seattle; 8, John Monk's Au Soleil, Seattle; 9, Sunday; 10, Dave Ridgway's Aeolus, Seattle.

In the first race it was:

1, Virada II; 2, Hugh Bennett's Nina II, San Diego; 3, Owl; 4, Moonraker II; 5, Chinook; 6, Paul Watson's Nahanni, Vancouver; 7, Sunday; 8, Kalua; 9, Rod McBride's Lemolo, Victoria; 10, Roger Blue's Willawa, San Diego.

Today's race, which is expected to be sailed in 15 to 20 knot westerlies, will finish the series with the awards being presented at a dinner on the University of Victoria campus this evening.

UVIC DECISION

Administrative Or Judicial Act?

The decision the University of Victoria advisory board has to make is whether the dismissal of three professors was an administrative or a judicial act.

This was the content of board counsel David Williams' summation today on the cases of the three Uvic professors — Dr. Tikam Jain, Dr. William Goede and J. P. Graff — who were denied tenure or promotion by the university administration.

Williams attempted to establish the three were not full-fledged fembers of the university and were on terminal appointments.

However, board chairman Colin McLaurin maintained that since the professors were under the jurisdiction of the tenure document they were full-fledged members.

"They were within the purview of the tenure document," he said, "whatever status they held, the tenure document applied to them."

Williams related to the board legal precedents regarding terminations of contracts in Canada.

He singled out the case of an instructor at the Saskatchewan regional college whose contract was terminated in 1970. The instructor appealed that the tenure act in his case was broken, and that reasons must be given for his dismissal.

The Saskatchewan board of appeal ruled that the dismissal was an administrative decision and that reasons need not be given.

Williams then told the board about the case of a Saskatchewan doctor who was dismissed in 1970 by his hospital's board of governors. The court of appeal's ruling in this case was that since the doctor was not charged with unethical conduct, notice of dismissal and a hearing were not necessary.

A third case Williams cited was of an Ontario surgeon whose right to perform major surgery was taken away by his hospital's board of governors on the advice of a medical staff advisory committee.

The ruling in this case was that the hospital board was entitled to act on the advice of the advisory committee without giving reasons.

Williams compared the three cases to those of the Uvic professors, and said that the difference lies in the fact that the professors were not full university members.

At one point Williams' presentation was interrupted by a student in the gallery.

The student, who identified himself as Paul Watson, conducted a heated exchange with McLaurin. Watson charged that the hearings were a "whitewash," and McLaurin responded:

"You have no right to interrupt the proceedings," he said, "If there's any interruption again I will have to put these hearings in camera."

"And close the whitewash," Watson said.

"Stand up and be respectful to the court," McLaurin said.

Watson refused so McLaurin said, "We might have to hold you responsible for behaving in a manner not fitting the circumstances."

The hearings are scheduled to continue Saturday as university solicitor Cecil Branson began what he said would be a lengthy presentation.

About 50 spectators were on hand for today's hearing.

. . . PEKING VISIT

visit China at an appropriate date before May, 1972. President Nixon has accepted the invitation with pleasure."

Many congressional Democrats, including a number of Nixon's most-likely 1972 election challengers, were quick to welcome the developmnet.

Once Kissinger reached Pakistan a week ago, however, the roving emissary came down with a diplomatic illness, a "stomach upset." He supposedly retired to a resort to recuperate, scrapping plans for a luncheon with Pakistani President Mohammed Agha Yahya Khan. That's when Kissinger slipped away to Peking.

In the days ahead, attention will focus not only on domestic political repercussions of the Nixon announcement in the United States but on the response from Moscow, long at odds wjth Peking.

Said Nixon in his TV-radio announcement, words apparently aimed both at Nationalist China and the Soviet Union:

"Our action . . . will not be at the expense of our old friends. It is not directed against any other nation. We seek friendly relations with all nations."

"I have taken this action because of my profound conviction that all nations will gain from a reduction of tensions and a better relationship between the United States and the People's Republic of China."

Almost ironically, Nixon was greeted by "get out of Vietnam" chants, from a small but vocal group as he left the Burbank studios. As he was departing, someone asked if he was going to a Chinese restaurant for dinner.

"That's an idea," he responded. "I like the food." Actually, he went to a posh cosmopolitan dining place before returning by helicopter to his oceanside home here.

Outside the restaurant, a young bystander asked Nixon: "Do you feel historic?"

'TIME WILL TELL'

The president replied that he had discussed his China announcement over dinner with Kissinger and added "only time will tell what it really means."

Diplomatic observers at the Western White House saw the president's planned visit to Peking as an indication that China now is willing to use its influence to end the war.

The observers believe that Nixon would not have agreed to go to China unless he felt the Vietnam war would be over, or that at least U.S. involvement would be at an end.

Asked after his announcement whether the development meant that the United States was thinking of opening diplomatic relations with China, Nixon said that question would be covered in a future statement.

The dramatic move is likely to place Nixon in a commanding position as he prepares for the election campaign next year.

With the winding down of American involvement in Vietnam and a new friendship with China, Nixon can be expected to appear as a peacemaker when he makes his expected decision to run for another four-year term.

Union Now Wants To Inspect Books

The striking union at Sandringham Private Hospital sent a registered letter to co-owner Russell Shepherd of Vancouver today asking for a full inspection of financial records.

The move follows statements by Shepherd earlier this week that he will galdly open the books "if the union will disappear into the sunset after seeing we are in the red. Otherwise, it's none of their business."

Jack Phillips, co-ordinator for Local 1311 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees which struck Sandringham Sept. 30, said in his letter:

"We are therefore requesting that you permit us to have a fully-qualified accountant of our choosing examine your books and all related financial records, such as balance sheets, operating statements, etc., with no reservations or restrictions.

'CAN AFFORD IT'

"It is our belief that such an examination will prove that Sandringham Private Hospital can well afford to pay the modest increases in wages and benefits our striking members are seeking.

"Should the examination prove otherwise, we will be pleased to advise you as to the steps you should take in order to place your affairs on a sound, business-like basis, in line with other private hospitals that are getting a reasonable return for their investment, including three private hospitals in Victoria which are under union contract.

"This is a serious proposal and we trust you will treat it as such. We have no intention to 'disappear into the sunset' as you suggest . . . we want to get on with the job and negotiate a collective agreement."

Phillips also said it is his desire to end the strike "at the earliest possible date, consistent with what is fair and reasonable for the strikers. The strike will be ended sooner or later by negotiations at the bargaining table, so why not sooner?"

Twenty-eight employees at Sandringham, most of them nurses' aides, went on strike seeking a first contract including a wage scale ranging from the minimum provincial wage of $1.50 an hour to $2, plus job security. The hospital has said it cannot afford wage increases.

not yet been worked out, though he added he would be "always happy to go there."

An invitation for Mr. Trudeau to visit the Chinese capital was extended through Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin when Mr. Pepin was in Peking a few weeks ago.

Mr. Trudeau said the scheduling of his own visit will not be determined by that of Mr. Nixon, who intends to go to China sometime before next May.

UN Secretary-General U Thant said the move "opened a new chapter in the history of international relations."

The British government, which has had diplomatic relations with Peking for years, welcomed Nixon's announcement and said it was informed in advance.

"Our own relations with China have been steadily improving for the past 18 months," a foreign office spokesman commented.

In Moscow today the Soviet news agency Tass reported today without comment President Nixon's acceptance of an invitation to visit China.

The agency reported the announcement both from Peking and Washington in two brief, non-committal dispatches.

The news agency carried its first report on the announcement some seven hours after it was made in Los Angeles and Peking.

Fears of Sino-American collusion, at the expense of the Soviet Union, have been expressed here in the past, and Soviet leaders frequently remind China that Communist nations should unite against "imperialism."

First Store To Convert

First Vancouver Island unit of the former Cunningham Drug chain to convert to Shoppers Drug Mart format opens Wednesday at Town and Country.

The new name is used on drug stores operated by Koffler Stores Ltd., which took over Cunningham operations in February to become Canada's first coast-to-coast retail drug business, and the largest with more than 170 outlets.

Renovations at the store make the appearance more functional, more brightly illuminated in a black-and-white motif, with wide aisles and self-service counters.

Three Injured At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS — A two-car head-on collision sent three persons to Chemainus Hospital Thursday afternoon.

RCMP said Mr. and Mrs. Simon Schenker of Chemainus were taken to hospital with cuts after their car was in collision with one driven by Francine Lynne Bosko of Ladysmith.

Both cars were total wrecks, police said.

Schenker was going north on the Trans-Canada Highway near the Fuller Lake turn-off, and the other car travelling south.

Wind Shelter Only

The Beacon Hill Park Association plans no official protest against plans to reduce the park's historic lookout building to a wind shelter.

City parks committee voted in favor of a recommendation by parks administrator Cliff Bate that glass windows, being smashed by vandals at a cost of $500 a year, not be replaced.

The structure eventually will be modified — unless complaints about the vacant window frames show that the building is being used more than park authorities believe to provide only wind protection for scenery admirers.

A spokesman for the park association said today the group, formed to protect the park from the encroachment of city growth, did not want to get the reputation of being complainers every time any modification was deemed necessary by the city.

Bate said annual maintenance of the building is running at $1,500, including cost of replacing broken glass. The building, once used often as a place for playing checkers and general quiet gatherings, has been getting less use in recent years.

If complaints show the building is getting more use than officials believe, a recommendation could go to council to restore the building, Bate said.

"We're saving money on the window replacement, and at the same time finding out how many people are using it, and how often," he said.

Stray Feathers

By HAROLD HOSFORD

Let's get one thing straight. Birds still die of natural causes. Despite the well-known ravages of pesticides, not every bird found dead in your garden is a victim of hydrocarbons or organophosphates. Disease, predators, parasites and starvation still take their toll.

The recent discovery of "hundreds" of dead swallows on Salt Spring Island and the subsequent reports of "mysterious" deaths of more swallows in many parts of the Saanich Peninsula, immediately raised the dreaded spectre of insecticide poisoning.

Biopsies now being carried out on some of the carcasses may eventually prove this to be true but in the meantime let's not overlook natural causes in these deaths. Starvation for example.

For weeks now — or so it seems — the weather has been a popular topic of conversation hereabouts. The succession of cool, dull and often rainy days have made us irritable, bad-tempered and just plain fed up. Summer nothing! It's been more like November.

Temperatures in Victoria, and much of British Columbia for that matter, have averaged as much as 5 degrees below normal through June and the first weeks of July; rainfall has been heavier than usual — Victoria is an exception in this case — and even the sun refused to break through the gloom with its usual summery enthusiasm.

The result? A bunch of browned-off homo sapiens. More important though was that the stage had been set for a hard time among the birds, particularly insect eating birds.

Temperature and insects go hand in hand. Warm humid weather means more insects. Cold temperatures mean fewer bugs. And when low temperatures and their resultant low insect hatches coincide with the peak of the hatch of insect-eating birds, those birds are in trouble.

With hungry mouths to feed, there is a sudden increased demand for rations, the insects, and they're just not there.

Weather such as we've been "enjoying" this year probably doesn't occur here much more than once in a generation — a human generation. But on the prairies, and in northern latitudes, where outbreaks of cold air in June are fairly frequent, massive starvation-kills among insectivorous birds are a regular occurrence.

In the 7 years that I helped tend a string of nest boxes in Manitoba we had two such kills. In the first, every nestling tree swallow in 11 boxes failed to survive two days of 40 degree weather. The second, a 4-day cold wave, 2 years later, took adults as well. In one box alone 12 of them were found huddled together apparently trying to salvage every last bit of body warmth, but all dead.

Swallows and swifts are particularly prone to the effects of cold weather for another reason; they gather all their food on the wing and expend a vast amount of energy doing so. To generate this energy they need food, and to get more food they expend more energy. It's like a vicious circle.

On the other hand, flycatchers like the phoebes and kingbirds, make out a little better. Their feeding technique involves the passive approach. They sit and wait until something edible flies into range and with a sudden swoop, they have it. Like an efficient motor, their energy output is less, therefore their fuel intake, insects, is less and they can withstand brief food shortages a little better than the high-energy, high-fuel-intake swallows.

But I've been dwelling on the adult birds. It is the young, particularly the nestlings, that pay the highest price in any food shortage. Adult birds may be able to find enough food to sustain themselves but not enough for their young.

A throw-back to their reptilian ancestry often comes to the aid of nestling birds in a time of need. Unlike its parents, a nestling's blood temperature varies with the temperature of the surrounding air. As the air cools, so too does the nestling's blood, unless a brooding parent provides insulation.

While parents are off attending to their own needs during cool weather, their young are slowly cooling off in the nest. As their blood temperature drops, so too does their metabolism and their food requirements. In this way, a fat healthy young bird can survive — providing the period of food shortage is brief.

With a week of fine summer weather now under our belts, those dull dark days of June are nearly forgotten. The swallows have forgotten them. They're busy starting afresh aiming at filling the air with young swallows by August and recouping the loses of June.

AT ALL PAPER, PULP MILLS

Fish to Determine Waste Control

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has changed its mind about pulp mill wastes.

The pulp and paper industry will soon be operating under strict new federal regulations which prohibit the discharge of any waste poisonous to fish.

The new regulations were announced June 16, but the story goes back to early 1970 when the Canada Water Act was moving through Parliament.

A. T. Davidson, then deputy minister to Resources Minister J. J. Greene, said in an interview at that time that the water act was necessary because the federal fisheries act could not be used to force pollution abatement.

The fisheries act prohibits the discharge of any substance that might be harmful to fish.

Davidson said that the discharge provision of the act would apply only in cases where commercial fishing was endangered. People wouldn't stand for enforcement of anti-pollution laws in water which didn't support an economically important fishery.

FISH AND GUINEA PIGS

But the new pulp mill regulations announced in June by Environment Minister Jack Davis indicated a reversal of this cautious position. They were, in fact, written under the provisions of the fisheries act.

Peter M. Higgins, acting director of the environment department's pollution abatement program, said in a recent interview that under the new regulations fish themselves will be used to determine whether a pulp mill's pollution control equipment is up to snuff.

Native fish species least tolerant to poisonous substances will be placed in cages downstream from a pulp mill.

If the fish live, that's all to the good. If they die, their death will be considered irrefutable evidence that the mill's waste isn't meeting standards.

The mill then will be required to install biological waste treatment facilities which will do double duty, helping to reduce the quantities of wood fibre, bark and other products of wood pulping by 70 per cent or more and eliminating toxic chemicals.

Biological treatment is the only known method of removing certain toxic chemicals, some of which can't even be identified, from pulp mill effluent.

KRAF MILLS AFFECTED

"We think biological waste treatment will be necessary at every kraft mill in the country," Higgins said. Such mills produce common brown paper used in paper bags.

At most other mills, mechanical and chemical waste control will be necessary to meet the requirement for a 70 per cent reduction in effluent wastes.

All new mills, and any mills undergoing modernization or expansion, will be required meet the letter of the law in their pollution control systems.

Older, less-efficient mills will not be required to comply with the law immediately. They will have to submit a program and a time schedule indicating how they plan to control pollution.

Solid wastes, including clay used in paper-making, settle and coat river bottoms with a blanket of sludge.

Decaying wood fibre and bark use up the dissolved oxygen in the water, suffocating aquatic life, and release large quantities of poisonous sulphur gases.

Lesson in the Strait

THE THREE-VESSEL COLLISION which damaged freighters off Race Rocks early Wednesday morning takes on significance far beyond that of moderate marine accidents. The location and the prospective use of these waters as transit routes for big oil freighters in the future give the incident particular importance.

It requires little imagination to visualize the disaster that would arise if oil-laden mammoth carriers, travelling a little faster and hitting a little harder, smashed together in that part of the Strait of Juan de Fuca with a resultant spillage of their cargoes. This is the inescapable hazard posed by the plan to ship Alaskan oil to the refinery just south of the Canadian border on the Washington coast. What Victoria would suffer in such an event is dismaying but predictable. Oily sludge on our shores and beaches, the destruction of birds and marine life, would inflict perhaps irreparable damage on the environment—a possible fate which the northern coast of Washington state and the southern shore of the British Columbia mainland could share.

We are told that the Canadian government is accepting responsibility for quick clean-up work on the Coast. We are also informed that advances are being made in the United States in methods of handling such spills. To date no definite assurance has been given that any technique so far devised would be effective in the event of fast-running tides and stormy weather. Under such circumstances, containment of a spill in this vicinity is little more than a hope — and a forlorn one at that.

The other basic defence against such a disaster is reportedly major improvements in ship design and in navigational aids. The vessels would be so constructed, it is argued, that possibility of spills would be minimized even when they bumped. In addition, modern technical equipment would be brought into play to avoid collisions in the first instance. This sounds more reassuring than it is.

The world knows the high peak of efficiency reached by technology in sending man into space, putting him on the moon. The world also remembers, with sadness, the flaws in that technology, or human application of it, which returned three heroic, highly trained and competent cosmonauts to earth dead. It also remembers the failure of a take-off test which claimed the lives of American astronauts and left the fate of others on an abortive moonshot hanging by a slender thread.

Is there any suggestion that technology applied to ship construction and to navigational aids would be closer to perfection than that applied to activity in space?

Under the best of circumstances, with apparently flawless equipment, accidents can occur through human error. It is humans who will be in charge of the ships.

In Wednesday's accident the mechanical devices used to reduce dangers in marine traffic may have been relatively primitive in comparison to those science projects for the future, particularly as a safeguard for oil carriers. But masters of the freighters involved in the collision this week had reason to believe that the navigational aids were adequate for them. The collision, nevertheless, occurred.

An assessment of future risks must involve questions of technical flaws or human error. But whatever the cause, accidents will happen.

The gashed hulls and bashed bow of freighters now under repair tell the story more dramatically than any words in Canadian or American debate.

The threat to environment inherent in use of the Strait for oil tankers — particularly huge tankers that, because of size, are limited in manoeuvre and ability to stop — has been raised in sharp outline by this week's mishap.

Can governments or oil companies force such risks upon this part of the world?

No Dollar Withdrawal

By CHARLES BARTLETT, from Washington

PROGRESS in bringing American civilians home from Saigon had been slow until John Irwin, the Under Secretary of State, returned from a visit there in June. He has won White House support for a flat order to cut the civilian total promptly by one-third. This means that less than 1,000 will be left and Frank Shakespeare, head of the USIA, is taking strong steps to reduce his agency's swollen mission.

This curtailment of propagandists and advisors will facilitate the American task of assuming what Gen. Duong Van Minh has called a "policy of positive neutrality" in the looming presidential elections. President Nixon's anxiety to play a neutral hand was evidenced by Henry Kissinger's gesture in calling on the three leading candidates, including Minh, during his stop in Saigon.

The essence of this policy is to avoid giving, in the months before October 3, any signal which may be read as an American attempt to influence the Vietnamese electorate. This will be difficult because the people are prone to see conspiracies in everything that happens and Minh, whether he runs as an underdog or withdraws, will maintain that the election has been rigged.

The unhappy irony of the last phases of Vietnamization will be that as the Americans depart, dollar grants to the Vietnamese will need to grow. The economy has been fattened by the spending of Americans and their employment of some 500,000 Vietnamese at wages well above the national average. To cushion the shock of departure, it is estimated that next year's security assistance may rise as high as $750 million.

This is so much money that it will be tempting to leave many Americans in Vietnam to see that it is well spent. But this will only prolong the involvement, deepen the demoralization at home, and increase the present danger of drawing Americans into Vietnamese corruption. It will not be easy to give them the money without the advice but it may well be the only alternative.

FROM CALGARY

By JAMES H. GRAY

Song Sparrows in the Windbreaks

THE birds are coming back! That may not signify an ecological victory of the first magnitude but it at least indicates that the bottom has been reached in one polluted area and things are beginning to look less gloomy for our wildlife. This reporter lives on a tract of land on the fringe of Calgary which almost qualified, 20 years ago, as a bird sanctuary. Scrub poplar bluffs around its perimeter provided an abundance of nesting sites. Hillside springs watered the birds and occasional coyotes, deer, rabbits and weasel.

Gray

Weed cover on the land which had once been cultivated produced a variety of seed for the seed-eating birds. Insects hatched in such myriads as to gorge the insectivores. And the surplus of birds eggs, rodents, hatchlings, etc., was large enough to keep the predators sleek and sassy.

That was 20 years ago. Five years ago the silent spring that Rachel Carson predicted was upon us in fact. Save for the magpies and the English sparrows, there was not a bird to be heard. Crows, blackbirds and meadowlarks paused briefly on their migration and were gone with the bluebirds and woodpeckers. Of the once ubiquitous robins, but a single pair remained. It was welcomed with such joy by the neighborhood that one resident allowed it to build a nest over his front door which he locked shut for the summer.

Robins and Killdeer

This year, seemingly out of nowhere, the robins are back in force and have stayed the summer. Three families of killdeer are turning the pasture into a noise polluted area for other birds. Ham actors of the worst kind, they are busily practising their broken-wing routine on each other, and on any gullible magpies that can be conned into chasing them.

Meadowlarks clarion their pre-dawn territorial claims from the power poles. Barn swallows have taken over a neighbor's loft. He now wears a hard hat as protection from their dive-bombing when he rushes their domain for hay for his horses. Families of blackbirds devour the insects kicked up by grazing horses and song sparrows flit among the windbreaks.

The return of the birds after their disappearance poses an intriguing riddle for naturalists: Have the birds, like the insects, developed a resistance or tolerance toward DDT and the other chlorinated hydrocarbons? Or are the returning birds a result of the banning of the use of these chemicals?

It is too early to expect an answer. At the moment the odds would seem to favor the first of the alternatives. The numbers of birds now appearing could surely not have developed in the short period which has elapsed since DDT was banned, and its use discontinued in the Calgary area.

To reach Calgary the birds have to pass through what was once a chemically contaminated wasteland for birds. After the Second World War, until just yesterday, the farmers between Calgary and Texas poured ever increasing clouds of poisonous sprays on their crops, and every urban gardener waged his private war on his feathered friends.

The farmers were egged on by the agricultural scientists, and the home gardeners by the chemical industry hucksters. Both weaseled out of their responsibilities with such catch phrases as "read the directions" and "apply only as directed." They had neither concern nor interest in the warnings of Rachel Carson and the pioneer ecologists.

Persistent Spraying

But the Carson gospel spread nonetheless. Yet it took another decade for the counter-offensive against the lethal chemicals to take hold. Winnipeg, for example, was still spraying the entire countryside with DDT to control mosquitoes almost until the hour that it was outlawed.

Another threat to wildlife and human health, however, is still being used on the farms of western Canada. That is the treatment of grain with mercury compounds prior to seeding. This, the scientists tell the farmers, will control germination — impeding fungus and increasing yields.

Mercury Load

Only recently has it been discovered that birds feeding on treated seed become so loaded with mercury as to constitute a health hazard. Last year the Alberta government closed the hunting season on pheasants because of the mercury problem. So far, it has not been determined what the ultimate effect on the pheasant population will be from mercury poisoning.

Around the cities the rise in bird population seems to have been accompanied by an increase in the number of scavenger cats prowling the countryside at night. The stray cat nuisance has become so great in Calgary that the city council has been trying to draft a by-law to force all cat owners to buy licences for their animals. Whether that will reduce the strays is problematical. A favorite method of disposing of unwanted litters of half-grown kittens has always been to drive out into the country and dump them.

Meanwhile, the birds are back, and that is a cause for rejoicing in itself regardless of what tomorrow brings on the ecology front.

Letter

Bikathon Returns?

A recent article in your paper regarding the results of the Miles For Millions Walkathon prompts me to wonder about the outcome of a similar fund raising project which took place earlier this year. I refer to the Victorian Days Bikathon. To the best of my knowledge, the amount raised from that event was never made public.

I feel very strongly that any organization which appeals to the community-at-large for pledges in the manner of these two groups should inform the public of the results of their particular project. The Miles For Millions Committee has done so. I believe that the Victorian Days Committee owes the people of Victoria the same courtesy.—Colin D. Griffiths, 1964 Argyle.

Speedy Recovery, Mr. Mayor

CITIZENS, DEEPLY CONcerned by the heart attack which has removed Mayor Courtney Haddock from the busy rounds of his office to the quiet rest of a hospital bed, join in hopes for his speedy return to bounding health and the renewal of activities to which he has dedicated himself since election.

Immobility alone is a difficult condition for a man of his surging energies and ebullient nature. Mayor Haddock is characteristically a man on the move, engaged in work he considers of benefit to his fellow citizens and the community.

If the good wishes of countless friends are a factor in quick recovery, he will be back shortly, striding briskly into his public tasks and spreading the ready laughter that helps to brighten the civic day.

Cause of the Problem?

THE ROLE OF THE OMBUDSman as a defender of the individual against bureaucratic tyranny and perverse obstacles has been rightly praised. But Mr. Louis Marceau, the Quebec ombudsman, is single-handedly setting out to explore and criticize governmental practices which are not, strictly, within his competence. In addition to listing the reasonable and unjustified complaints of citizens in his annual report, he has advanced into a political battleground by attacking the system which has brought so many petitions for redress to his desk.

Mr. Marceau notes the lack of concretely formulated laws and advocates consultation between legislators and those responsible for administering the laws, presumably high-level and middle-level civil servants.

The legislative processes in the Western democracies are reeling under the impact of an increasingly technical age. Law-makers cannot know everything, nor can the committee system always keep pace with the need to make technically competent statutes. Mr. Marceau has merely indicated the top of the iceberg: the need for a legislative system which draws more intelligently upon specialized knowledge. Mr. Marceau has wandered from the beaten trail in his report but has discovered a radical source of our problems by doing so.

Coalition the Best Bet?

AS THE SOUTH VIETNAMESE elections approach and charges that the event will be rigged fill the air, the notion that the West should support the Saigon regime becomes more doubtful. It is the dogmatic view that Saigon represents the will of southern Vietnam that has led, in large measure, to the enormous expenditure of lives and treasure poured into the Vietnamese quagmire. Once it is realized that the Western position depends in the long run on catering to the desires of indigenous nationalisms progress will have been made in protecting what interests the West has to protect in Southeast Asia.

A regime in Saigon which will recognize those interests could be a coalition government.

In urging the acceptance of such a government at the Paris talks, or in any Geneva Conference convened to review the Asian situation, the United States and its allies could be acting expediently and in line with the spirit of the times.

VIEW FROM THE SUMMIT

Twilight of the Career Diplomats

THE recent spate of special missions overseas by high-ranking U.S. officials emphasizes again that in major areas of diplomatic decision making the American President tends often to ignore his Secretary of State. Thus during the past few days Dr. Kissinger has conducted a series of highly important talks involving both short-term Vietnam prospects and long-term China prospects; Vice-President Agnew has toured the fringes of the Oriental and the Arab worlds; Secretary Laird has had key exchanges in Japan and C.I.A. Director Helms has paid an unusual visit to Israel to ascertain the chances of war or peace.

Sulzberger

What is notable about these journeys is that they were made by direct Presidential agents who have nothing to do with the State Department. Secretary Rogers has indeed been something of a traveler himself but he has played a less than flamboyant role in the policy-making outside the Middle East (which others prefer, when possible, to leave alone). Rogers has not been directly linked to the current flurry of peripatetic diplomacy.

Diminution in the influence of foreign ministers is no sudden new development nor is it a trend limited to the United States. With the exception of a trio of outstandingly strong men, Marshall, Acheson, and Dulles, the U.S. has produced no really influential Secretary of State in fifty years. Presidents from Wilson through Roosevelt to Nixon have preferred to depend heavily on executive assistants such as House, Hopkins, Bundy, Rostow and Kissinger.

This is partly because Presidents have become increasingly associated with global problems since World War I and therefore have tended to interpret at a maximum the diplomatic authority rather vaguely specified in the Constitution. A similar tendency can be noted in other countries where chiefs of state nowadays generally make policy. The era of Talleyrands and Metternichs is over.

French Practice

Presidents of the French Fifth Republic have treated foreign affairs as their own special domain rather than the Quai d'Orsay's, even though Maurice Couve de Murville, de Gaulle's long-time foreign minister, proved brilliantly efficient — within this acknowledged limitation.

Prime Minister Heath is the driving force of Britain's contemporary diplomacy as Chancellor Brandt is in West Germany and Comrade Brezhnev, rather than the veteran Gromyko, in Russia.

The various slogan policies of the last quarter century have all, save for the U.S. Marshall Plan, been named for chiefs of government or military strategists; the Truman, Eisenhower, Brezhnev and Nixon Doctrines plus the short-lived Malinovsky Doctrine enunciated by Khrushchev's defence minister and asserting the right to attack the bases of any military move against "Socialist" states.

With the blazing exception of General Marshall, U.S. Secretaries of State have been largely drawn from the ranks of lawyers, Acheson, Dulles and Rogers being well-known examples. A curious footnote is that several have clerical backgrounds. Acheson's father was a bishop and Dulles and Rusk were the sons of clergymen. This mixed tradition sometimes encourages the legal desire to win a case while heightening moral conviction in the rightness of a cause.

Assessment of Lawyers

Yet, Francois de Callieres, diplomatic adviser to French King Louis XIV and author of the classic treatise on negotiating, wrote in 1713: "In general, the training of a lawyer breeds habits and dispositions of mind which are not favorable to the practise of diplomacy." His implication was that lawyers were more likely to prove facile than wise.

But generalizations of this sort are evidently unsound as indicated by the mere fact that two of this century's most influential American statesmen were lawyers — as well as some of the least influential.

The real impulse that has driven chiefs of government everywhere to assert personal direction over foreign policy is that the world has become both so compact and so dangerous that diplomacy must always be immediately related to economic, military and political problems and that some of the most difficult decisions must be taken with greater speed than is possible through the more deliberate foreign ministries.

This encourages a requirement for summit diplomacy, relying on "hot line" communications between chancelleries and on special agents rather than ambassadors, and has tended to water down the public renown of all but the most exceptional diplomatic representatives.

While men like Gromyko and Britain's Douglas-Home are familiar to the public through long exposure, the real business of foreign policy-making today is done by executives who are also responsible for internal policy. When they want critically important information or wish to convey primordial messages, they tend to use personal delegates rather than the ministers supposed to do the job.

From the Times of July 16, 1911:

The crowds are growing nightly at the Gorge Park, where Manager Denham continues to put on an excellent moving picture show as soon as darkness sets in. Last week a program with nine picture films was given and the Gorge orchestra played throughout the evening. Today the programs for both pictures and orchestra will be changed. The dancing pavilion attracts many nightly, everyone who dances there being loud in praise of the excellent floor.

China Ties Date Back to 1784

By DON McLEOD

WASHINGTON (AP) — American relations with China are older than the U.S. constitution, dating back to 1784 when the first Yankee trader sailed into Canton harbor.

The last British troops had sailed out of New York the year before, and the newly-independent colonies were loosely aligned under the Articles of Confederation.

The present form of U.S. government, now moving to thaw a 22-year freeze with China, was still five years away from ratifying its constitution and electing its first president.

But the Americans were eager to exercise the right to unrestrained trade which had counted so heavily in bringing on the revolution, and the best trade was in China.

Moving chiefly out of New England ports, American clippers took a healthy part of the China trade, and Yankee sailors were a common sight on the streets of Canton.

YANKEE SAILORS COMMON IN CANTON

In the Opium War of 1839-42, Britain humbled China and forced broad trade concessions. The Americans quickly negotiated a treaty granting Americans the same commercial privileges.

★ ★ ★

During the mid-19th Century Taiping rebellion, the Western powers supported the tottering Manchu regime because it favored their business interests. First an American, Frederick Townsend Ward, and then England's Charles (China) Gordon led the army which helped put down the revolt.

Toward the end of the century, when Western powers were slicing deeper into Chinese sovereignty, U.S. State Secretary John Hay persuaded the other nations to adopt an "open-door policy."

When the Boxer Rebellion broke out in 1900, the United States provided troops to help put it down.

It was not until 1943, during the Second World War, that the United States and Britain signed away their extraterritorial rights and established China as an equal among world powers.

One day after the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941, China declared war on Japan and Washington sent Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell to become Chiang Kai-shek's chief of staff.

At the 1943 Cairo Conference, Chiang, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill agreed that Japan would be forced to return all Chinese territories including Taiwan (Formosa).

At the close of the war with Japan, civil war resumed between Chiang's government and Communist forces. U.S. Gen. George C. Marshall, as a special envoy, sought unsuccessfully to end the fighting.

★ ★ ★

The United States pumped more than $2 billion in aid to Chiang during the four-year civil war, but in 1949 the Nationalists were forced to withdraw to Taiwan and America's long relationship with mainland China was ended.

The new China, closely aligned with Russia during the cold war years, was never recognized by the United States, which regarded the Chiang government as China's legal representative.

The next year, Peking sent troops to fight Americans in Korea. When the Korean War ended, the U.S.-China confrontation moved to the Formosa Straits as the Communists began shelling offshore islands held by the Nationalists in 1954.

Dwight D. Eisenhower sent warships into the strait to prevent an invasion.

★ ★ ★

Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson made some efforts at thawing relations with China by relaxing travel restrictions; but China did not reciprocate.

The first big break came early this year when a U.S. table-tennis team was invited to the mainland and a trickle of reporters and other visitors followed, leading to the visit last weekend by Henry Kissinger, Nixon's national security adviser.

'PEACEFUL PHASE'

A Game of Ping Pong Led to the Current Thaw

By JOHN RODERICK

John Roderick of the Associated Press accompanied the United States table tennis team to China in April, the first American news agency correspondent to visit there since 1949. Roderick reported from China from the end of the Second World War until 1948 and since has followed Chinese affairs closely.

TOKYO (AP) — President Nixon's decision to visit Peking immensely strengthens the moderate wing of Chinese communism, led by Premier Chou En-lai, which seeks to advance Communist aims peacefully rather than through the use of force.

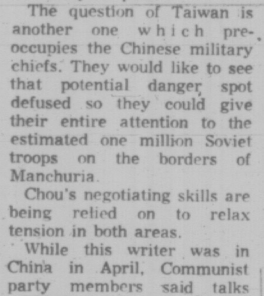
The international Communist movement alternates between the use of war and the application of parliamentary, or united front, tactics in its drive to achieve its goals.

China at the present time is in the peaceful phase, following the violence and excesses of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution.

Chou, long an advocate of united-front tactics, has been entrusted by the party to serve as architect and spokesman of the new soft approach to the United States and the West.

It was in this context that in April he made a sharp turn in the long hostile relations with the United States by inviting an American table tennis team and three American reporters to visit the Chinese mainland.

The Nixon visit represents a personal triumph for the urbane, articulate 73-year-old statesman-diplomat.



CHOU
. . . visit victory

If it is successful, there could be an end, at least for a time, to the Vietnam war. Tensions over Taiwan could be eased. The prospects for peace in Asia would be brightened.

LEAD TO CRITICISM

Failure would expose Chou's moderate line to criticism within the Communist party. The ultra-leftists—led by Mao Tse-tung's wife, Chiang Ching— might persuade others of their tougher line of brinkmanship in relations with the United States.

The faction which seems to hold the decisive vote is led by the army chiefs. They rose to positions of power in the provinces and on the central committee after they were called in to suppress the fanatic Red Guards during the cultural revolution.

For a variety of reasons they want to see China stable and free of foreign conflict for the next five to 10 years. One reason is that the fourth five-year plan has just got under way. Its objective is to build China industrially and militarily.

The Vietnam war is an enormous drain on China's resources. If it could be halted on terms acceptable to North Vietnam, the money and technicians now diverted to Hanoi could be employed in the five-year plan.

The question of Taiwan is another one which preoccupies the Chinese military chiefs. They would like to see that potential danger spot defused so they could give their entire attention to the estimated one million Soviet troops on the borders of Manchuria.

Chou's negotiating skills are being relied on to relax tension in both areas.

While this writer was in China in April, Communist party members said talks could be held about Taiwan without the prior withdrawal of American troops from the Nationalist island, the first suggestion of a softening position on this key issue.

Secret China Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry Kissinger's clandestine trip to Peking for President Nixon was one of the most closely-held secrets in United States diplomacy.

While the president's national security affairs adviser was reported recovering from a stomach illness in the mountains of Pakistan July 9 to 11, he was in China confering with Premier Chou En-lai.

And with all the speculation about his 12-day world trip, there was none even remotely touching on a China visit.

"The administration is extremely close-mouthed about the Kissinger mission, but it is possible to piece together outlines of the clandestine trip.

On the morning of July 9 it was announced in Pakistan that Kissinger had become ill with stomach problems.

He cancelled a formal dinner with President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan scheduled for that night and was reported to have gone to the Nathiagali Hill Station little more than 50 miles from Rawalpindi to recover.

However, Kissinger flew from Rawalpindi in his own large jet and Asian diplomats say the hill station cannot receive such large planes. Thus, they indicated, Kissinger left directly for Peking.

Officials here feel only Yahya knew of the trip.

From July 9 to 11, a Sunday, Kissinger was reported in the Pakistani mountains. It was announced Saturday he was staying an extra day in Pakistan because of his illness.

In truth, that extra day was spent still in Peking.

Kissinger was next reported to have resumed his schedule late Sunday, flying to Paris for a stopover visit with the American delegation at the Vietnam peace talks. He then returned to the United States for talks with Nixon.

The extreme secrecy marking the China visit carried over until 10:30 p.m. EDT Thursday, when Nixon went on the air to tell the world: "Premier Chou En-lai and Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, held talks in Peking from July 9 to 11, 1971."

'I'm Proud Of Role I Played'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Glen Cowan, the hippie-haired 19-year-old who kicked off the "ping pong diplomacy" mission, missed President Nixon's China speech Thursday night.

Cowan was busy playing ping pong.

"Wow, that's really nice, really good," was Cowan's reaction today to the speech.

What is Cowan's reaction to those who say he played one of the important roles in the Washington-Peking thaw by exchanging gifts with a Red Chinese table tennis player in Japan and getting the American team invited to Peking?

"I'm proud, kind of privately proud. I honestly feel I had a lot to do with it. The Chinese were looking for a way to come out into the world anyway, but after seeing the gift exchange, well that provided the basis for them. I feel if I hadn't been with the team, we wouldn't have been invited."

Atmosphere In Peking More Relaxed

By ROLAND DALLAS

HONG KONG (Reuter) — President Nixon's announcement that he will visit China coincided almost exactly with Chinese celebrations today of the fifth anniversary of Mao Tse-tung's famed nine-mile swim in the Yangtse River.

The anniversary finds the country apparently over its internal convulsions and pursuing a more serene course both at home and abroad, including attempts to make new international friends.

Mao's 1966 swim, at the age of 72, was described at the time as "a heavy blow against imperialism."

The same year, Mao spearheaded the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution which plunged the country into turmoil for three years and toppled the president of the republic, Liu Shao-chi.

Today, the atmosphere in China is more relaxed. The conduct of day-to-day government business is in the hands of Premier Chou En-lai, who also plays a major role in policy-making.

MONK WITH UMBRELLA

Mao rarely appears in public. Sometimes he is jovial and lively, while at other times he is helped by a nurse, reports here say.

In a rare interview with American writer Edgar Snow in April, the chairman described himself as being "only a lone monk walking the world with a leaky umbrella."

He lives in a modest house inside a walled compound in Peking.

Adulation of Mao has lost its former fervor as the official news media now concentrate on urging the people to study his works. This is in line with Mao's own decision to limit the personality cult in China and cut down his own role to that of "teacher."

But his influence on China will always remain enormous. Chou, in an interview with Canadian Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, said that even he sometimes erred in his efforts to follow Mao's teachings.

On one occasion, Chou recalled, Mao visited him in his office and told him he had too many people working for him there.

"He told me that I would end up working for them and not for the Chinese people," Chou said.

He added that now he had only two people working for him in his office.

NIXON:

"As I have pointed out on a number of occasions over the past three years, there can be no stable and enduring peace without the participation of the People's Republic of China and its 750 million people . . ."

President's Speech Text

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The text of President Nixon's address Thursday night announcing his plans to visit China:

Good evening. I have requested this television time tonight to announce a major development in our efforts to build a lasting peace in the world.

As I have pointed out on a past three years, there can be no stable and enduring peace without the participation of the People's Republic of China and its 750 million people. That is why I have undertaken initiatives in several areas to open the door for more normal relations between our two countries.

In pursuance of that goal, I sent Dr. Kissinger, my assistant for national security affairs, to Peking during his recent world tour for the purpose of having talks with Premier Chou En-lai. The announcement that I shall now read is being issued simultaneously in Peking and in the United States.

"Premier Chou En-lai and Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, held talks in Peking from July 9 to 11, 1971. Knowing of President Nixon's expressed desire to visit the People's Republic of China, Premier Chou En-lai, on behalf of the government of the People's Republic of China, has extended an invitation to President Nixon to visit China at an appropriate date before May 1972.

"President Nixon has accepted the invitation with pleasure.

SEEK 'NORMALIZATION'

"The meeting between the leaders of China and the United States is to seek the normalization of relations between the two countries and also to exchange views on questions of concern to the two sides."

In anticipation of the inevitable speculation which will follow this announcement, I want to put our policy in the clearest possible context. Our action in seeking a new relationship with the People's Republic of China will not be at the expense of our old friends. It is not directed against any other nation. We seek friendly relations with all nations.

Any nation can be our friend without being any other nation's enemy. I have taken this action because of my profound conviction that all nations will gain from a reduction of tensions and a better relationship between the United States and the People's Republic of China.

It is in this spirit that I will undertake what I deeply hope will become a journey for peace—peace not for just our generation but for future generations on this earth we share together.

Thank you and good night.

Wine, Crabs Cap Night For Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Beautiful evening, isn't it," mused Richard Nixon as — fortified with crab legs, $40-a-bottle wine and applause — he shook hands on Wilshire Boulevard following his bombshell China speech.

"Do you know how to play ping pong?" called out a bystander as the crowd joined Nixon's jovial mood.

"No, I never learned the game," Nixon laughed back.

●

It was a beautiful evening indeed for Nixon. He has rarely been in a better mood since taking office.

He stood on the sidewalk in Perino's restaurant, shaking hands and joking with an applauding crowd. It was a pleasant summer evening, back home in his native southern California, and he had just set the world on its ear.

"Mr. President, your speech was like a home run."

Nixon liked that. "Imagine being compared to Reggie Jackson," he beamed, referring to the star outfielder of the Oakland Athletics.

●

With him was Henry A. Kissinger, the security adviser who made the secret trip to Peking that set up Nixon's announcement.

Do you feel historic?" asked a young man.

"Only time will tell what it really means," Nixon replied, and drove away in a limousine, still smiling and waving.

Spurs Chances For Entry

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's Peking trip announcement brings the United States and China to the verge of diplomatic relations in an historic move that will have repercussions from the United Nations to Vietnam.

Premier Chou En-lai's invitation to the U.S. chief of state, and the president's acceptance, in itself raises Washington - Peking dealings overnight from a gradual thaw to the brink of formal relations for the first time since the Communists took over the Asian mainland in 1949.

A prime issue for the United States is settlement of the Vietnam war. Peking in the past has been Hanoi's most militant backer among major Communist powers.

At the United Nations, the Nixon announcement spurs chances for China's entry as early as this fall. Peking seemed assured of entry sooner or later, but many had expected the time would not come before 1972.

'Dramatic' Says Stanfield

TOKYO (UPI) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, visiting Tokyo en route to Peking, today described President Nixon's announcement of his scheduled visit to Communist China as "dramatic and a surprise."

Stanfield receive the news after his meeting with deputy vice-foreign minister Takeshi Yasukawa at the Japanese foreign ministry this morning.

"It was dramatic and a surprise to me," the Progressive Conservative leader said. "It's impact is great in Japan and certainly in Taiwan."

Stanfield said, however, he did not think Nixon's announcement would lead to immediate U.S. recognition of the Peking regime.

Stanfield arrived in Tokyo Thursday night en route to Peking. He will make the trip next week at the invitation of the China institute of foreign affairs.

Besides meeting Yasukawa, Stanfield conferred with officials of the ministry of international trade and industry and with Robert Ballon, a Belgian professor who is an expert on Japanese business and economic affairs.

He will spend Saturday and Sunday in Hakone, a mountain resort west of Tokyo.

100 Ships Sit Idle at 34 Ports

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One hundred ships sit idle today in 34 ports between Canada to Mexico as the economic impact grows in the 16th day of a strike by 15,000 West Coast longshoremen.

Ports have toted up millions of dollars in lost wages and diverted cargo.

Hundreds of workers in related dockside industries were reported laid off. Thousands of others were ordered to take early vacations.

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the employer Pacific Maritime Association say no talks are scheduled.

In Southern California, John Parkinson, assistant general manager of the harbor department said: "We figure the economic impact on the Los Angeles-Long Beach harbors alone is $15 million a month.

EFFECTS FELT

"The effects of the strike are also being felt not only in the United States but in foreign ports," he added. "You can't tie up a big market like the Pacific Coast without some effect worldwide."

Cargoes including industrial materials, foodstuffs, autos and pulp products have been rerouted to Canada and Mexico for unloading and land shipment to U.S. destinations. Eastern U.S. and Gulf ports also have received strike-diverted cargo.

Only military cargo and passenger ships have been unloaded since July 1, when the first coastwide strike in 23 years began.

ILWU President Harry Bridges said Thursday that longshoremen will load 28,804 tons of wheat and flour for relief of Pakistani refugees in India, requested by the Nixon administration.

The port of Vancouver estimates it will unload 22,000 Japanese cars this month, 20,000 of which would normally dock at U.S. ports.

Seattle commissioners said the strike is costing $185,000 a month in lost dockage, wharfing and storage fees and in unused equipment.

Port Director Miriam Wolff estimates San Francisco's loss at $300,000 in wharfing fees alone.

The Golden Gate port produces 67,000 jobs a year with an annual payroll of some $400 million, she said.

"Not all of them are out of work, but they'll feel the pinch sooner or later."

The union is seeking a two-year contract with a guaranteed 40-hour work week for regulars and 22 hours for casual employees; an 85-cent pay raise the first year and 75 cents the second over existing $4.92-an-hour levels; and a $500 monthly pension for 25-year employees at age 62.

The employers have not disclosed their offer which was rejected when negotiations broke off June 30.

Amchitka Two Takes Part In Suit

Victoria-based Amchitka Two, a group opposed to the proposed nuclear test in October on Amchitka Island in the Aleutians, continues its efforts to scuttle the blast.

Rhoda Kaellis, president of the group, said Thursday Amchitka Two is co-plaintiff, along with seven other groups, in a civil action against the blast launched in U.S. district court for the District of Columbia.

The action maintains the Atomic Energy Commission is breaking the nuclear test ban treaty of 1963, the Endangered Species Act and the Water Pollution Control Act, among others.

The groups hold that the AEC has produced no evidence that the blast won't produce damage to the environment.

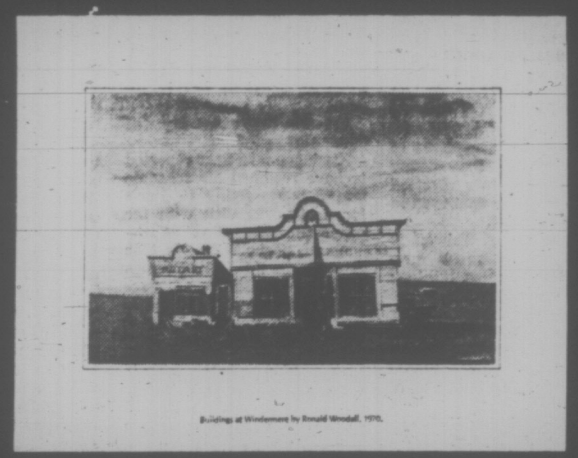
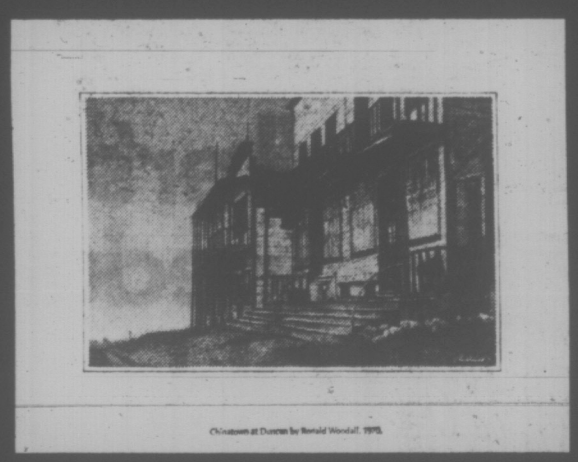
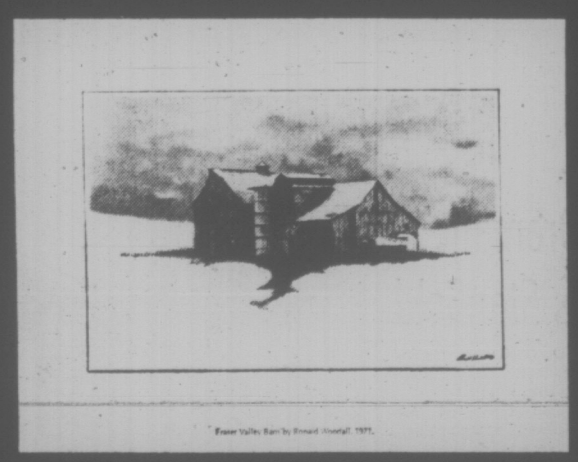
Scott Paper Presents:

This Beautiful Centennial Portfolio of Vanishing B.C. Architecture







This year, we at Scott Paper Limited are celebrating two birthdays. Firstly, British Columbia marks its 100th year in Confederation. And secondly, we at Scott are about to celebrate the 50th year that we have made our home in this great province.
This fine occasion seemed an appropriate time to take a nostalgic look at the past and we have, therefore, made available this beautiful portfolio of four full-colour framing prints.
The paintings, by B. C. artist Ronald Woodall, depict vivid examples of our fast disappearing pioneer architecture; an abandoned farm homestead; a boarded general store; a crumbling Fraser Valley barn; the remnants of a Vancouver Island Chinatown.

Each of these delicate works is exquisitely reproduced in full colour on rich 17" by 12½" cover stock, and is ideally suited for framing. Each set is enclosed in a handsome descriptive portfolio. This valuable collection has been produced as a very limited edition and is available for $5.00 per set (which includes postage and handling) from Scott Paper only during the Centennial celebrations, so be sure to place your order now.

Chou Wouldn't Harbor Young Radicals

By BOGDAN KIPLING
Financial Times News Service

(Editor's note: Bogdan Kipling, Financial Times of Canada's bureau chief in Ottawa, recently visited China with the Canadian economic mission. Today, in the third of five feature articles, he describes the generation gap in China.)

PEKING — The young radicals of the new left or the far left in Canada may be surprised to know that as far as Premier Chou En-lai is concerned, they are "taking the incorrect road."

Chou told the Canadian economic mission here recently that China's powerful revolutionary committees are being reorganized — to make sure that older and middle-aged members make all the decisions.

In other words, the young people must heed their elders.

Older people, Chou said, have acquired experience and wisdom that constitutes "valuable property" to the state. Youth, on the other hand, cannot expect to have the right answers because they can only be found after "repeatedly running into the wall" and learning from mistakes.

Chou invoked Chairman Mao Tse-tung and the People's Liberation Army to illustrate his point. Chairman Mao, he said, gained his wisdom in 50 years of revolutionary struggle — it did not come to him all in one piece.

The army, he said, has been brought into the revolutionary committees because the men in it are a special breed after 44 years of struggle. This unique revolutionary tradition enables them to keep the committees on the straight and narrow. These committees run almost everything in the country.

Today, only about one member in five on the revolutionary committees represents the youth wing of the movement. At the height of the cultural revolution, from 1966 to 1969, the youth movement was highly visible and vocal, with the Red Guards in the ascendent.

Today Chou says that many of the young people wanted to negate everything that had been achieved in the last 20 years. Ambitious men — revisionists, leftists, anarchists — had tried to use the young people for their own ends. Many have been arrested and face trial. But many have not been punished, Chou said, because not all of them had wrong motives. Given proper education, they can again find the "correct road" consistent with the thoughts of Chairman Mao.

Chou noted that hippies and other young people in the U.S. and elsewhere are looking for a way out of their societies, but they are not finding "the correct road."

Quoting Lenin, he added that the young must be forgiven their mistakes. As to Maoism, he said it is very difficult for the young to distinguish between the genuine and the fake philosophy.

Dropping out, using drugs and "doing your own thing" would be totally unacceptable in modern China. The lives of young people are governed by the state, for the state.

★ ★ ★

Chinese officials say that the cultural revolution has moved to a different stage, called transformation. Education, the system of government and institutions in general are still in an experimental stage. It has not yet been decided, Chou said, how best to allot the time among study, work and political activity in the schools.

But the general practice is for students to spend two or three years after university in manual labor, on the land or in the factories.

Moreover, some graduates will remain as manual workers even though they are academically qualified for other work. Others will go on to work in their specialties and some return to universities after their years of manual work to take up advanced studies. There is little personal choice involved.

One interpretation of the authoritarian approach is that the older generation of revolutionaries is telling the young that while they, who created and fought for the revolution, are still around, they mean to run the show.

It could also mean that despite China's conscious efforts to reshape its traditions, the respect for age and experience is deeply ingrained.

CHINESE ACCEPT OFFER OF TABLE TENNIS TOUR

OTTAWA (CP) — The Table Tennis Association of China has accepted an invitation to tour Canada at a time to be fixed later.

Roy Cannon, executive director of the Canadian Table Tennis Association, said he had received the information from the Chinese embassy here and the association has begun actively preparing for the tour.

Dates would be forthcoming from the Chinese and he hoped the tour would extend across the country.

The offer was made officially May 17, following up a verbal invitation when Canadian table tennis players were among those invited to China earlier this year.

Softball Playoffs

The B.C. championship in midget boys' softball will be played at View Royal Saturday and Sunday.

Teams competing will be View Royal, Clearbrook and Kamloops.

First game is at 11 a.m. Saturday.

In other tournaments:

Sooke meets Nanaimo in a best-of-three bantam boys' event at Sooke starting at 1 p.m.

The Colwood district championship for juvenile girls will be decided at Cordova Bay, with five teams competing.

Games start at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Juvenile boys play their championship at Esquimalt, starting at noon Sunday. Three teams are competing.

Famous Coach Said 'Critical'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Frank Leahy, who stepped down as Notre Dame football coach in 1953 after leading the Irish to four national titles, remained in critical condition today after undergoing surgery.

Leahy has a heart condition, and the operation was to remove fatty tissue interfering with the functions of the kidneys and liver," his doctor said.

The family did not disclose the nature of Leahy's ailment. "Two years ago, it was diagnosed as a mild case of leukemia," the younger Leahy said. "No one knows for sure."

Teamsters Crush Saanich Firemen

Kim Browning, hitting for four goals and four assists, and Mike Yager, with four tallies and two helpers, fired the big bombs Thursday at Pearkes Arena as an Esquimalt Teamsters demolished Saanich OK Tire 14-1 in a South Vancouver Island Intermediate Lacrosse League game.

Jim Gray, Keith Treichel and Doug Casperson each counted twice for the Teamsters while Steve Meadows scored a third-period goal for Saanich.

With standard equipment like power steering and power front disc brakes, automatic transmission, and exclusives like AccuDrive II suspension and trued tires, it simply has to be the most car for your money. Buick.

That's the kind of value you expect from a full-size Buick. And right now your Buick dealer is making it easy for you to own the Buick you want.

There's a lot more to Buick value with features like a V8 as standard equipment. And it's no ordinary V8. It has nickel-plated exhaust valves for longer valve life, and a semi-closed cooling system that should never overheat.

Driving a Buick is a new experience. The power front disc brakes feature a proportioning valve for more even braking. Buick's AccuDrive II suspension improves handling. And Buick's "trued" tires make Buick's famed smooth ride even smoother.

To help reduce corrosion, Buick's body features open channel rocker panels. And to make riding in your Buick a quiet pleasure, there's double-roof construction with extra sound deadening.

In all, Buick gives you more car for your money. And right now, your Buick dealer is making it easy for you to own a Buick. He's got a big selection of well-equipped models. And if you want to talk deal, he's easy to talk to.

Now, wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

The business of auto safety.

Auto safety is everyone's concern. But it's our business.

And we think the attention that's being paid to auto safety now is a good thing. Because it will result in better driving for everyone.

And, frankly, better driving for everyone means better business for us.

We say Buick is something to believe in. That's why we're trying to make it easy to be safe by putting in safety features that work by themselves. You don't have to do anything to make them work.

Like Side-guard beams. And the energy-absorbing steering column. And the Cargo-guard between the trunk and back seat. They start "working" even before you get in the car.

But two safety features, two of the most vital, are worthless unless you do something first.

Seat and shoulder belts.

Unfastened they do nothing. And you've seen enough statistics to know what a difference they can make. So use them.

But that's not all you can do. Because the most effective safety feature of all can't be added to our cars or anybody else's.

That feature is you. And the way you drive.

Which should be defensively. And rested. And sober.

We're all in this together. And together we can solve the auto safety problem once and for all.

And the time is now.

DEVELOPMENT LOANS UP 12 PER CENT

OTTAWA (CP) — Loans and investments of the Industrial Development Bank totalled $531,285,371 outstanding at June 30, the bank reported today.

The figure was up 12 per cent from a year earlier.

A subsidiary of the Bank of Canada, it helps finance small and medium-sized businesses that cannot find funds elsewhere at commercial rates of interest.

The IDB reported it authorized loans and investments totalling $50,271,000 in April, May and June, the third quarter of its current fiscal year.

This was up seven per cent from the same quarter last year.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

EDITOR: G.S. KENT

Colcel

Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd. reports a net loss of $4.35 million for the six months to June 31 and president George Scrimshaw said the result reflected continued softness in the world pulp market.

The loss compared with a net profit of $84,000 in the corresponding period last year. Sales in the six months this year totalled $37.8 million compared with $45.67 million a year ago.

Seaway

Seaway Multi-Corp. Ltd., of Toronto reduced general and administrative overhead by 85 per cent in the first quarter of this year and came "close to breaking even."

As previously reported, the company had a loss of $856,625 in 1970, compared with a profit of $1.85 million in 1969.

In the first 1971 quarter Seaway had a loss of $140,000 compared with a profit of $65,000 a year earlier, attributed to an operating loss of $34,000 and a deduction of $106,000 to cover unpaid dividends.

Sales declined to $17 million from $18 million.

North. Gas

Northern Natural Gas Co. of Omaha, Neb., has agreed with Magnorth Petroleum Ltd. of Calgary to undertake a $9.5-million exploration program on Magnorth acreage in the Arctic.

Northern natural is to spend slightly less than $2 million a year over a five-year period in exchange for a 25-per-cent working interest in the 13.8 million acres.

Northern may continue exploration work for an additional four years at a cost of $26 million with the earned interest increasing to 50 per cent, and will have first right to any gas declared surplus to Canadian needs by the National Energy Board.

Labatt

Final approval of the sale of Oland and Son Ltd., breweries in Halifax and St. John to John Labatt Ltd. has been given by Oland shareholders.

Operations will be carried on under the title Oland's Breweries (1971) Ltd., being the maritime region of Labatt's, with John W. Murray as vice-president and chief executive officer. Bruce S. Oland remains president.

Louisbourg

Oswal, Drinkwater and Graham Ltd., of Montreal, will underwrite shares to a total $300,000 to finance development of 152 copper-molybdenum-zinc claims of Louisbourg Mines Ltd. in Cape Breton..

In addition, the company has entered into a joint venture with United Asbestos Corp. Ltd. for property development, in which the latter will spend $250,000 over three years to earn 75 per cent of the rights.

United holds a further three-year option to secure another 10 per cent for a cash payment of $250,000.

Crown Cork

Six months net earnings of Crown Cork and Seal were up five cents a share from 64 cents to 69 cents on the basis of $14.12 million net earnings vs. $13.13 million a year earlier. Sales totalled $222 million and $203 million.

In the second quarter, earnings totalled $7.7 million or 38 cents a share vs. $7.1 million (35 cents). Sales were $114.9 million compared with $106.9 million.

Riviera

Vancouver-based Riviera Industries and Resources Ltd. has agreed to buy two office blocks and an unfinished hotel in Djakarta, Indonesia, from private owners in Indonesia and Hong Kong.

It is estimated 1972 earnings will total $500,000, after completion of the hotel's 331 rooms in October of this year.

Sale price is $4.38 million, subject to shareholder and regulatory authority approval, in the form of $2.78 million in a 4-per-cent debenture issued by Riviera for an eight-year term, and $1.59 million in the form of 2.66 million common shares in the company.

Coca Cola

Second quarter net earnings of Coca Cola Bottling of New York amounted to a total 40 cents a share compared with 36 cents based on operating net earnings of $2.2 million vs. $1.69 million.

There was an extraordinary credit of $501,000.

Sales were $35.2 million against $25 million a year ago.

Export Boom Carries On

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's record export performance continued through June, reaching $1,640 million and bringing the half-year total to more than $8,731 million, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

It was both the highest monthly figure and the highest half-year total on record, taking seasonal factors into account.

June exports were $98 million higher than a year ago, with shipments to the United States up by $83 million. While Canada's export trade has been booming for more than a year, exports to the U.S. lagged behind the growth rate because of the economic slow-down there.

Three-quarters of the June increase was attributed to automotive products, crude petroleum, lumber and wheat, following the trend of earlier months this year. Exports of nickel and copper in dollar terms were down, mainly because of lower prices.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA — Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollar was quoted by Royal Bank at $1.01¾ for cheques, $1.01⅛ for cash, $1.00⅝ for silver. Selling rates were $1.02¾ for cheques and $1.02⅞ for cash.

NOON PRICES

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.02¼. Pound sterling was unchanged at $2.47⅜.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was down 1-32 at 97¾ in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling was unchanged at $2.41⅞.

FARM HELP COSTS AVERAGE $1.38 AN HOUR

OTTAWA (CP) —Farm help in Canada costs an average of $1.38 an hour plus board.

Many figures reported Thursday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that last year farmers could hire a hand for $1.32 an hour and the year before for $1.27, as long as they provided room and board.

Without board, farm workers average $1.65 an hour this year. Last year they were paid $1.58, compared with $1.51 in 1969.

Highest-paid farm workers are in British Columbia, where the going rate is $1.61 an hour plus board. Ontario is second highest at $1.51. Wages on the Prairies range from $1.41 in Alberta to $1.31 in Manitoba. Saskatchewan hands earn $1.32.

The average wage east of the Ontario border is $1.15 an hour.

CONVICTS SCUFFLE WITH POLICE GUARDS

KINGSTON (CP) — Police and prison guards scuffled with a number of convicts who refused to enter the courtroom Thursday, third day of preliminary hearings on charges of non-capital murder against 13 Kingston penitentiary prisoners.

The afternoon session was delayed for 75 minutes as convicts refused to enter the courtroom, scuffled and hurled insults and threats at police and prison guards.

The skirmish apparently started at the end of the lunch hour recess when Brian William Dodge, one of the accused, declined to board a bus at Kingston penitentiary for transport back to court. He was carried on to the bus.

However, the convicts were quiet once the hour-long afternoon session was under way.

B.C. Builders Angered By Letting of Contract

B.C. construction contractors resent a charge by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant that they are inferior to a Montreal company chosen to oversee construction of the government's Vancouver skyscraper.

"Even before the bids were opened we had decided Concordia (Management Ltd.) the best firm for the job. They were judged on their merits and experience and personnel," Chant said.

Concordia's low bid of $935,000 was coincidental, the minister added.

Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C. president B. L. Blain replied:

"In making the award of this contract Chant suggests the award was made on the basis of expertise, merit and ability, and that price was secondary.

"It is not possible for the contractor of B.C. to interpret that in any other way than how it sounds. He says the eastern firms have more ability and expertise than our B.C. contractors," Blain said.

The association president wired Premier Bennett: "The status of B.C. in the field of construction will certainly suffer if the award of this B.C. government contract is made by your government to other than a B.C. firm of established reputation."

He said there were no justifiable grounds for allowing the contract to be let outside B.C.

Provincial contractors have wide experience with major projects in B.C., Blain said, pointing to hydro, pulp mill and urban building complexes such as Project 200.

Six B.C. firms had bid on the contract for general supervision of the undertaking, a $50 million 55-storey structure to start in downtown Vancouver this year and be finished in three or four years.

"But it is a fait accompli," Blain said, and the construction industry is prepared to accept the award. However, he said, the government is urged that preference be shown to B.C. firms when bids are asked for construction phases.

Blain indicated there would be further unrest in the construction industry if these contracts go to outside firms. He noted: "Any outside firms would have to make their peace with local labor."

SAILPAST HEADS TUESDAY EVENTS

The sailpast of naval ships, planned for 11 a.m. Tuesday off the Beacon Hill Park shoreline, is one of several events arranged to mark the day British Columbia entered Confederation.

As the ships steam past in line, the skies above will have Canadian armed forces' aircraft.

While the ships carry out their sailpast on Tuesday overhead Canadian armed forces' planes will stage a flypast.

Other activities:

4:30 to 6:30 p.m., concert by the Guidone Accordion Band in Centennial Square.

7:30 to 9 p.m., ceremony of the flags at the Legislative Buildings.

9:30 to 10:30 p.m., music by strolling minstrels on Dallas Road.

10:30 p.m., fireworks display from ships off Clover Point.

Centennial Square will be the scene for three programs planned for Saturday, July 24. From 1:30 to 3:15 p.m., there will be a cavalcade of music by the Newcombe Glee Club, followed by an adaptation of Treasure Island by the Bastion Theatre. Then, at 4 p.m., there will be an hour of modern music by The Axil.

FIJI LEADER TO VISIT CITY

The prime minister of Fiji will visit Victoria, Nanaimo and Vancouver later this month.

Prime Minister Sir Kamisese Mara and Lady Mara will arrive in Victoria from Ottawa July 27 and after a tour of the city and government luncheons, will travel to Nanaimo.

The Fiji leader will then tour mainland facilities before returning to Fiji Aug. 1.

Potato Price Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — Potato farmers in British Columbia's lower mainland face a financial disaster on this year's early crop because of slashed prices resulting from dumping by California growers, a marketing spokesman said Thursday.

Ed Gilmore, manager of the B.C. Coast Vegetable Marketing Board, said a $20-a-ton cut in the wholesale price paid lower mainland farmers will hurt farmers currently harvesting.

AIR COMPANY TOLD TO STOP SCHEDULES

OTTAWA (CP) — West Coast Air Services Ltd. of Vancouver has been ordered not to operate scheduled flights between Vancouver and Nanaimo.

The Canadian transport commission told the company that if the ruling is not obeyed the West Coast charter licence could be suspended or cancelled.

The commission says West Coast is permitted to operate charter flights only under its current licence. But there was evidence that it was carrying on a scheduled service between Vancouver and Nanaimo.

The commission received complaints from Air West Airlines Ltd. of Vancouver about the alleged violations.

Dial-a-Mate Approved By City Hall

City finance committee Thursday approed a trade licence for Dial-a-Mate Ltd., a service which will introduce lonely Victorians of similar interests to each other — for a fee.

A spokesman for A. W. Kerr, who will operate the service, said his firm would guarantee 62 dates in the course of a year, in return for $105 per man and $85 per woman.

Kerr's spokesman said the service was needed because "it is a well-known fact that it is difficult to get to know people in Victoria."

Acting Mayor Tom Christie admitted he had reservations about licensing the service, but Ald. Ove Witt pointed out that similar firms operate in all major cities.

Ald. Percy Frampton said it was not the job of council to legislate what people want or don't want. And Ald. Baird said the business would be operating on the principle that there's one born every minute.

City solicitor Terry O'Grady said it would be almost impossible to obtain the bond which the firm had volunteered to post as a guarantee of good faith, but noted that the licence could be revoked if the company failed to carry out its commitments.

A one-year licence was granted.

Equalization Grants Hit By B.C. Tory

Provincial Conservative Leader John de Wolf has warned federal Finance Minister Edgar Benson that continuation of equalization grants without narrowing regional disparities will blow Canada apart.

In at letter Benson, de Wolf writes:

"Five years more of the increasing cost of equalization grants without any substantial reduction in the regional disparities gap is going to blow this nation wide apart, and Quebec and the West will crunch this nation from both sides.

"It won't just be resentment that will explode.

"It will be a rejection of the continuation of a policy that is inherently inefficient, and in terms of requirements, ill-advised."

De Wolf proposed a broad program of economic development for Quebec including possible regional free trade arrangements, to make Quebec self-sufficient financially. The same should be done for the Maritimes, he said.

Benson this week announced that equalization grants would continue for another five years. They currently distribute money from Ontario, B.C. and Alberta to the other seven provinces.

De Wolf's party has no seats in the B.C. legislature.

OWNER OF SENATORS TRIES MANY GIMMICKS . . .

. . . BUT WASHINGTON FANS AVOID BASEBALL PARK

He'll Lose Another Million . . . in a Dignified Fashion

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Short, the Washington Senators' financially-troubled owner, has tried everything.

"And I mean everything," he says. "We've given away free trips to Honolulu, new cars, pantyhose, helmets, T-shirts, caps, banners, pennants, copper bracelets, lapel flags and Frank Howard batting gloves trying to get people in our ballpark. I've done anything I thought would help. Somebody even suggested our ball club go out there and play a game topless."

"You wouldn't do that, would you?" a guy asked the Senators' imaginative, always-amiable head man.

"No," Bob Short said. "I would never do anything that's not dignified."

Short lost $600,000 running the Senators his first year in 1969, dropped a million last year and figures he'll go for another million this year, all this in perfectly dignified fashion.

A couple of weeks back an emergency meeting was called in Detroit and the baseball people who attended that meeting did the same thing baseball people always do in any crisis. They formed a three-man committee.

This committee has been given the job of looking into Washington's problems and the men on it are Bowie Kuhn, who used to work behind the scoreboard in Washington, Joe Cronin, who once managed Washington, and Bob Short, who needs another job in Washington like he needs a fungus in his bread box.

The word is running around now that Short will grab his hat and head for Dallas right after this season and that nine of the other 11 American League owners have given him their votes already to move his franchise, only the Orioles and Yankees are said to be opposed.

Short said this is all patent nonsense.

"I don't have any votes that I know about because I've never put the question before anybody, and when and if I ever do I don't think anybody could predict what the vote would be."

Some staunch traditionalists claim baseball must maintain a franchise in Washington because after all it is the nation's capital and hasn't baseball always been the national pastime? This theory has flaws in it. There really is no such thing as must. What court will say a man or organization must remain rooted anywhere, much less remain anywhere and keep losing money?

Short contends he'd like to keep the Senators where they are.

"We'll keep doing everything to make it work in Washington," he says. "We still have some promotions we haven't tried. Like 'hot pants night.' Finley tried it and drew 44,000 people in Oakland."

What about Ted Williams?

"What about him?" asks Short. "He's in the third year of a five-year contract. We're closer friends than we've ever been. I feel it's a tragedy that I haven't been able to give him better ballplayers."

Short says he'd make the deal for Denny McLain again. The same goes for Curt Flood, whom he'd take back again in a minute.

"I stayed up all one night trying to speak with him on the telephone," says the Washington owner. "I called the hotel where I knew he was in Spain. Over a period of one week I called 30 times and left messages urging Flood to call me back. I spoke with everybody at the hotel. I wanted him back; Williams wanted him back; his teammates wanted him back. But other than that wire he originally sent I've had no communication from him since the day he left."

Flood's sudden flight from the Senators and the country certainly didn't do anything to help Short's financial status, either.

If you really want to know what kind of a man Bob Short is though, maybe this will tell you.

He still likes Curt Flood.

Freak Mishap Kills Golfer

(Times News Services)

Rudolph Roy, 43, was killed Wednesday in what police and golfers consider a one-in-a-million accident in the Montreal suburb of LaSalle.

Roy was on the fourth hole of the Mont Gabriel Golf Club with three playing companions when he drove his tee shot into the woods.

Instead of losing a stroke by bringing the ball back to the fairway, he decided to play the ball from the rough.

Members of the foursome told police that when Roy went to hit his second shot, the shaft of his club snapped. The jagged shaft and club head struck a tree and rebounded at him, lodging in his stomach.

Roy was taken to hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

At Chatham, Mass., Sandra Spuzich and Pam Wilson took a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the 54-hole $20,000 LPGA team championship.

The leaders combined for a four-under-par 68 Thursday in the opening round of the best-ball event — a first on the ladies' tour.

At Winnipeg, Rich Ziegler of St. Louis, Mo., fired a course-record 67 at Rossmere to take a one-stroke lead in the $8,500 Manitoba Open.

Five players sharing second with 68s — Lou Marsden of Thunder Bay; Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont.; Steve LeCrone of Amarillo, Tex.; Don Harrison of Winnipeg, and Blake Richardson of Muskegon, Mich. — also broke the former record of 69.

Another five players were tied at 69.

Victoria's John Morgan was very much in contention with a 71 while Greg Palmer of Nanaimo carded a 73.

At Spokane, amateur Loren Melcher and pro Ron Willey of Vancouver's Marine Drive shared the first-round lead in the Lilac City Open after firing 68s Thursday. Spokane amateurs Steve Storey and Gary Lindeblad shared second with 69s while 13 were bracketed in the 70 group, including Ron Wood of Vancouver and Jim Nolan of Burnaby . . . Pro Bill Greatrex carded a two-under-par 70 at Penticton to take a two-stroke lead in the Penticton Open.

No-Hit Effort Jolts Lake Hill

Lake Hill was involved in a no-hitter for the second consecutive night in Little League area playdowns Thursday.

However, this time they were on the wrong end of it and came out 6-0 losers to Gordon Head in Area II action.

Rick Shenton did the honors for the winners, while Reg King and Mark Charlton combined for a three-hitter and lost.

Lake Hill pitcher Mark McNally-Dawes threw a no-hitter Wednesday in a 16-0 win over Central Saanich.

In an exciting contest in Area I, National survived a four-run rally by Hampton in the third inning and came up with three of their own runs in the fourth to take their game 6-5. Two more wins will assure National of the division championship.

Fairfield downed Triangle in Area III play and American tripped Pat Bay 7-3 in Area IV. Steve Ray pitched a three-hitter for American.

Fairfield collected three runs in the top of the first and never looked back, but Triangle's five errors didn't help them much. Darren Tuele socked a home run for the losers.

American stepped into the final of their division with the win. They will have two chances to defeat the winner of tonight's Layritz-Pat Bay game.

TRAIL HOLDS INSIDE RAIL IN TITLE RUN

COQUITLAM — Trail remained the only unbeaten team in the B.C. Babe Ruth baseball championships Thursday, downing Coquitlam 6-1.

Steve Tambollini picked up the win for Trail, while Graham Hogarth belted the tournament's first home run in a losing cause.

North Vancouver, which ousted Campbell River Thursday, meets New Westminster today with the winner meeting Coquitlam. Winner of that game must beat Trail twice to take the title.

Pirates, Feuding Bosox Take Marathon Struggles

By The Associated Press

Carl Yastrzemski and Billy Conigliaro, the feuding Boston Red Sox outfielders, buried the hatchet, then Rico Petrocelli went out and buried Minnesota Twins.

Petrocelli, upset by a close pitch thrown by Minnesota's Stan Williams in the 13th inning, crashed the next delivery by the Twins' right-hander into the left-field screen for a three-run homer, powering the Red Sox to a 3-0 victory Thursday night.

Elsewhere, Oakland Athletics outslugged Detroit Tigers 8-7, Baltimore Orioles topped California Angels 4-3, Kansas City Royals blanked Cleveland Indians 1-0, Washington Senators trounced Chicago White Sox 8-3 and Milwaukee Brewers nipped New York Yankees 1-0.

CLUBHOUSE WOES

The Boston-Minnesota game was one of the longest scoreless battles in the Red Sox' Fenway Park, one of the smallest fields in the majors. After the contest, the Red Sox were more eager to talk about the length of the game rather than the publicized dissension which had wracked the club in recent days.

Boston manager Eddie Kasko had conducted a 20-minute, closed-door meeting before the game to discuss the Red Sox' internal trouble.

Conigliaro had touched off the strife. He reacted to his brother Tony's California retirement by accusing Yastrzemski of initiating Tony's trade to the Angels last October. Billy also accused Yastrzemski, Reggie Smith and equipment manager Don Fitzpatrick of being part of a conspiracy, with a great deal to say about the running of the team.

The 13-inning Boston-Minnesota game didn't last as long as a National League game in Pittsburgh. The Pirates bounced back three times, then finally won a 17-inning marathon when Roberto Clemente homered to give Pittsburgh a 4-3 victory over San Diego Padres.

The Pirates simply refused to give up against the Padres and as a result, stretched their winning streak to seven games.

San Diego nursed a 1-0 lead into the ninth inning, but the Pirates got the equalizer on Gene Alley's sacrifice fly.

The Padres went into the lead again in the top of the 13th on a pinch homer by Ivan Murrell. But Willie Stargell evened matters in the Pirates half with his 31st homer.

In the 16th, the Padres tried again, pushing across the tie-breaking run, this time on a wild pitch.

But again, the Pirates refused to fold. This time there was only one out in the bottom half of the inning when Richie Hebner tagged his 14th homer of the year, tying it again.

Clemente finished the job in the 17th to end the four-hour, 12-minute marathon.

Marty Taylor Enjoys Mixed Tennis Success

It was a night of mixed success for Marty Taylor in the open city tennis championships Thursday.

Taylor and is partner Wendy Cuppage bounced the second-seeded duo of Roger Skillings and Ruth Trelawny 5-7, 6-2, 6-3 to reach the mixed doubles finals, but then Taylor lost his singles match to defending champion Ernie Cockayne 6-2, 6-2.

The top seed in the mixed doubles, Racquet Club pro Ray Aldeguer and Sally Wood, got a spirited contest from Ivor Goodmanson and Nancy Hill before emerging 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 winners.

Today's top match should be between Skillings, top seed in men's singles, and Goodmanson. First serve is at 5:30 p.m. at the Racquet Club.

Strong Defence Tames Burrards

NEW WESTMINSTER — A strong defensive effort helped New Westminster Salmonbellies get past Vancouver Burrards 8-7 in Western Lacrosse Association action Thursday night at Queen's Park Arena.

Les Norman stopped 33 Vancouver shots in the 'Bellies goal, allowing only Gord Frederickson to beat him twice. Playing-coach Paul Parnell popped three goals for the winners, while Jim Giles and Brent Ojanes added a pair each. Dave Tory scored the other goal.

Vancouver singles were scored by Dennis Quigley, Brian Bergum, Ross McDonald, Dave Litzenberger and Al Tasker.

The win moved Salmonbellies a hefty 13 points in front of the second-place Burrards and Coquitlam Adanacs, and 18 ahead of Victoria Shamrocks, alone in the league basement.

Bell's, Langford Cruise to Victory

Bell's Mens Wear capitalized on 10 hits for 10 runs Thursday to down Gilmour Construction 10-1 in Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League action.

The win enabled Bell's to regain a share of second place with Century Inn.

In other action, leading Langford Drywall moved eight points ahead of the second-place teams with a 5-1 triumph over Sooke Merchants.

FOUR-HIT CHORE

Bob Brown, Bill Shortt and Eric Peterson each hit safely twice for Bell's, with Peterson spinning a four-hitter for the win. Bob Walton was tagged with the loss.

Errors were Langford's livelihood as well, with Sooke committing six, five in the last two innings, to enable the league leaders to stay on top.

Bates Claim Default Win

The official result came easier than the unofficial result to Bate Construction.

The Major Men's Softball League's leaders claimed a default victory Thursday at Central Park when Strathcona Hotel was able to field only eight players.

Bates then edged Strath 1-0 in an exhibition game, Lyall Cornett scoring the only run on a wild pitch with two out in the fourth inning.

MARTIN LEAVES WHIPS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Lou Martin has announced his retirement as general-manager of Winnipeg Whips, citing personal reasons for leaving the International League baseball club which he joined in January.

EAGLE SWITCHES . . . . . ROOKIE QB

Moorhead Now Runner

VANCOUVER — B.C. Lions' rookie Don Moorhead has been shifted from the club's quarterback scramble, temporarily at least.

Head coach Eagle Keys says he'll use Moorhead as a running back in exhibition games tonight and Monday.

Keys says he has not given up on Moorhead as a quarterback, but "it's just that we're so short of personnel we've got to get the most use we can out of people."

Moorhead has been outshined in the struggle for the starting signal-caller's spot by holdover Paul Brothers and ex-Toronto Argonaut Tom Wilkinson. He started Monday's 14-14 loss to Ottawa Rough Riders, but was not able to move the club with authority.

The prized rookie from Michigan will see running action in games tonight in Toronto and in Ottawa Monday.

The club also announced release of three more players. Canadian wide receiver Ted Warkentin, Canadian linebacker Butts Giraud and import defensive tackle Denver Samples were cut from the squad.

Reports on The Outdoors

Lunker spring salmon are still being caught along the shore between Pedder Bay and Otter Point, but anglers seeking a change of pace elsewhere around Vancouver Island need not fear a lack of success.

One marina in Sooke Basin reports that a total of 186 pounds of springs were weighed in Wednesday — from eight boats that had been fishing in the fog off Secretary Island. Boosting the total considerably was a 41.08-pounder taken by Ron Hatch during the evening.

That same morning, Dick Lapp boated 46.08-pounder off Beechey Head, where fishing has been described as "beautiful."

Also on Wednesday, Mike Engel caught a 36.08-pound spring while working along the kelp bed in Pedder Bay. Best catches have been recorded by trolling close to the shore in about 75 feet of water — but watch you don't snag your gear.

Coho returns are spotty along the southwest coast but indications are that an increase in catches is on the way.

●

Word also comes in from commercial fishermen that sockeye and humpback salmon are moving down the west coast in our direction — a little early this year.

Fishing was disrupted in the Constance Bank area earlier this week when a pod of killer whales swam through the vicinity.

Off Oak Bay, springs up to 32 pounds have been taken near Trial Island, The Gap, Fiddle Reef and Discovery Light. Most successful anglers have been fishing deep with eight ounces to two pounds of weight and 80 to 120 feet of line.

Springs tip the scales up to 24 pounds and coho weigh as much as six pounds near the Deep Cove Marker, along the southern Salt Spring Island shore and around Moses Point.

In Saanich Inlet, coho have reached seven pounds in Indian and Coles bays as well as near Henderson Point. Chesterfield Rock and Stone House waters have also yielded up coho.

A few springs up to 15 pounds were reported taken in Tod Inlet, along The Wall to Willis Point and from Mill Bay to McCurdy Point.

●

Things come smaller and dearer in the Duncan area.

Springs weighing around nine pounds and blue backs are coming "to those who want to work for them" northwards through Sansum Narrows and to the east side of Thetis Island. Porlier Pass has also been mentioned as a possibility for fair-to-good returns of both types of salmon.

"Flashtails only" is the report from Nanaimo where coho are providing hot action near Five Fingers. A few springs from 15 to 20 pounds are being caught by strip-casters near the Fingers, the Brickyard and "Neck" Point.

Back on the west coast of the Island, tyee-sized springs are still coming in at the mouth of the Alberni Canal — particularly in Rainy Bay.

Anglers seeking the giant salmon are also picking up the odd good-sized coho when they venture further offshore.

Bucktails seem to be pulling in coho up to eight pounds near Point Holmes, Comox Bar and Little River while anglers in the same area have to search for the few scattered springs.

Long tides have been shifting feed around and slowing down spring returns from inside waters (ie: Frenchman's Pool) near Campbell River but coho averaging six pounds are sparking action off Cape Mudge, Butler's Point and the Bell Buoy.

Better spring fishing may be found off the southern tip of Quadra Island.

As to trout fishing, the warm weather still hasn't begun to affect returns in any way.

Good catches of trout have been reported from the upper reaches of Cowichan River (browns) as well as Elsie, Sproat Cameron, Comox, Upper Campbell, Lower Campbell and Buttle lakes.

NIBBLES: Bowhunters are asked to take note of an error in the B.C. hunting regulations synopsis which is now being distributed throughout the province . . . listed under bow and arrow seasons are the dates Aug. 28-Sept. 3 and Dec. 6 to Dec. 12 . . . it should have read Aug. 28-Sept. 10. Also left out by mistake was the black bear season for the Island: Sept. 11-Dec. 31.

Chinook Club members of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association are reminded of the monthly Sunburn Derby Sunday . . . hours are from daybreak to 12 noon with prize presentation at Angler's Anchorage soon afterward.

IN FINAL of B.C. seniors' golf tournament today was Victoria's Dr. George Bigelow (above). Former champion took only 26 putts Thursday to defeat John Dawson of Vancouver Point Grey two up. Paul Desmarais of Vancouver Club defeated Ernie Brown of McCleery, two up, in other semi-final.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Shaw Advances To PNGA Semis

TACOMA — Victoria city women's champion Dale Shaw was the only Canadian remaining in contention as the Pacific Northwest Golf Association championships moved into the semi-final stage today.

Miss Shaw faced five-time winner Edean Ihlanfeldt of Kirkland while defending champion Jo Ann Washam of Auburn went against Peggy Conley in today's semi-finals.

Three Seattle players and one from Tacoma remained in the men's championship. Tacoma's Clint Names, 32, faced Jim Frost of Seattle and Bob Carlson went against Jim McLean in today's semi-finals.

Miss Shaw fired 10 straight pars at the Fircrest Club here Thursday to defeat Tacoma's Cindy Koblseki 4 and 2. Miss Washam won her semi-final berth by defeating two-time champion Judy Hoetmer of Seattle on the second extra hole.

Mrs. Ihlandfelt sidelined Washington State amateur champ Liz Culver of Bellevue, 3 and 2, while Miss Conley, PNGA runnerup in 1965, beat Sue Dougherty of Bellevue 3 and 2.

Boy-Boy to Quit Rough Boot Loop

ATLANTA (CP) — Kaiser (Boy-Boy) Motaung, one of the most prolific scorers for Atlanta Chiefs, has announced this will be his last season in the North American Soccer League.

Motaung, who led the league in scoring in 1969, cited the increasing roughness in NASL play as the reason for his planned departure.

Trevino Eight Behind Leading Aussie

. . . IN WESTERN OPEN

CHICAGO (AP) — Golf's have-nots, as far as PGA victories this year are concerned, are dominating the Western Open golf tournament and if Lee Trevino doesn't make the cut after today's second round, the old tourney itself could become a have-not.

The streaking Trevino, winner of the U.S., Canadian and British Opens within the last month, found his iron shots flying spinlessly from the long fairway grass and struggled over the storied Olympia Fields course in three-over-par 74 Thursday.

The efferescent Mexican-American, followed by most of the 11,100 gallery, was eight strokes off the pace set by 35-year-old Australian, Bruce Crampton.

Two Canadians were well back in the field.

Ben Kern of Toronto had a 74 and was tied with Trevino while Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver fired a 78.

Crampton's 66, one over the competitive course record, included 11 one-putt greens and a remarkable string of putts from 50, 35, 60, 14 and 12 feet before missing two successive four-footers.

"It's just fate when those long ones drop," said Crampton, whose last victory was the $250,000 Westchester Open last year.

Looking over Crampton's shoulder were Tommy Aaron at 67, Dale Douglass with 68 and a group at 69—Dick Lotz, Chuck Montalbano, Bobby Greenwood, Gay Brewer, Phil Rodgers and Bobby Brue.

None has won a tournament this year.

All-Stars Ready For Title Defence

Coach Bernie Anderson has announced the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League all-star team which opens defence of its Canadian championship this weekend.

The team's pitchers will be Bob Mabee, Less Brice and Pete Jolly. Infielders are Mike McAvoy, Barry Harvey, John Yankoski, Mike Embury, Jerry Lister, Larry Montgomery, Lorne Bunyan and Chris Hall.

Outfielders are Russ Holmes, Lon Miles, Gordie Strongman and Doug Hill.

The team plays Mid-Island all-stars Saturday and Sunday, with the winner of the best-of-three series moving to New Westminster for the provincial championship.

GREAVES PULL AHEAD

In league play Thursday, Greave's Movers earned themselves a little breathing room atop the standings by manufacturing a 4-0 win over second-place Farmer Construction.

The win moved Greaves one-and-a-half games in front of Farmers, with Greaves also enjoying three games in hand.

Brice fired a three-hitter for the victory, getting nine-hit support from his teammates.

Pakistan Unlikely to Take Refugees Back

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuter) — Georges C. Lachance, vice-chairman of the Canadian Commons external affairs committee, said today "Pakistan is not much interested in getting refugees back from India."

Speaking before he and two colleagues who toured East Pakistan for three days left here, he added:

"Why should they be? Those who are not Hindus they regard as miscreants, students and other difficult people."

More than six million refugees have fled to India from East Pakistan since the civil war broke out in March.

The situation following the Pakistan army crackdown to establish president Yanya Khan's authority "poses a central dilemma which is apparently insoluble," Lachance said.

"If the army leaves, people will kill each other. If the army stays, people won't return from hiding and nothing will work properly.

"In East Pakistan today you're Bengali or nothing. I saw no sign anything is normal."

STILL IDOLIZE LEADER

Lachance said Sheikh Mijibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader imprisoned by the government, remained an idol in the province.

The general feeling was that "Bangla Desh (the name given by East Pakistanis to their province) will win in the long run but it may be a very long run," he added.

Lachance, Liberal member of the Commons for Montreal Lafontaine, and two other Canadian MPs—Andrew Brewin, New Democratic party member for Toronto Greenwood, and Heath Macquarrie, Progressive Conservative member for Hillsborough in Prince Edward Island—previously visited West Pakistan.

The three members of the Commons external affairs committee left for New Delhi today.

Lachance said they hoped to probe Indian reaction to President Yahya's offer, made to them during a meeting in Islamabad, to go anywhere at any time to meet Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to ease the Indo-Pakistan tension.

FEW REFUGEES RETURN

He said Palestine government reception centres for returning refugees along the border with India were "mostly window-dressing." One centre they visited showed a total of 1,300 people having returned since it was set up in May, he added.

The three Canadians found the clandestine Radio Bangla Desh a major morale booster in East Pakistan and people did not hide their hatred of the army, Lachance said.

He said they found evidence of shelling from across the Indian border but an officer told them he believed it came from rebels drawing on Indian support.

They believed the East Pakistan's main port, Chittagong, had one-fifth of its normal-population with a cargo turnover of barely 4,000 tons a day, he added.

Lachance said he and his colleagues agreed that Canada should contribute through the United Nations to food relief and first aid programs in East Pakistan.

"East Pakistan faces severe food problems in two or three months and need should be anticipated.

"Such aid might also help psychologically in easing Pakistan's feeling she is despised and rejected in the world which itself is the cause of much trouble.

"It would also demonstrate that we are as much concerned about the citizens who remain as about those who leave the country."

Teen-ager Found Dead

VANCOUVER (CP) — Louise Wise, 16, daughter of a Vancouver policeman, was found stabbed to death in her East End home Thursday.

Her body was found by a neighbor who had just returned from holidaying with the girl's parents, Constable and Mrs. John Wise.

The girl's body was found in the living room area of the neat stucco bungalow.

One report said the telephone had been ripped from the wall.

City Orchestra To Play in Park

The Victoria Concert Orchestra will be featured in Beacon Hill Park at the Cameron Memorial Pavilion on Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

The orchestra will be under the direction of James Fraser, well-known violinist and teacher.

Fraser will conduct the 30-piece orchestra in overtures, marches, waltzes and Broadway selections. Violin soloist will be Elfreda Gleam, Concert Master of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

Rounding out the program will be the Pepsichords Quartet from the local chapter of Sweet Adelines Incorporated. Master of ceremonies will be Joe Easingwood.

Indian MPs Urged

REGINA (CP) — Canadian Indians must be represented in Ottawa by a member of Parliament and a senator for each region if they are ever to participate effectively, George Manuel, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, said Thursday.

He told the brotherhood meeting that representation would be to protect rights and not be a substitute or a means of surrender to government authority.

"We can get more mileage when Indians are directly represented by Indian people because they would be subject to pressure of Indian people," he said.

Nomination Won

CALGARY (CP) — Normie Kwong, 41, a former fullback with Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League, has been nominated to contest Calgary Millican for the Progressive Conservatives in the next Alberta general election.

★ ★ ★

Legal Aid Bill

WINNIPEG (CP) — A bill establishing the framework for a government-supported system of legal aid has been introduced in the Manitoba legislature. The bill would set up the legal services society of Manitoba to provide legal help without charge to anyone unable to pay, or at partial charge to those able to pay some of the cost.

★ ★ ★

Bank Talks Stall

REGINA (CP) — The new Saskatchewan New Democratic Party government has received no official word from Manitoba on a proposal that the two provinces start a Western bank.

The Manitoba NDP government has been studying the feasibility of setting up a bank and since the Saskatchewan election in June, Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer has been talking about joining forces with Saskatchewan to come up with the 10 million dollars required to start the bank.

However, a spokesman in Premier Allan Blakeney's office said Thursday there have been no approaches recently from Manitoba on the proposal.

Pay Boost Planned

WINNIPEG (CP) — Members of the Manitoba legislature would have a $2,400 tax-free expense allowance in addition to their $7,200 sessional indemnity under a bill distributed Thursday.

The bill, if adopted, would mean a one-third increase in income that ordinary members derive from the legislature. The $2,400 allowance now is part of the indemnity.

In addition, members representing constituencies that are not wholly within Greater Winnipeg would get a further allowance of $600 a session under the proposed legislation.

No change is proposed in the $15,600 annual salary, which includes $2,200 for expenses, paid to cabinet ministers in addition to the sessional indemnity.

Snake Returns

EDMONTON (CP) — Geronimo, a wanderlust 5½-foot boa constrictor who had area residents treading lightly after he disappeared three weeks ago, is back home.

The tropical snake escaped from his backyard cage June 24 and his owner, Marianne Duemler, 16, notified area residents and police lest someone injure her pet. She said he is harmless.

Geronimo disappeared just before recent cold, rainy weather, leading Marianne to believe her pet probably was curled up somewhere to wait it out.

Warm weather returned this week, and so did Geronimo.

Farmland Flooded

EDMONTON (CP) — The Pembina River, between Minola and Jarvie, began flooding Wednesday night, adding to the farming areas affected by this week's floods in northern Alberta.

Majeed Mustapha, flood forecaster for the provincial department of environment, said today the water has gone over low-lying banks in the 50-mile stretch downstream from the junction of the Pembina and Paddle rivers.

Minola is near Barrhead, 50 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Assistant Resigns

EDMONTON (CP) — Don Hamilton Thursday announced his resignation as executive assistant to Premier Harry Strom, to run as a Social Credit candidate in the next provincial election. The resignation is effective immediately.

Hamilton was nominated earlier this summer in Edmonton - Whitemud- constituency, a riding created as part of the provincial redistribution.

The new Edmonton-Whitemud constituency takes in a large portion of that represented in the last legislature by Progressive Conservative MLA Don Getty. Redistribution increases the number of seats in the Alberta legislature to 75 from 65.

Lang Regrets Wheat Pay Delay

WINNIPEG (CP) — There will be a gap between the end of the Temporary Wheat Reserves Act payments and the beginning of transitional acreage payments, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, said Thursday he personally regrets the fact.

Both measures, part of a new grains policy package tied to a grain receipts stabilization program, failed to pass Parliament before the summer adjournment last month and await the fall session.

The Wheat Reserves Act, under which the federal government paid storage charges on wheat in excess of 178 million bushels and on which payments have averaged $40 million a year since 1956, will end at the July 31 end of the crop year current when Parliament gives its approval.

Payments of the $100 million transitional fund, on the basis of $1.45 an acre to a maximum of 640 eligible acres, will begin within a few days after the measure gets royal assent.

Collection of farmers' premiums under the grain receipts stabilization program will begin at a date to be fixed by regulation, perhaps a couple of weeks after the legislation is passed.

Lang said he had hoped to get the entire package approved at the spring session and in operation by the start of the 1971-72 crop year Aug. 1.

The minister spoke at a news conference in the first of a series of western appearances to explain the federal government's new grain policies.

Disease Kills Fish

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — A mysterious fish disease known as furunculosis has killed large numbers of fish at the government hatchery at Sumas, in the Fraser Valley about 45 miles east of Vancouver.

The disease was reported earlier at the Summerland hatchery in the Okanagan Valley, where the mortality rate was reported to be 80 per cent. The mortality rate at Sumas is reported to be somewhat less but is still considered serious.

$100,000 Bail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bail of $100,000 was set Thursday for Joseph Donzelli, 39, of Vancouver, one of three persons charged earlier in the day after police seized heroin valued at more than $1 million on the illicit market.

Donzelli, his 27-year-old wife, Maria, and Jack Stone, 54, alias Jacob Lenhardt, were charged with possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking after police seized 11 pounds of heroin.

Bail for Maria Donzelli was set at $2,500. Bail for Stone was to be set today.

10-Year Term Given

VANCOUVER (CP) — Murray Kenneth Nolan, who went on a cheque-writing spree during his third time out on parole, was sentenced Thursday to 10 years in prison, the maximum sentence under the Canada Criminal Code.

"If ever a man deserved the maximum sentence to protect the public, Nolan is that man," said Pprovincial court Judge William Selbie.

Men Sentenced

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Two men were sentenced Thursday to a year definite and year indeterminate in prison for what provincial court judge Ken Arkell called a "dirty, vicious attack" on another man outside a Dawson Creek beer parlor. Judge Arkell sentenced Richard Bejrose, 18, of Peace River, Alberta, and Lyle Descateaux, 20, of Dawson Creek, when they changed their plea to guilty from innocent.

WORLD CHAMPION BRINGS OWN TUB . . . . . FOR RACE AT NANAIMO

Sailing King Also Bathtub Whiz

By PAT DUFOUR

An Australian teenager in Victoria to race in the Thunderbird world championship sailing series which was to finish today, has bathtubs on his mind.

So much so, he's brought his own with him from Sydney.

Jamie Wilmot, 18, as a sideline to sailing, has set his sights on winning the annual Nanaimo bathtub race July 25. He's had some experience at the game — he won when Sydney decided to follow Nanaimo's example and run its own version last June.

The freckle-faced youngster has a backup crew of manager Jack Murray and Fred Symons, who will keep the Aussies' fiberglass bathtub in working order.

The tub team from "down under" is being sponsored by CP Air.

But even if he's successful at Nanaimo, Jamie says there's no way you can woo him from his first love — sailing.

He has a habit of winning in that game too.

With "Tiny" Barnes as crew, Jamie recently captured the world championships in Cherubs at Perth, beating out about 60 other boats from New Zealand, England, South Africa and his own country.

Jamie describes the Cherub — a 12-foot dinghy raced with main, jib and spinnaker — as "very lively" and an ideal competitive boat.

★ ★ ★

Some of the San Diego boats that were trailed up here by their owners to compete in the Thunderbird Worlds have an interesting little gimmick that would come in mighty hand in these waters.

Using a little American know-how, the skippers have a kelp-cutter attached to the forward edge of their boat's keel. It's a small blade that can be worked up and down the edge by means of a rod controlled from up forward.

JAMIE WILMOT
. . . Cherub champ

Anyone who's blown their chance of winning by running through a kelp patch during a race will appreciate the ingenuity of this efficient little rig.

★ ★ ★

You'd think after a whole week of top-flight competition that local Thunderbird skippers and crews would be quite content to loaf a bit this weekend.

Not our friends at Cadboro Bay.

This weekend they'll be competing in a long-distance race for the Totem Cruising Trophy!

Also getting down to a spot of cruising will be the Victoria Cruising Club. After rendezvouing at Pirates Cove on De Courcy Island they will be off on a two-week jaunt.

For members of the Victoria Canoe Club on Sunday there will be a familiarization session in preparation for the annual Gorge race led by Tom Smith.

★ ★ ★

Sometimes the political wheels in Ottawa grind a little faster when they're primed with a little pressure from the west coast.

The man who's performed what sometimes appears akin to a miracle is Cmdr. Alex Kilpatrick of the B.C. Boat Association.

Last week he wrote Minister of Communications Gerard Pelletier, asking that Channel 9 on the Citizen Band Radio be set aside as an emergency channel in the interests of better water safety. He also bent the ear of Victoria MP David Groos.

This week he had a letter from W. J. Wilson, head of the department's telecommunications regulation branch, informing him that regulations are to be amended in order to keep the channel clear for emergency calls.

Kilpatrick and his organization don't intend to rest on their laurels. Next, they're going after some action on lifejackets.

It's about time!

★ ★ ★

Most boaters will agree that a lifejacket approved by the federal department of transport doesn't do you much good if you're not wearing it when it's needed.

Because of their bulkiness, the majority of boaters carry them along on their boats because they must if they're to keep within the law. But they rely on some more comfortable alternative in the way of a floater jacket or other unapproved gear.

As long as this is done, it makes good sense that the lifesaving qualities of these alternative rigs should be tested by the department and the results made public.

SHORT TACKS — Victoria has won itself another convert through the Thunderbird world series. Orville White, a Montreal high school teacher, came here to crew. He likes what he's seen and has decided to head back to stay as soon as he can.

6 little car disasters

Read how you can avoid them—with J CLOTH* Towels in your glove box.

1 You spill ash on your pants. A dry J CLOTH Towel works like a clothes-brush, removing almost every speck of ash. Try it, and see.

2 You get a flat. Flats are one thing. Greasy dirt on your hands is another. A J CLOTH Towel gets the mess off your hands. Before you get the mess on your clothes.

3 Spattered headlights cut down your visibility at night. Because J CLOTH Towels have little mud-trapping holes, they quickly wipe your lights clean and smear-free.

4 You miss the car-wash. Use the towels for washing and polishing. They are soft and strong enough for chrome or paintwork. The towels rinse clean in a flash, dry in minutes.

5 The defogger doesn't. It happens to the best of cars. Yet a J CLOTH Towel will wipe away fog in seconds, leaving your windshield dry and streak-free.

6 It's 90° in the shade. If you're taking a long, hot trip, try this—put a wet J CLOTH Towel in a plastic bag. Use it to freshen up your hands and face. (Or buy a $600 air conditioner).

J CLOTH Towels have 1,001 uses

Man Found With Gun Near Nixon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 55-year-old chauffeur, who police said was carrying a .25-calibre pistol outside the restaurant where President Nixon dined Thursday night, was arrested on charges of carrying a concealed weapon, police said.

"There was definitely no assassination attempt — nothing connected with the president," said police Detective Joe Guzy.

Police said Harold W. Kendzora was taken into custody in the parking lot of a restaurant.

Press Cut Off More and More From PM

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The press has been forced slowly but inexorably into retreat from the East Block, business home of the prime minister and the cabinet.

Thursday, reporters were herded behind white ropes cordoning off the sidewalk from the East Block exit to Prime Minister Trudeau's limousine.

The cabinet normally meets every Thursday. When Parliament is adjourned, as now, it is customary for the press to try to buttonhole the prime minister and other cabinet ministers as they leave the weekly meeting for comment on national issues.

In the days of Liberal prime minister Louis St. Laurent, reporters used to gather on the second floor of the last Block in the corridor between the cabinet room and prime ministerial office.

Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker added a couple of couches in this corridor so some reporters could sit in comfort while waiting for the cabinet to disperse. Others still stood.

USED ROOM

Liberal prime minister Lester Pearson felt the corridor crush was getting out of hand. He met reporters in a first-floor room in the East block set aside for that purpose.

Prime Minister Trudeau used this room once or twice in his first days in office in the spring of 1968.

Then it was abandoned and reporters had to wait outside the building.

On rainy days, reporters were allowed to wait in the room-like entrance hall to the East Block. But this chamber was converted into a guard room last winter and now it's the sidewalk only for the press.

But the ropes were a new twist Thursday. Reporters were ordered behind them by the RCMP officers and constables on duty, who refused to say where their orders had come from.

A Mountie stood at each side of the exit. When a cabinet minister appeared, they saluted him and, one on each side, escorted him down the rope corridor past the press.

Some ministers did stop to reply to questions.

Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien got mixed up in microphone cords thrust across the rope channel. A reporter and Mr. Chretien got a shove from the Mounties trying to make a way for him. Mr. Chretien was not amused.

WOMAN SHOVED

A few tourists also got pushed away from the prime minister's waiting car. One woman was among those pushed—not gently.

Somebody commented that the security was tighter than last October during the Quebec terrorist situation. Reporters were not roped off from Mr. Trudeau at that time.

Mr. Trudeau, when he emerged, chatted with some of the tourists, who numbered about 250 and who were also standing behind the ropes. He ignored reporters' requests for comments on the unemployment situation.

"What's up?" one tourist asked a Mountie.

"It's the end of a cabinet meeting," the Mountie replied.

"Is that all?" the tourist asked.

Before the Judge

Judge William Ostler Thursday denied a teen-ager's request for probation because he said experience had shown him that the boy's attempts to overcome a drug habit wouldn't work in the street.

Ostler sentenced Thomas P. Clegg, 18, of 3368 Shelbourne to six months definite and six months indefinite to New Haven detention unit for young offenders for forging nine stolen cheques totalling $1,250 and cashing them between February and mid-June.

Clegg told Ostler that he didn't feel a presentence report was being fair when it did not recommend probation.

He said he wanted a chance to prove he could quit his involvement in MDA, an addictive drug. He said he and his girlfriend had resolved to do this and planned seeing a psychoanalyst to work toward this end.

The judge said he knew the jail sentence would be hard to accept but that it was best for Clegg.

"Apart from being terribly alarming, it's heartbreaking. The way you're all ruining your lives is just shocking — very depressing and upsetting.

"I'm sorry for you and I'm sorry for your parents, who must be desperate, and I'm sorry for all the other many parents in this area who must also be desperate."

An official for the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Mayfair branch, appeared and asked for restitution of five cheques cashed at his bank. After noting that the accused was "greatly in debt" Ostler ordered Clegg to repay the bank $820.

Bombing Probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover confirmed Thursday that anti-war activists have claimed and the justice department has refused to acknowledge—a Detroit grand jury is investigating the March 1 bombing of the U.S. capitol.

An Indiana man who helped organize anti-war protests here was arrested as a material witness in the grand jury's investigation, but has not been called to testify.

Larry E. Canada of Bloomington, Ind., has been quoted by friends in the anti-war movement as saying he would not answer questions when brought before the grand jury. Two other persons have been subpoenaed to appear.

At the time of his arrest in late May, the justice department would not disclose the grand jury's purpose.

Caution Greets U.K. Price Curb Plan

LONDON (CP) — Proposals by major British industries to limit future price increases as a means of curbing inflation—similar in some ways to a Canadian move last year—were received with cautious approval Thursday.

Under the proposals, the powerful Confederation of British Industry will ask 200 of the country's largest firms to sign written commitments to restrict price increases to five per cent or less in the next year.

Most commentators said the move may force major trade unions to take similar voluntary action to limit wage increases, freeing the government's hands to stimulate Britain's sagging economy without setting off a renewed round of inflation.

Commentators hedged their reactions, however, with warnings that voluntary "income policies" in Britain have been a dismal failure in the past.

CANADA UNSUCCESSFUL

Some noted that a voluntary undertaking last year by leading Canadian businesses to restrict price increases has not been highly successful and has not been matched by similar labor commitments.

Unlike the Canadian situation, the British proposal makes no provision for a government body, such as the prices and incomes commission, to supervise the industries' undertaking.

The CBI would monitor the pricing policy of the firms concerned, under the British proposal, but there will be no formal policing mechanism.

The Financial Times says:

"This is a brave initiative . . . but . . . it will not be possible to mount a police operation and some companies, with or without justification, will raise their prices by more than five per cent.

The Daily Express says the government now is free to take widespread expansionary actions as a result of the industrial move.

"The unions in fact are put on the spot.

Vancouver Firm Cleans Up

A Vancouver firm, Scandinavian Building Maintenance Ltd., has been given a contract to keep the federal custom house at Government and Wharf clean for the next two years.

The public works ministry will pay $53,760 for cleaning in the period, following acceptance of a bid in May.

City Cadet To Tour England

Victor Vipond, 17, of 1572 Vining, a petty officer with the Admiral Budge Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps at Sidney, is one of two cadets chosen to leave here Aug. 6 on an exchange trip to England.

Also chosen is sea cadet Duane Morrow, 18, of Trail. After touring England the two cadets will return Aug. 23.

Sgt. Douglas Mylie, spokesman for Maritime Pacific Command Sea Cadets, said the exchange program is Canada-wide and is worked with the co-operation of England, Sweden and The Netherlands.

Nineteen cadets from the three countries left England Wednesday and will tour defence department bases across Canada.

They landed at Trenton, Ont., Thursday and were flown to HMCS Quadra, a sea cadet summer base near Comox.

They will return overseas Aug. 3.

Mylie said five cadets from across Canada will go to England in August, five (including one from Nelson) will visit The Netherlands and another five (including one from Prince Rupert) will travel to Sweden.

Youths Rescue Five Persons

Two youths fishing in Sooke Basin were in the right place at the right time Wednesday night for five people on a cabin cruiser that had hit a rock and stalled.

Ken MacDowell, 13, and Bruce MacDonald, 15, spotted the 24-foot cruiser taking on water near Billings Point.

On board were Keith Kaye, manager of Sunny Shores Marina, and passengers Gene and Helen Youngblood of West Virginia and their sons Robert and David.

Police said the boat was close to shore when it hit a rock and lost part of its rudder. The youths took two trips to row the wet but unhurt five to shore.

"We weren't catching any fish anyway," Ken MacDowell said this morning.

FROM A BEACH

'Society's a Cook And I'm an Eater'

A week ago in this space I recorded some impressions on seeing a young man and woman living in a driftwood shack near China Beach beyond Jordan River. It was, I suppose, an envious account since it seemed, on the surface, an idyllic, carefree existence, totally removed from the conventions, anxieties and responsibilities of the treadmill society.

"I don't know if these young people bring a philosophy to their way of life," I confessed.

The letter that follows reached me yesterday. It is unsigned. If it does, in fact, reflect the thinking of a significant number of young people who have dropped out it is a disturbing letter and a disturbing philosophy.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mr. Scott:

A friend of ours in Jordan River has brought us the article you wrote about our life on the beach and how you were wondering how come that me and my chick obviously were drinking in life. Also you were questioning why it was that you lived such a complicated and, may I assume, less happy existence than we did. You expressed the wish that you could be like us. Unencumbered and free.

It is not a habit of mine to assist others if it does not benefit me but you sounded so tired and so hungry for your own freedom that I will make an exception in your case and try to explain how to become like we are.

First of all, let's take a very simple example that, at the same time, deals with a basic function, namely cooking and eating a meal.

There are very many (usually female) people that seem to gain far more satisfaction out of preparing food than eating it. My mother used to work for two or more days preparing a meal for guests and when it came to eating she hardly had any of it herself, but seemed to enjoy watching the others have a ball. There are also very many people that don't care a hoot or a holler about making a meal for others, but get their kicks out of eating food.

As we all have to eat to sustain ourselves it seems logic to me, and I hope to you, that the second group has the more practical approach as far as being free of preparing food is concerned. I only prepare a meal if there is no one around who does it for me.

I hope you are with me so far because from here I take a jump to draw a parallel with our great society. In our society we are all taught to serve it, produce for it and find enjoyment out of the fact that others feast on it. Every function in society is a matter of producing more than one consumes. Because every function is based on the principle of being the cook we accept the fact of being responsible for others' welfare.

In other words, Mr. Scott, your freedom has to be sacrificed for your guests.

★ ★ ★

Most people accept this arrangement for most of their lives mainly because all these different functions are sugar-coated with nice, warm phrases. Such as Love, Responsibility, Honor, Care, Duty, you name it. But it all means one thing and that is, Goodbye freedom.

In my case I have simply declared my refusal to participate in this merry-go-round as another upright, uptight citizen. If the whole society is so keen to cater and be productive for each other and have learned to do this without protest then I am willing to be one of those that sits down at the table and feast on what they are so eagerly producing all their lives.

Society is my cook. I am the consumer.

You name it and if I like it I consume it. Did you say Love? Certainly I am always willing to consume love. Everybody is allowed to love me. It's wonderful and it's delicious. Parent's love, brother's love, neighbor's love and, the best of all, girl's love. Don't ask me to produce it. Just let them serve it to me and I feast on it. The chick you saw me with on the beach is on the same wave-length. We consume each other, but she is really madly in love with herself and I am madly in love with myself.

Anyway, Mr. Scott, that little something that won't stop haunting you is freedom. You can never have it so long as all your time and strength is taken up with producing.

So go on and envy us wherever you may run into us, on a highway hitching a ride, in a youth centre having a meal, in an abandoned shack having a sleep, on a street corner bumming a smoke, or laughing on our beach. You will envy us until you stop catering and start digesting.

Until that time, be seeing you.

Doctor 'Quixotes' Annoy Cumming

The chairman of the Capital regional hospital board said Thursday he is tired of doctor Don Quixotes in the St. Joseph's Hospital dispute who set up mythical windmills so they can knock them down.

Jim Cumming was replying to a Times story earlier this week in which Dr. Gordon Lott, president of the Victoria Medical Society, said it was misleading of Cumming to present size and cost comparisons between land alongside St. Joseph's Hospital and property in View Royal under consideration for hospital development.

★ ★ ★

"The regional hospital board has never proposed, suggested, discussed or supported an acute hospital in the western area," said Cumming.

"We are in the process of acquiring land for extended care, a 225-bed unit, with extra land for future expansion, just as we did on the (Saanich) peninsula over a year ago when we acquired 22 acres for future expansion.

"We are on record from last December that we purchase the land made available by the Sisters of St. Ann to us at St. Joseph's Hospital.

"It is becoming tiresome to read of the Don Quixotes of the medical profession setting up artificial windmills so they can knock them down. They should check the record first and then get into print."

ULTIMATE LOSER in a drawn-out battle over expropriation of his land, Pat Codyre of 1890 Munn Road watches a helicopter install poles for B.C. Hydro's power line from Pike Lake substation to downtown Victoria. Codyre has refushed to cash a cheque from Hydro which the company claims is fair payment for the land expropriated from him. He also has refused to move from his home, and claims the positioning of the poles Thursday shows Hydro didn't need the expropriated land.

Social Workers' Brief 'Only Negative One'

A brief by the local branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers was "the only negative one" of the 20 to 30 received on integration of social services, Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning said today.

Mrs. Gunning, chairman of the capital Regional District's social services committee, was replying to criticisms by local branch president R. T. Ferris.

She said the brief was received unsigned and had not been taken before a full meeting of the branch.

"In spite of this, the committee gave full consideration to the brief and it was acknowledged to Mr. Ferris," she said.

Referring to other favorable briefs, she said the Family and Children's Service, which has publicly expressed its reservations, agreed to the concept but that the integration should be under the F and CS.

She said integration of social services was studied by a citizens committee which interviewed 85 agencies.

"Naturally we were talking with social workers," she said.

Referring to Ferris' comment that only statistical quantity and not service quality was considered, Mrs. Gunning said "our terms of reference were to study the administrative structure for delivery of service. We found it a most uneven pattern and confusing network. The best quality service in the world would be of no use if not delivered efficiently to those who need it."

To Ferris' comment that no attempt was made to ask people who receive service from agencies what they think, Mrs. Gunning said "we did interview the Low Income Group" and a public invitation was made for individuals or groups to write or telephone their comments.

"Of all those, truly this was the only negative one," she said of the social workers branch.

Local municipalities are being asked to approve the "regionalization" of such services as Victoria, Saanich and provincial welfare and the Family and Children's Service, if approved, would become a department of the regional district.

Garth Homer, director of the Community Council of Greater Victoria, which issued a report on the feasibility of regional social services last December, said today that he has had "considerable discussion" with Ferris.

HADDOCK 'FAIRLY GOOD'

Mayor Courtney Haddock spent a comfortable night and his condition remains "fairly good" today, according to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Haddock, 65, suffered a heart attack Tuesday. No date has been set for his return to city hall.

ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY

Uvic Pair in Air Crash

Two University of Victoria students were among five passengers who escaped serious injury Thursday night when their light plane crashed in the bush 10 miles north of Fort St. John.

Bryan McConnell, 22, of 2406 Central Ave., and Hayden Thomas, 19, of 73 Kingham Place, were treated and released from hospital after the twin-engined Dornier in which they were passengers crashed into the bank of a stream shortly after takeoff.

Richard Swanson, 21, of 845 Ryan Rd., Richmond, also was released from hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

Pilot Doug McKinnon of Fort St. John and Peter Guise of Mile 175, Alaska Highway, suffered leg fractures. Both are out of hospital.

All but the pilot were employed by B.C. Forest Service.

Air Executive Ltd., owners of the plane which was rented to the forest service, said the aircraft was a write-off. It had just taken off from a lake, and tops of trees at the end of the lake had been clipped off.

The five were flown out of the bush area by helicopter after a brief air search.

Shortage of Blood May Curb Surgery

Doctors at both Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals said today some surgery may have to be cancelled next week because of a critical shortage of blood.

They appealed for a major turnout of donors at clinics to be held by the Red Cross in Victoria next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Both hospitals received only half what they requested from the central supply depot in Vancouver recently because that's all that was available.

Blood from all clinics goes to the Vancouver depot and is distributed from there to all hospitals.

"The hospital is in a precarious position," Dr. Charles Bellam, medical director at Jubilee said. "There's a critical shortage of blood and carrying out essential surgery and perhaps even emergency surgery is prejudiced and jeopardized.

"The Vancouver blood bank is doing all it can but they can't give us blood they don't have."

At St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, executive director, said the blood supply is also half what it normally is and there is a possibility surgery might have to be cancelled.

The problem is compounded by the number of emergencies recently such as car accidents.

"We had a real rush over last weekend," he said.

The blood donor clinics Monday and Tuesday will be at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, from 1:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon and 6:30 to 9:00 in the evening.

On Wednesday the clinic moves to the Student Union Building at the University of Victoria, from 9:30 to noon and 1:15 to 3:30 p.m.

People aged 18 to 65 in good health and not using medication qualify as donors.

The turnout at two Red Cross House clinics in Victoria last month was 73 and 77 when the minimum objective each day was 150.

At the same time, clinics in New Westminster with the same objective drew 185 and 213 donors.

The medical director of the Red Cross blood transfusion service in Vancouver said today that some clinics in Victoria such as at the dockyard and Legislative Buildings have been quite good.

But the Red Cross must depend on the regular clinics at Red Cross House and if the blood supply is not good there next week "we'll go from trouble to deep trouble," said Dr. T. D. Stout.

'Bodies Were Lying' On Sidewalks, Lawns

An Esquimalt man was fined $75 in court today when he pleaded guilty to allowing drunkenness in his home.

John H. Ibbetson, 854 Lampson, asked Judge William Ostler if his name and address could be kept out of the papers.

Ostler said he had no control over the press and from the facts the man's address "seems to be pretty well-known."

Prosecutor J. W. Anderson said the section was rarely applied but was in this case as a result of police activity at the Lampson Street residence starting about a year ago.

Anderson said the incident involved a woman and another man at the home. The other man, the prosecutor said, had appeared before Ostler on another matter earlier in the year.

Anderson said complaints had been received by residents and neighbors and added that police had been called a minimum of 20 times.

He said incidents took place inside, outside the house and on the street and all involved drunkenness of persons at the home.

The prosecutor said there had been "bodies lying on the front lawn and sidewalks" on occasion and there had been numerous assaults.

Ibbetson told Ostler he was trying to control the situation as best he could and had kicked out various people.

Ostler said he was not trying hard enough and it was "a public scandal, and public nuisance" and "disgraceful."

Ibbetson said he was "a natural target for partying people" but Ostler said there was no such thing.

Pedestrian Killed By Pickup Truck

An 18-year-old pedestrian was killed early this morning when struck by a pickup truck on the Trans-Canada Highway near Grange Road.

Saanich police identified the victim as David Gardner, 3923 Wilkinson Road.

Police declined to name the truck driver because the accident is still under investigation.

The accident occurred about 12:55 a.m.

arthur mayse

AS A CONVINCED Vancouver Islander, I'm not easily persuaded into leaving our "sea-girt" paradise, but those potted house-plants I mentioned last week need transporting to Yellowknife, and through the kindness of Victorians who have made the long haul by car, we're well-stocked with useful advice.

When my wife and I began to plan the trip we found that detailed information about how best to cope with its specialized problems was hard to come by.

What to take? What to expect and prepare for? How best to handle the hundreds of miles of gravelled highway that begin in northern Alberta and end deep in the Northwest Territories?

A Mayday to readers brought a speedy return of phone calls and letters. For these, our grateful thanks.

For others who may be contemplating a jaunt along the Mackenzie Highway this summer, here's a digest of travel tips received.

Some who got in touch took no special precautions, arrived home with the original air in their tires, and didn't pick up so much as a gravel pock in a windshield.

One or two others remember the trip as an ordeal they wouldn't care to repeat. They stressed dry-weather dust or rainy-day mud, also the mosquitoes and black flies, and the damage done to their vehicles.

But most of those who filled us in took a position between these extremes.

A great country and a rewarding experience, was their verdict. They looked forward to repeating the venture some other year. But we might as well resign ourselves to certain tribulations, and we would be wise to minimize these by preparing for them before we tackled the gravel.

In a typical dry northern summer, we would run into dust where the blacktop ends near Manning, Alta. Each car and truck trailed a rolling wake of it, and the stuff got into everything. Stow your suitcases in big plastic garbage bags, one caller advised. Keep your windows up when other rigs are approaching or overtaking (passing is dangerous, he warned) and you'll miss some of the dust.

The highway itself is wide and well-maintained. You can drive it at reasonable speed.

(I should note here that the definition of "reasonable" varied with the driver.)

But where car protection from gravel is concerned, the verdict was all but unanimous. Gas tanks need guarding from stones that your car's front wheels kick back at high velocity. Failure to do so is to court punctured metal and lost fuel.

"Don't try sheathing the underside of your tank in rubber," said one man who drove down from Yellowknife with his family earlier this month. "Here's how we do it."

Scrunched down and peering, I saw that he had wired an apron of heavy industrial webbing to hang from the frame a few inches ahead of his gas tank as a rock-guard.

He and most other informants leaned on the need for clip-on headlight protectors if we hoped to reach Yellowknife with sealed-beams intact. "Mae Wests," hearty northerners call these plastic bubbles. A time or two, plastic windshield guards were mentioned — although the attitude prevailing is that we'd best be prepared to shuck out for a new windshield when we come home.

Bug screen? Some recommended one. Others considered a bug screen an unnecessary nuisance. On this item, it seems to be driver's choice.

But we were told that it would be unwise to extend this casual approach to our car's rubber.

We would see plenty of busted tires alongside the highway, and might add to the number. Good tires are a must, and one spare isn't enough. Take another, preferably wheel-mounted. Just as well too, if we tossed in a spare fan belt, a fuel can to provide emergency gallonage if needed on the stationless run of over 300 miles from Fort Providence near the Mackenzie River ferry crossing to Yellowknife on Great Slave Lake.

And here's a driving hint. When a car or truck is approaching, or passing, pull well over and slow down. This will lessen the risk of gravel damage. But don't stop, or you could be tail-ended by someone who can't see you for dust.

Motels and campgrounds don't precisely crowd each other, but we were assured that finding overnight accommodation poses no serious problem. Also, we'd get more out of the trip if we made some side-excursions for waterfall viewings and such.

For the mosquitoes and blackflies, best approach a philosophical outlook, backed by a spray can of insect repellant. On second thought, better take two cans, or maybe three. Favored brand: "Off."

Oh, yes — the potted plants. Send 'em by air. Again, the dust.

And that's about it, except to pass on an assurance frequently repeated. There are difficulties. But if you need help, someone will stop —and you'll find it a trip to enjoy and remember.

Scientists Say 'Environment' Determines Child's IQ

WASHINGTON (WP) — Prof. Rick Heber's group at the University of Wisconsin may have settled once and for all the question of whether the disproportionate mental retardation of slum children is the result of heredity or environment.

Heber's experimental program, now in its fifth year, has taken young children of poor and illiterate parents living in the city's worst slums — children who, on the basis of everything we know, could be predicted to show a progressive decline in intelligence as they grow older — and produced results that are little short of startling. For example:

● IQ scores have jumped by more than 50 per cent, some of them reaching as high as 135.

● Children in the experimental group were rapidly building their vocabularies between 19 and 25 months of age, while their counterparts in a control group were producing virtually no vocabulary — some weren't speaking at all — at age 28 months.

● By age 22 months, while the control group children were still saying unconnected words, those in the experimental group were expressing themselves in complete, sometimes fairly complex sentences.

● On virtually every test, whether matching and sorting, comprehension, motor skills or general IQ the children in the experimental group not only outstripped the control group counterparts but generally surpassed the norms established by their age peers.

Moreover, unlike the results of such experimental programs as Head Start, the gains of children in the Wisconsin program give every appearance of being permanent.

As Washington consultant Stephen P. Strickland, describes the program in the current issue of American Education, Heber put together a team of psychologists, psychiatrists, sociologists, speech therapists and educational experts aimed specifically at studying the relationship between poverty and mental retardation.

Early findings seemed to support the genetic theory: parents — particularly mothers — of low intelligence almost always produced children of low intelligence.

But closer observation revealed not that mental deficiencies are passed on genetically, but that mentally retarded mothers tend to create an environment that is less conducive to mental development than that created by slum neighbors of normal intelligence.

Thus it appeared to Heber's group, environment might well be the determinant after all. And if this were so, then it might be possible, by starting early enough, to prevent retardation as opposed to overcoming it later.

This led to a highly structured program with emphasis on sensory and language stimulation.

The stimulation begins early. In fact, for the past four years, about 40 mothers with an IQ of 70 or below have participated in the project with their new-born children. Each child has his own teacher until he is two years old, then moves into classes with five other children. The biggest classes — for those four years or older — have only 11 children.

Teachers, many without college degrees, undergo eight months of training before being assigned to classes. They are a mixture of standard and new equipment, methods and materials. But the main ingredient appears to be lots and lots of individual and small-group attention designed to make the children aware both of language and of the things around them — an ingredient almost routinely present in middle-class homes.

Strickland says the project staff is modest about its results so far. Even so, he quotes Heber as saying:

"We have seen a capacity for learning on the part of extremely young children that previously I would not have believed possible. While the results are by no means fully conclusive and must continue to be tested, the least that I am willing to say is that it is difficult to conceive of the children in the experimental program ever falling back to the level of their age peers in the language control group."

Heber's findings will of course warm the hearts of those of us who have maintained all along that underachievement of ghetto youngsters is not the result of faulty genes.

The question now is: What do we do about it?

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A year ago my father passed away. He was 69 years old. Since then my mother has been carrying on until she has me half crazy. You would think she was the only women ever to lose a husband. She had a good life with him and she should be grateful she had him that long.

However, my real problem is that I live only a block away from her. I run over every day, but it's not enough for her. She spends every free hour at my house, saying she has nothing to live for and she is going to take an overdose.

She keeps saying she can't live alone. (I think she wants to move in with me and that would be the end of me.) She is not disabled in any way, but she complains and whines constantly until I am about to have a nervous breakdown.

I have no privacy. She has brothers and sisters, but she is here all the time, or else she's at home calling me to come over. She won't even turn on her TV. She'd rather sit and feel sorry for herself.

She criticizes everything and tears everyone to pieces. My husband is thinking of asking for a transfer so we can move away. What else can we do? — Smothered.

DEAR SMOTHERED: You can take your mother to a doctor. Your mother needs professional help in handling her grief. And you need some help in learning how to handle your mother.

DEAR ABBY: A 19-year-old man (if you can call him that) was recently found guilty of beating two of his girl friend's children, and he was given the maximum penalty of 180 days in the workhouse. The children, ages 4 and 5, were taken to the hospital and treated for numerous lacerations and welts across their backs, which the state claimed were inflicted by a knotted electric cord.

The mother of these battered tots was 17 years old, and she had three other children — one per year beginning when she was 12 years old!

Now if this isn't a case in favor of planned parenthood, I don't know what is. — Appalled in St. Paul.

DEAR APPALLED: Amen!

DEAR ABBY: This problem has been on my mind for several years and I hope you can help me.

Many years ago I obtained a divorce from a man, but before the divorce was final, I married again. We both knew my divorce was not final at the time, but he had to get married, so we did. I have had my final papers for years but we've never renewed our vows. My question is, how legal is this marriage? — Troubled.

DEAR TROUBLED: Some states recognize common law marriages, but I wouldn't bet on that as a solution to this problem. I advise you to quietly get married without broadly proclaiming the fact that your first marriage was invalid. But before you do anything, I advise you to see a competent lawyer.

Mrs. Lawrence Sheehy

elizabeth forbes

Is it an art? A craft? Or is it just a hobby? Ask Mrs. Lawrence Sheehy and she'll tell you that creating a seaweedscape, be it art, craft or hobby, is a rewarding experience that calls for ingenuity, originality and patience.

She'll also point to the fact that creating pictures from seaweed "goes back" at least a hundred years. "I found proof in your own Craigflower Manor where there's a beautiful picture created from Vancouver Island seaweed, back in the late 1800s," she said.

In Victoria on an annual visit with her father, Cyril Penzer, at his Midland Road home, Bernice Sheehy is taking occasional "time out" to gather some of our local seaweed.

"You don't have as many varieties as we do in southern California and it is not as colorful, but I always take some back with me for contrast and for background material," she said.

She was working on some clusters with greenish-yellow water pouches, gathered along the shore below Willows Park and brought back to the Penzer home in a bucket of sea water.

Those water pouches had been flattened by hand, the clumps carefully washed in fresh water "to get rid of the seaweed smell" and just as carefully separated and placed between newspapers for drying and pressing.

It's five years now since Bernice Sheehy became interested in creating seaweedscapes. And, like so many other interesting experiments, it started quite by chance.

"We were at Laguna Beach for a family outing. It was one of those days when seaweed was thick along the shore. I was intrigued by the many delicate varieties and the different colors and I took a bucketful back to our home on the outskirts of Pasadena, to see what I could do with it."

From that point it was "trial and error" while Mrs. Sheehy experimented, studied and finally decided on "my own particular way" of creating the pictures.

Family interest grew "until" my sons were bringing me seaweed whenever they went to Catalina Island where the weed is fabulous. They would go down sometimes four or five feet to get the stuff and it was amazing how much they could bring back in a bucket."

At first it "doesn't look like much more than a clump of wet, slimy muck." And it isn't until it is carefully washed in fresh water that it begins to take form and substance.

"As it dries you are fascinated by the number of different colors, especially in the Catalina and Laguna varieties, where the range is from pale pink to deep glowing purple."

It's then that this artist begins to separate the weeds into smaller sections, sometimes with tweezers and toothpicks. "They are so fragile and delicate". And a picture begins to take shape in her mind.

Next comes the work of placing the dried fronds in the decided pattern, gluing them down securely and finally spraying the whole with a fixitive.

Here again, in the beginning, Mrs. Sheehy used the trial and error method. "No one seemed to know how to preserve a seaweedscape, so I finally chose the fixitive used for crayons and pastels, and it seems to work."

Finished results have all the delicate nuances of an Oriental scene with an added touch of 19th century detail.

The Sheehy creations have been shown at a number of community art shows mostly in parks and country gardens in Pasadena, and near-by centres. "Some people think they are pen and ink sketches. Others insist they are a form of embroidery. Still others are so intrigued, they buy."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
SATURDAY, JULY 17

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finish tasks on home front. You may be tempted to run away from yourself, but this would be an error. Disputes with neighbors, relatives are but temporary. Know this; respond accordingly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your understanding of financial matter may not be too clear. Heed voice of experience. One who uses friendly persuasion may not be for you. Be selfish where personal security is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Carrying another's burden may appear noble but, in actuality, is foolish. Display personal drive, ambition. Circumstances now will favor your efforts. Mate, partner may practice misdirection.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): It may now be time to break specific family tie. One who warns of consequences is probably being selfish. Leo individual could figure prominently. Start seeing clearly. Evidence is present.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Review associations, friendships. Some well-meaning people may be draining your energy. Follow hunch. One who taught you in past is likely to make dramatic reappearance. Be receptive to new life style.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trying to force opportunity will not work. There are basic steps to be taken; don't scatter forces. A short journey now could prove beneficial. You gain added respect; gives morale a boost.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fine to view project as a whole, but don't neglect details. You may be overly anxious to go far afield. But it would be wiser to discover personal acres of diamonds. No need to run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Obtain valid hint from Taurus message. Guard possessions. View income potential. Ask questions, obtain answers. Discard the superficial; strive for authenticity. Count your change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lie low; overcome tendency toward self-deception. See persons, situations as they actually exist. One close to you is ready to confide intimate problem. Be mature in response.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pace may appear slow, but you are making steady progress. One born under Sagittarius actually can set constructive example; follow it. Avoid being upset by routine matters. Check rights, permissions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Many opinions formed in past may be due to revision. Applies especially to members of opposite sex. One you regarded as frugal could actually be extravagant. Lessons are there—learn from them.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Study Gemini message. Complete projects. Secure property rights. Check details. One who takes you for granted is due for surprise. Business and friendship not apt to mix at this time.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY by September, you may be due for domestic adjustment, change of residence. You often display tendency to hang on to past. Now, however, you must begin looking to future. Applies specifically to home affairs, family members. Where money is involved, heed your own counsel. Those who urge otherwise are not seeing too clearly.

Youth Project Keeps Island Jumping

By SALLY GLOVER

GANGES — Sleepy Salt Spring Island has awakened.

In and around Ganges, 42 students are doing their best to get the place hopping.

They are taking part in Youth 71, an energetic Opportunities for Youth program that involves everything from water pollution testing to clearing fields with machets for public use.

The young people, between 14 and 20 years, received a $24,000 grant — the second largest grant on Vancouver Island. This money will provide wages for the students. The students are paid $1.50 an hour.

The federal government's $25 million program, designed to provide summer employment for young people, has placed emphasis on university students and graduates.

Program co-ordinator for Vancouver Island, Bob Plecus, 26, said Salt Spring is an exception. Not one of the project workers is in university. Twenty-seven of the students are in high school, and most others have just graduated.

Every one of them is enthusiastic. They want to make Salt Spring a better place for residents — and for tourists.

Divided into three sections, the project includes land clearing, pollution testing, development of arts and crafts and organic agriculture (Gardening without chemicals).

There's no slacking for these young people either.

One of the girls in the arts and crafts section designed a T-shirt with "Youth 71" printed on the front. So if they're doing good work they're noticed, but if they're not they hear about it.

Equipment and work facilities are rough.

A basement garage houses the artistic crew. The artists sit at self-constructed easels in dim light.

From the arts and crafts workshop — where everything from beer bottle glasses to far-out pen and ink abstracts are being created — come most of the items for sale in the Youth 71 booth, a couple of blocks away.

Arts Most Stable

Because the sun determines the working hours of the outdoor workers the sheltered arts and crafts section of the project has proved to be the most stable business operation.

This week's sunshine brought knitters for the youth booth outside. It also brought the female corps of the land-clearing crew out hacking at stumps and cutting bush. They were clearing a public beach access.

By 2 p.m., six girls, 15 to 17 years, clade in not-so-white Youth 71 shirts and cut-offs, were still hard at it, hauling the cut brush into a truck.

"Clean-up consists mostly of girls," Doug Anderson, project chairman, said. "When the guys aren't researching, they help."

At that point, Pam Lengyel, 15, picked up a machete and chopped up the remainder of a tree stump with a couple of casual blows.

"I'd make a good bushman," she said.

While Pam and her group were clearing the land, Anne Hazenboom and Mary-Anna Shelby, both 15, were planting it.

Local residents donated three plots of land for Youth 71's farm co-op — and the students have taken full advantage of it. Crops of beets, bush beans, carrots, peas, radish and broccoli aren't up yet, but Ann and Mary-Anna are helping them along.

Students in the research department seemed to be hard at it, too. The nine pollution researchers (and their water testing kit) had taken samples from all parts of the Island and had analysed them in the basement of a general store.

"We're trying to get readings of chemicals in the water," said Steve Lagg, a 16-year-old physics student.

Ben Andersen, an auditor who checked Youth 71's books, said he found no problems.

"These kids seem to know what they're doing," he said.

Pollution, Status to Be Topics At Women's Conference in Oslo

OTTAWA (CP) — About 1,000 women are to meet in Oslo, Norway, Aug. 10 to 20, for a triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, its Canadian affiliate announced Thursday.

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada said conference resolutions include such topics as chemical warfare, pollution, the welfare of blind persons and the status of women.

The Associated Country Women of the World, the only international organization of women living in rural areas, has more than 200 member societies in six continents, with a central office in London, England.

Man., president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, will lead the Canadian delegation of about 80 delegates and accredited visitors. Mrs. J. Philip Matheson of Winsloe, P.E.I., is area vice-president for Canada.

Association members work in their own lands for better nutrition, education, housing and a happier life.

Mrs. Aroti Dutt of Calcutta, India, association president, will preside over the conference sessions. Mrs. Graham Spry of Ottawa, deputy president, is to help arrange educational forums.

Bacardi Rum(s) Produced by Special Authority and Under the Supervision of Bacardi & Co. Ltd.
"Bacardi" and Bat Device are Registered Trademarks of Bacardi & Co. Ltd. Bottled by Caribbean Distillers Ltd., Canada.

As you've probably discovered, you're not the only one who likes Bacardi. The fact is, it's the world's largest-selling rum.
Why? Maybe because it's so smooth, light and dry. Or because it mixes with so many things. With soda, water, ginger ale, cola, vermouth, juices. You name it, Bacardi goes with it. Light-amber or white-dry, you'll find Bacardi listed under "Canadian Rums." But, remember, once you buy it, be prepared to share it.

Hovercraft Takeover Offer Near

Shareholders of Vancouver-based Equatorial Resources Ltd. — formerly Cariboo Minelands Ltd. — were to decide today whether to offer to take over Pacific Hovercraft Ltd.

The latter, which has a substantial number of Victoria area shareholders, needs the reorganization to provide financing.

Equatorial is listed on Vancouver Stock Exchange, while Pacific stock is closely held and does not have access to the same public market.

Pacific, which pioneered the use of air cushion vehicles on the west coast, has machines engaged mainly in charter work for mining and petroleum exploration companies in inaccessible areas of B.C., the Yukon and Northwest Territories. It intended originally to institute regular fast passenger ferry service between Vancouver Island, the lower mainland and upper coastal areas.

There were technical problems to overcome in the passenger field and Pacific directed itself to commercial work.

Equatorial director Richard F. Kent, of Prince George, said many technical, legal and administrative factors would have to be resolved before a firm takeover bid can be accomplished.

Equatorial offers 2.4 million shares for 1.6 million of Pacific's outstanding shares. The former has 1.9 million shares issued, of which 300,000 or 16 per cent are controlled by Crown Trust for Ituni Iron Co. Ltd.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

NURSING HOME SHARES SOLD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Simpson Co. of Toronto has purchased 700,000 shares of National Nursing Homes Ltd. of Vancouver, National president Neil B. Cook said today.

He said the stock purchase, at $2.50 a share, gave Simpson's a 25 per cent interest in National Nursing, which owns retirement homes in Toronto, Winnipeg, Peterborough and Burlington, Ont.

Two $5 million old-age residences are being built in Victoria and Vancouver.

Rest Home Solution Likely

A potential solution to complaints of rest home operators about provincial government payments for welfare guests was drafted Thursday in a meeting between rest home and government representatives.

John Hanrahan, vice-president of the B.C. Rest Home Association, said that if the government carries out its end of the bargain, "the problems of rest home owners will be over."

Under the plan, the government would continue to set $150 a month as the basic rate for welfare guests but would pay higher rates — even beyond a previously set $174 level — for cases requiring special care, Hanrahan said.

The individual rest homes would have to make application for higher rates in specific cases. A social worker would investigate and make a recommendation.

Hanrahan said he felt Rehabilitation Minister Phil Gaglardi is sincere about making the plan work.

If it works, it will end a lengthy battle over welfare guest rates. Threat of mass evictions was raised during the dispute.

Hanrahan said Gaglardi made a note of his warning that the provincial government would have to hire additional social workers to make the plan work.

Hanrahan said Victoria alone might initially need six or eight additional social workers to investigate cases. There is only one placement officer employed at the present time, he said.

The plan was discussed at a meeting between Hanrahan and other association representatives and a cabinet subcommittee consisting of Gaglardi, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

SAME BASIC RATE

Gaglardi said after the meeting he had answered the questions of the group and made absolutely clear that the basic rate for welfare guests remains at $150.

Hanrahan said the group went into the meeting still seeking an increase to at least $185 a month but willing to accept a plan whereby the rate ceiling would be lifted for specific cases.

Examples of special care cases might be diabetic or incontinent guests, Hanrahan said.

If, after investigation by a social worker, the government won't pay the rate for proper care of a guest, the rest home in question will still have the option of simply turning out the guest, Hanrahan said. But the threat of evictions would disappear under the new plan, he said.

Hanrahan said the results of the meeting will have to be presented to the general membership of the association.

O'Neill Presented Gold Medal Award

Patrick O'Neill, 29, of 6050 Patricia Bay Highway, is the outstanding psychology major graduating from University of Victoria this summer.

O'Neill was presented with the gold medal award in psychology of the B.C. Psychological Association by Dr. G. A. Milton, president of the association and chairman of the Uvic psychology department, in a ceremony in the Cornett Building.

In 1969 O'Neill, a former Daily Colonist reporter, entered Uvic under the "mature student" plan and since then has carried a full load and overload of courses while working part-time and serving as a research assistant on an hourly basis.

He will graduate with a first-class honors degree in psychology next month, just two years and two months after starting his undergraduate program.

In addition to his other endeavors, O'Neill has written and produced five stage plays, two of them in Victoria, and four radio plays.

He turned down a fellowship at Harvard to accept a $4,700 award from Yale. He leaves Aug. 15 for Yale to begin work on a doctoral degree in psychology.

Credit Strengthened

The provincial government has moved to strengthen confidence in the Municipal Finance Authority credit rating by empowering the inspector of municipalities to certify the authority's reserve debt fund.

The move, which gives the inspector the same powers over the authority's reserve fund as he now has over individual municipal debt funds, will help improve an already high credit rating for the authority, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said Thursday.

The authority abandoned an attempt to borrow $15 million on the open market last month after receiving bids which would have brought the cost of borrowing to about nine per cent.

The reserve debt fund consists of half a year's payment on debt.

Campbell said the move does not mean the province is guaranteeing the debts of the Municipal Finance Authority.

City College Course Outline

Assistant counsellors from Camosun College will answer questions about courses and distribute brochures in Greater Victoria shopping centres.

They will be at Eaton's today and Saturday; The Bay, Monday and Tuesday; Mayfair Plaza, Thursday to Saturday, University Heights Plaza, July 26 and 27 and Hillside Plaza, July 29 to 31.

DELFEN* Contraceptive Foam for women is trustworthy, easy to use, and readily available from drugstores.

DELFEN Foam is one of the few feminine contraceptive products that is available from the Family Planning or Feminine Hygiene Section of drugstores.

DELFEN Foam has been developed by ORTHO, a company that has devoted over 30 years to research in family planning.

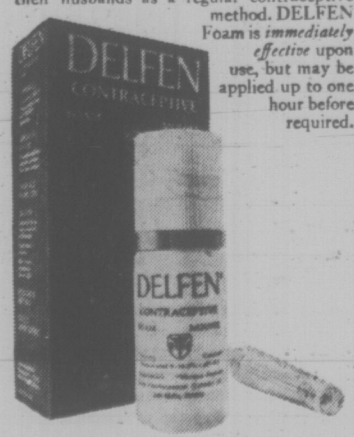
DELFEN Contraceptive Foam is a pure white, non-greasy foam which stops the normal uniting of male and female reproductive cells in the following ways:

1. It immobilizes the male reproductive cells (sperm); rendering the sperm inactive.
2. It forms an anti-sperm foam barrier, between the vagina and the entrance to the womb, which is undetectable in use.

DELFEN Foam is a feminine contraceptive product which is easy to use and effective. No douching is required after use.

How effective is "effective"

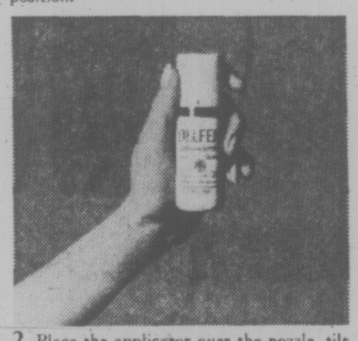
In clinical studies when DELFEN Foam was used as directed by 857 women, as their only means of contraception over a period of one year, there were only eight unplanned pregnancies. (If these same 857 women had not used DELFEN Foam, and not used any contraceptive method, the expected number of pregnancies would have been approximately 235). DELFEN Contraceptive Foam was found to be highly acceptable by women and their husbands as a regular contraceptive method. DELFEN Foam is immediately effective upon use, but may be applied up to one hour before required.



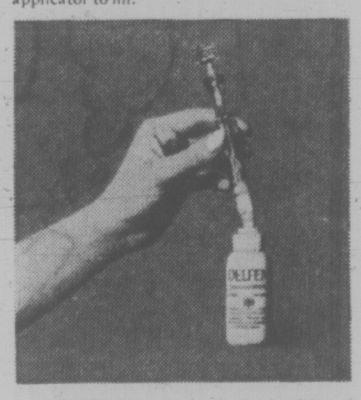
Your first package of DELFEN Foam will include the shm, comfortable-to-use applicator and complete instructions. Thereafter, it is necessary to purchase only the more economical refill package.

DELFEN Foam is simple to use:

1. Shake the vial then stand it in upright position.



2. Place the applicator over the nozzle, tilt applicator to fill.



3. When the applicator has filled it is ready for use. Simply insert the applicator into the vagina. Press the plunger to deposit the foam. Remove applicator with plunger depressed.

If you would like to receive a copy of our instruction pamphlet, which is contained in the starter package of DELFEN Foam, fill in and mail this coupon.

Proper Pots Help Hoyas Bloom

By HILDA BEASTALL

The climbing houseplant with the name Hoya Carnosa is a lovely sight in summer as it winds around a wire frame or a window opening. The plant has various local names such as Wax-plant, Honey-plant, Queen's-Jewels, from the nectar dripping from the flowers when fully open.

Hilda

Three periods of bloom can be expected in a season from late May into late September, so that a plant four years old from a cutting seems to be always in flower during summer.

Yet we hear of plants which have never been known to have flowers. Owners of these plants tell us of lovely dark green leaves and growth many feet in length, but no matter how much water and fertilizer is given — still no bloom.

Quite often those words "water" and "fertilizer" are the reasons behind the lack of bloom.

Hoyas gave us most prolific flowering when we were growing them in shallow five-or six-inch pots away from direct sunshine but in good light. Summer temperatures would be 75 deg. F. and higher, but the winter range would be between 40 and 60 deg. F.

From late April to October watering was moderate — that is, when the soil began to dry out the pot was filled slowly to the brim. If water remained in the saucer an hour later, it was emptied. It might be a week before more was needed.

The hoya has thick succulent leaves capable of storing moisture in its native environment in tropical Northern Australia and tropical Asia, and giving it more than it requires will result in either leaves rotting, no flowers forming, or flower buds dropping.

In winter the plant is so inactive that very little watering is required. Perhaps a little once in each of the winter months of December, January and February, with a little more in the months at either end of that period.

Another cause of buds dropping from hoya plants before opening is the insect called woolly aphis which often infests the flower stems just at the point where they join the short flower spur.

You may need to look for them with a hand lens. If you find them, remove with toothpick and absorbent cotton, dipped in rubbing alcohol (methyl hydrate, a poison liquid also known as methylated spirits).

Once you have the plant blooming, do not cut off or remove the flowering spurs, for they continue to produce bloom indefinitely.

Repotting is only needed while a plant is young. Start with a three-inch pot to flower the first year, report to a four in April if growing well.

Then leave the plant for two years before the next shift into a five. After that, a top-dressing of sand and compost will suffice for a couple of years.

Overpotting is also a cause of non-flowering with hoyas.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Many ingredients go into the making of an expert: technical ability, psychology (the ability to outwit the opponents), "table presence" (an acute awareness of the problems of each opponent), an immediate recognition of situations that he has encountered previously, plus the ability to handle them reflexly and correctly.

In this deal, there is featured that "extra something" that the expert possesses which enables him to bring home contracts that a less-skilled player would have lost. The hand arose in a rubber-bridge game. Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1◇	Pass	1♡	4♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening Lead: King of ◇.

After winning the first trick with his diamond king, West shifted to the jack of hearts, which was captured by the board's ace.

At this point, I imagine that most players would cash the jack of trumps, after which they would lead a club. When East would follow suit with a low club, South's jack would be inserted, with the hope that East possessed the queen. On this day, West's queen would capture the trick, and South would be down one, losing two clubs and two diamonds.

But our South player came up with what he felt was a superior line of play. It was based on the assumption that East, for his one-heart response, had a five-card (or longer) heart suit. If such were the case, then West had started with a maximum of three hearts.

Upon winning trick two with the board's ace of hearts, South promptly led another heart, which he ruffed with his ten-spot. Dummy was next re-entered via the trump jack, after which a third heart lead was ruffed with South's nine of trumps. As is evident, West now had no hearts remaining.

After picking up West's trumps, South then led his remaining diamond, West taking the trick with his ace. West, not having a heart to play back, had just become the victim of an end-play.

If he returned a diamond, dummy's high diamonds of both his jack and king of clubs. And if, instead, he played back the ace of clubs (as he actually did), South's club king would become his game-going trick. Thus the end-play accomplished what the finesse would have failed to do.

Jack checked his change. "Seventy-two cents," he said. "That's seven cents short."

"You only gave me this," Linda held up some dollar bills. "It seems okay to me."

"Just a moment," Jack smiled. "You took the cents and dollars in the invoice as the same."

And that explained it! What was the amount actually payable?

(Thanks for idea to J. H. Robertson, Norwood, Ontario.)

Trawler Sinks

LONDON (Reuter) — A French trawler, the Thierry, sank in the Bristol Channel early Tuesday after a collision with a West German vessel, the 4,600-ton Regine. Lloyd's shipping agency said the captain of the trawler and a crew member are missing. Five others were picked up by the Regine. The collision occurred about 40 miles north of Land's End.

Victoria Fair Play Lively and Buoyant Except for the Actresses

By AUDREY JOHNSON

The butterfly motif that has been the insignia of Victoria Fair since its beginning in 1969 has never seemed as apt as it did Thursday night when the McPherson Playhouse curtain went up on the first theatrical offering of the summer arts festival.

Alive with Gallic charm and wit, the 19th century comedy, A Trip Abroad, is buoyant, lively and, as projected in the set designs of Robert Cothran, impudently tongue-in-cheek with off-beat Victorian era cliches and shimmering color.

The play is by 18th century author Eugene Labiche and concerns a self-imporant, brash Parisian coachmaker — Perrichon — taking his wife and daughter on their first trip outside France, pursued by two friendly competitors for daughter Henriette's hand.

Director Wandalie Henshaw and costume designer Irene Pieper have complemented each other and the settings in a consistent series of delightful stage pictures.

They have co-operated closely too in the high comedy style which, however, though excellent at times, fluctuates according to what actors have the scenes.

Richard Galuppi, for example — Perrichon — sustains the style as well as the full dimension of the character within, and so does John Getgood who gives a crisp, well-defined performance at all times.

The suitors — Eric Schaeider and Graham McPherson — both with an exceptional flair for this kind of comedy, provide a neatly-timed team performance that deserves to become a Victoria Fair byword.

When it erupted into a pattern of frantic comings and goings, especially with a gaggle of schoolgirls and two nuns, the railway station scene of the first act provided several charming bits.

But there are a few clearly discernible slackenings in the general tone of the production throughout and for most of these the only two female principals in the cast must be held responsible.

It has been noted that Labiche's women characters are not as well drawn as his males and this naturally works a hardship on the actresses.

But it does not wholly excuse or explain the fact that Harriet Allen as Perrichon's wife, seemed to be acting behind a veil, while Maria Wozniak as Henriette gave a pallid and totally ineffectual performance.

Under these circumstances it is as well that the men dominate the play and that the visual pleasures, the humor and such enchanting bits of direction as the opening of Act 2 and almost all of Act 3 should send one home early with a sense of having been happily entertained.

A Trip Abroad will be repeated tonight and Saturday and after the opening next Thursday of the farce comedy, Room Service, will continue in repertory through the end of August.

Black Beauty Sings in Hay

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Composer Georges Bizet's immortal Carmen now comes on as a 25-year-old black beauty with long black tresses, a big smile, a figure that any Carmen would envy—and she sings from a hay wagon.

Bizet's French opera with a Spanish setting has been rewritten by Blanche Thebom, a former Metropolitan Opera star, and is cast under the warm Georgia sun.

Instead of running 3½ hours, the opera has been cut to 40 minutes and can easily be moved because the stage is the hay wagon.

The hay wagon, pulled by a Jeep, will be taken into Atlanta's back streets, to parks and playgrounds or wherever there is an audience.

Cecily Beasley, who sings the role of Carmen, teaches music at Atlanta's Clark College. She has a rich soprano voice.

HERE'S WHAT EVERYONE IS SAYING ABOUT VANCOUVER'S EXCITING FILM "McCABE & MRS. MILLER"

"McCABE & MRS. MILLER" is the work of a more subtle, more deeply gifted — more mysterious — intelligence than might have been guessed at from 'M.A.S.H.' What this movie reveals is that there's poetry in Robert Altman and he is able to put it on the screen.

The picture is testimony to the power of stars. Warren Beatty and Julie Christie have never been better, and they are the two most interesting people in the town.
—Pauline Kael, The New Yorker, July 3, 1971

"'McCABE & MRS. MILLER' is Robert Altman's most ambitious film, most haunting, extraordinary, maddening, and one of the most visually beautiful films you are ever going to see."
—N.Y. Daily News

"'McCABE & MRS. MILLER" are two wonderfully engaging characters as played by Warren Beatty and Julie Christie. Beatty has never seemed more at ease in a role. Miss Christie gives the best performance of her career!"
—Gannett Newspapers

As in 'M-A-S-H' and 'Brewster McCloud', Altman fills his screen with sometimes exceptional vivid detail!"

Trooping the Color Rehearsal at Esquimalt

Forces to Salute B.C. Centennial

The Canadian Armed Forces have arranged their own salute to B.C.'s centennial of entry into Confederation.

They will present a unique military ceremony paying honor to the flags of Confederation. The ceremony will be performed 15 times in B.C. communities starting Tuesday at Royal Roads.

A color party bearing the national, provincial and territorial flags will be accompanies by two 12-pound field guns and the Canadian Forces Naden band.

After a preliminary band concert, the entire complement marches on to the parade ground and takes position before the dais. Performing without commands, the units then carry out the impressive and complex trooping of the colors.

The ceremony lasts about 30 minutes and is climaxed by a feu-de-joie and gun salute.

Personnel are specially selected representatives from land, sea and air units in western Canada, who have recently undertaken a rigorous two-week special training period.

Commanding the contingent is Lieutenant Commander D. N. Ross of Esquimalt.

Oxfam Starts Project For Canada's Natives

TORONTO (CP) — The first North American project supported by Oxfam of Canada took off Thursday at Toronto Island airport.

Wally Firth, 35, a Loucheux Indian and executive secretary of the northwest region of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, took off for Whitehorse, Y.T., in a Cessna 185 float-and-ski plane purchased by the association with the Oxfam grant.

The plane will enable Firth and the association to help native leaders in the north establish communications and contact between communities long isolated.

Jack Shea, executive secretary of Oxfam, described the $25,000 grant as "the first project of its kind of a domestic nature we have ever supported" in North America.

'TALK' ON TV

Firth said the plane will enable the association and the Yukon Native Brotherhood to obtain material for radio broadcasts in the territories and take videotaped television programs to communities beyond the range of stations.

The video equipment also will allow recording of statements by settlement leaders so they can "talk" to leaders in other settlements.

There had been a long debate within Oxfam over making a grant to native people in Canada because many officials believed Canada's obligation to native people was a legal one and therefore not properly one for charity.

However, officials decided providing the plane would help strengthen the position of native people in resolving the question of their legal rights and position.

Firth, born in Fort McPherson, N.W.T., left school after 2½ years and travelled through the north as a hunter and trapper, a Hudson's Bay Co. clerk-manager, a game warden and a Canadian Broadcasting Corp. announcer-operator.

He holds a private pilot's licence and has 300 hours' flying time. The plane was bought second-hand from a man who piloted it to a fly-in last year at Unuvik, where it was judged best-equipped plane.

Whites Adopt More Blacks

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An Oregon adoption agency says a country-wide United States survey shows that the number of black babies adopted by white families in 1970 tripled over 1968.

Nationally, more than 2,200 black babies were adopted by white families in 1970, compared with 700 such adoptions in 1968, said Charlie Olds, associate director of the Boys and Girls Aid Society of Oregon.

In Washington, a spokesman for the department of health, education and welfare said the survey was limited but that the trend shown was valid.

The agency said some 40,000 black, Puerto Rican and Mexican-American children are in foster homes throughout the United States and need permanent homes.

Man Shoots Up North Van Library

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A rifleman fired 10 to 12 shots into the Lynn Valley public library in the district of North Vancouver Thursday night.

Police said the shots were fired from a .22-calibre rifle.

There were between 15 and 20 people in the library during the five-minute period of firing, many of them children.

An employee suffered a minor hand wound. Police said they were holding a suspect.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BRITTON—In treasured memory of my beloved husband, Frank, who passed away July 16, 1969.

All day I've been thinking,
Thinking just of you,
Of the days we were together
And the things we used to do;
And I felt a lonely feeling
As I've chased the tears away,
And this wish comes stealing
That today were yesterday.

—Always in my heart, 'til we meet again. Your loving wife, Gertrude. Psalm 23.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

CENTENNIAL SCENE, 7 p.m., Channel 2. The Centennial Air Race from London, England, to Victoria is featured in filmed highlights tonight. The program is to be repeated Monday, July 19 at, 115:0 p.m.

DES O'CONNOR, 7 p.m., Channel 6. Comedian Charlie Callas is the guest star tonight. He mimics Cary Grant, Sammy Davis Jr., Walter Brennan and Sophia Loren (not a bad trick, if he's convincing.) Connie Stevens sings Another Hundred People.

THE INTERNS, 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. (Rerun.) A young and pretty girl becomes Dr. Hardin's patient, and he runs into a problem when informed that she's a dope addict. The real problem, however, is Dr. Hardin's refusal to believe the girl is an addict.

THE HIGH CHAPARRAL, 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) "Pale Warrior." An injured man (Frank Webb) found in the area of the ranch says he has escaped after being held captive by Apaches for 15 years. While nursing and befriending the man, the Cannons begin to suspect the man's story, and discover the distressing real reason he's there.

HERE COME THE STARS, 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. The stars appearing tonight include Carol Burnett, Rory Calhoun, Rod Serling, director Ralph Nelson (won an Emmy for the movie Requiem for a Heavyweight), Jean Pierre Aumont, impressionist Rich Little, singer Jan Daley and comics Marty Ingels, Joey Adams and Mickey Shaughnessy. George Jessel is the host.

NANNY AND THE PROFESSOR, 8 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) "The Man Who Came to Pasta." Jovial Cesar Romero plays a flambouyant Italina movie director Fabrizio Schiavoni, long-time friend of Professor Everett. When invited to dinner, Fabrizio Schianovoni shows up with full entourage, and takes over the household, including the kitchen. It takes some tall doing to get Fabrizio and followers to leave for good.

THE PARTRIGE FAMILY, 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) "Go Directly to Jail." There's a case of plagiarism in a prison that complicates the life of the Partridges. After giving a concert in the jail, the family finds themselves virtual hostages of an inmate who only wants to sell them songs he's written. But another prisoner says he wrote the songs and the Partridges find themelves in the middle.

THE NAME OF THE GAME, 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. (Rerun.) A famous cowboy star's image gets tarnished when reporter Dave Corey (Guest-star Robert Wagner) turns up disturbing evidence in researching a story about food franchise operations. Originally, the episode was shown as "The Happy Ghost of Will Cheyenne" but has been changed to "The Man Who Shot a Ghost." Janet Leigh plays the cowboy's widow.

THE ODD COUPLE, 9:30 p.m., Channel 4. (Rerun.) "Bunny Is Missing, Down by the Lake." Oscar and Felix go away for the weekend to a cabin in the mountains, and it does nothing but rain. The boredom is interrupted by the sudden appearanc of a pretty young lady, seeking shelter for herself and three children she's minding. One of the little girls, Bunny, gets lost in the woods, and Felix and Oscar fearlessly charge into the woods to find her. They get lost.

MOTORCY

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

I just read a marvellous book called "The Menstrual Cycle," by Dr. Katharina Dalton, who in order to write this book has questioned and studied thousands of menstruating women and girls, and correlated their menstruation with various emotional and psychic disturbances.

Dr. Dalton points out that menstruation is a word used in medical circles, and by some women, but seldom by men. There are many nicknames for menstruation, such as "monthlies," "periods," or even "the curse." As she says, "At a time when sex is so openly discussed, this blinkered attitude to menstruation is utterly Victorian. Only recently has the subject been considered to be respectable enough to mention in the press or radio." She says that the average woman menstruates some 400 times in her life, and she points out that rarely does a woman go through life without an occasional painful or troublesome menstruation, so it is important for a woman — and for the men in her life — to understand something of this process.

The fact that menstruation has for long been considered unmentionable may be one reason for the lack of general knowledge about it, and for the fact that there are numerous "old wives' tales" about it.

Dr. Dalton has a fascinating chapter on the mythology of menstruation. For instance, in many countries, the presence of a menstruating woman in a place where men are working is believed to cause much harm. She is blamed for making wine sour, for blighting crops, for rusting iron and turning bronze and copper green. She might cause a cow to abort, make seeds dry up and make fruit on trees die; or she might cause bright mirrors to become dulled, the edge on sharpened metals to become dully the gleam of ivory to be dulled, a hive of bees to perish, strings of harps and violins to break, clocks to stop, and boiling linen to turn black. These strange ideas will explain why East Indian women make it a practice to go into purdah (a form of retirement) during these times.

* * *

In some communities, women are isolated in a special room during menstruation and during that time they must not eat from dishes that are used by the rest of the family. Once when I was visiting a native Hawaiian in his grass house, I saw at the lower end of his yard a tiny grass hut. When I asked him what that was for, he said that it was for his wife to live in when she was menstruating and religiously "unclean" and untouchable.

SIDNEY SCOOP

It is truly amazing what this property can do for you:

(1) If you are a retired couple, then investigate this attractive home only 3 blocks from the new Senior Citizens Centre. Here you have a 2-bedroom no-step home with a very large recreation or workshop area (or you can develop an extra suite for revenue if you wish. Extra bathroom and sink already there).

(2) If you are a family man, then, with minor work you can finish the third bedroom and have a large rec room to boot.

(3) If you are simply revenue minded, then by spending about $1500 you would have a duplex (multi-family zoned).

The property is ON SEWER, so financing should present no problem.

PRICE $19,500

3217 GLASGOW — $21,000

An extraordinary home at a very reasonable price.
GARDENERS will appreciate the small backyard greenhouse, the variety of shrubs, trees and the huge lot (75x204').
HANDYMEN-MECHANICS etc. will immediately reach for their deposit cheque when they see the large 14x30' garage equipped with heavy duty wiring for electric welding, etc., plus the large workshop area in basement and the long paved driveway for extra parking.
LOCATION. Not a mile and a half from town, ½ block to bus, 3 blocks to Maytair Shopping Centre, this is possibly the most convenient location in town, yet it has almost a country atmosphere.
THE HOME is superbly constructed of the very best materials featuring inlaid hardwood floors, beamed ceiling in the living room and the dining room has a feature bay window, plus entrance to the modern convenient pantry. The kitchen has a large eating area, large enough to accommodate a growing family should you wish to develop the attic at a future date. Presently there are 2 bedrooms and a sewing room, plus 2½ bathrooms, on the main floor. The home is in excellent condition with copper plumbing, heavy wiring, hot water heating and hookups for automatic washer and dryer. The owners are leaving for Australia or you would not have the opportunity to purchase this outstanding home now! Open for inspection Saturday, 1:30-4 p.m. or contact

Football Telecasts

VIEWERS TO SEE LIONS IN THREE

Football fans in the Victoria area will be able to watch telecasts of 25 games on the Canadian Football League's regular-season schedule, but only three of the contests will involve the British Columbia Lions.

Lions could make more appearances on the tube if they make the playoffs, in which television coverage will be divided between the CBC and CTV networks. Both networks will televise the Grey Cup final from Vancouver on Sunday, Nov. 28.

Radio stations CJVI (Victoria) and CKWX (Vancouver) will broadcast all 16 games the Lions play during the regular season. Both stations will also cover Western Conference playoffs and the Grey Cup final, and plan to pick up broadcasts of 12 regular games not involving the Lions.

Football enthusiasts are advised to clip and save the following schedule of games to be telecast (times of Western Conference playoffs will be announced when teams are determined):

Athletes May Find Heat-Stress Perils On Artificial Turf

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Everything seems to have medical side-effects these days: cyclamates, the pill, fatty diets, even sleep.

The latest is artificial turf, the chemical green that Canadian sports buffs in cities such as Vancouver, Hamilton and Ottawa see as the long-awaited solution to the country's less than favorable climate for Grey Cup games and the like.

But Canadian Football League players in such cities with artificial turf may be in for a sweatier and more dangerous game.

Dr. E. R. Buskirk, director of the laboratory for human performance research at Pennsylvania State University, has discovered that artificial turf is hotter than regular, natural sod.

And artificial turf increases body heat stress on hot days for athletes.

The discovery, which stems from the fact that artificial green absorbs more energy from the sun more quickly, confirms the suspicions of many American coaches and players who have used artificial turfs.

"It is typical," Dr. Buskirk said in a recent Medical Tribune article, "that artificial turf temperatures rise to 140 degrees Fahrenheit or higher at the time of maximum (solar) radiation (such as on a clear afternoon) while the grass sod temperature attained a maximum value of 90 degrees F." The results are based on tests with natural and artificial turfs.

"It is interesting to note that during the early hours of a clear day that

Rock Festival Set for Uvic On July 31

A rock festival with the apparent blessing of the city centennial committee has been set for the University of Victoria campus July 31.

Four Uvic students, including Martlet editor Mark Hume, say the 12-hour rockfest will feature a number of local bands and folk artists, as well as a 27-piece Chamber group and Vancouver singer Tom Northcott.

Performances will be in the gymnasium, with loudspeaker systems accommodating any fans who can't get into the 1,700-capacity building.

Proceeds will go to youth self-help groups, including Cool Aid, Native Friendship and NEED, food co-op and recycling activists.

NEEDS MONEY

Organizers said today the festival would need financial support, and the centennial committee's Jim Allan said the city likely would provide it.

"We've been looking for some way to involve the young people in substantial numbers in the centennial show," Allan said. "There are plenty of activities for the younger people — Cubs, Scouts and so on — and plenty for the older generation, but nothing for the late teens and early 20s group."

The committee earlier had offered to support a festival planned for Centennial Stadium or MacDonald Park. That one was cancelled by organizer Denis Scherk when he turned down the use of local amplifying equipment and insisted on the city paying for a sound system from Vancouver.

"Scherk was adamant on that equipment and the price was simply too high," Allan said.

City aldermen also have given tentative support to the idea of a rock festival to liven up what Ald. Clyde Savage termed the "sometimes dull" city of Victoria.

Municipal Heads To Meet Here

The Capital Regional District will be host to a board of directors meeting in November of the Canadian Federation of Municipalities.

District board chairman, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis, said the meeting could be a prelude to a full-scale convention of the organization in Greater Victoria in 1975.

At the executive meeting this fall, he said "we hope to make" a formal presentation inviting support for this area as the site for the 1975 convention.

Fire Damages Car, House

A faulty car gas line caused a fire Thursday that did about $3,000 damage at 838 Shamrock.

A Saanich fire department spokesman said the car was parked in the basement near some electrical equipment that is thought to have ignited gas fumes from the leaky gas line. The car and home were damaged.

Mrs. Jean Harris is the resident of the home, but the car is owned by Aleta Harris, 427 Linden, the department said.

New Citizens To Be Sworn In

A group of new Canadians will be presented with certificates of Canadian citizenship in Victoria Citizenship Court, 816 Government St., on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

Judge Norman Oreck, president of B.C. Citizenship Court, will preside.

MESSSAGE FOR METROS: KICK BALL, NOT GOALIE

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — In a sharply-worded letter, the general manager of Rochester Lancers of the North American Soccer League has told the Toronto Metros to kick the ball, not his goalie.

"The soccer ball, as you know, is round with white and black markings on it and it is not similar to Lancer goalie Claude Campos' jaw," Charles A. Schiano wrote Toronto manager Jack Daley.

During the Northern Division-leading Lancers' first visit to Toronto this year, Campos was kicked in the jaw and suffered multiple fractures.

"At our last, very pleasant visit to Toronto, Campos again had the pleasure of having his jaw kicked," Schiano wrote.

Daley said he was puzzled by the letter.

The Lancers and Metros meet for the third time this season in Toronto Saturday.

LOS ANGELES — When disc jockey Terry Lee became honorary mayor of Los Angeles Thursday he promptly appointed his own city council — a Playboy bunny, two actresses, an actor and a former football player. Lee, of Krel in Corona, decided he could play mayor because Mayor Sam Yorty had played disc jockey last week, substituting for vacationing Dick Whittinghill on KMPC. With permission from Yorty, Lee broadcast from city hall for three hours after being sworn in by city clerk Rex E. Layton.

PRINCE GEORGE — Warren Lloyd Kerr, 50, of Quesnel, B.C., charged with impaired flying, told a provincial court judge Thursday he carried pre-mixed rye whisky and water in his aircraft because he didn't trust drinking water at Mackenzie, 120 miles north of here.

Kerr was charged with flying while impaired at Tabor Lake near Prince George, March 25 and flying while the medical validation on his licence was invalid.

Judge J. Harold Kenney reserved decision until July 30.

NEW YORK — Barbra Streisand is to star in a film based on the life of actress Sarah Bernhardt. Filming is scheduled to start next spring in Paris and England. The film will be directed by Ken Russell.

HOLLYWOOD — "Mama Cass" Elliott, the plump, high-spirited lead vocalist in the Mamas and the Papas, has married Donald von Weidenman, a Bavarian baron. The marriage took place two weeks ago at Miss Elliott's home in Hollywood, her spokesman said Thursday. Her first marriage, in 1961 to James Hendrix, a folk musician, ended in a 1969 divorce.

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Actress Julie Andrews' brother and his wife have agreed to return to their native England on airline tickets paid for by the actress. The move is keeping them out of prison. Christopher Stuart Andrews, 25, and his wife, Sherry Lynne, 20, made the promise Thursday after pleading guilty to possession of dangerous drugs.

BERGEN, Norway — Financial problems and tough maritime control regulations apparently have forced British Columbia adventurer Eric Gordon Jennens to postpone an Atlantic crossing in a replica of a Viking ship. Jennens, 48, a Kelowna shipbuilder, has been ordered by the Norwegian maritime directorate to modify his 60-foot ship if the vessel is to be certified seaworthy. Jennens, who built the vessel and had it transported to Norway, planned to cross the north Atlantic with his wife Sylvia, their four children ages 16 to 21, and a crew of 15 Norwegians, the way the Vikings did it — without life rafts.

Jobless Aided

LONDON (Reuter) — In a move to cut Britain's 724,000 unemployment total, the government has announced a two-year, $240 million development plan for regions where the jobless rate is especially high.

BENNETT OPENS PARK ON MONDAY

Premier Bennett will officially open a new park at the Inner Harbor Monday at 4 p.m.

Centennial Park, on the south side of the harbor between the Bapco paint property and the CPR docks, is the centennial project of the Capital Improvement District Commission.

During the brief ceremony a totem pole will be unveiled. It is one of the poles commissioned for presentation to each of the provinces and territories and the federal government by the B.C. Centennial Committee.

The park consists of a seawall, waterfront promenade, shrubs, flowers and walkways with standards for flying the flags of Canada and the 10 provinces.

CAPITAL SCENE

The Canadian Amateur Baton Twirling Teachers Association will sponsor the Western Canadian twirling championships on July 25 at the University of Victoria gym starting at 8:30 a.m. Closing date for entries is tonight at midnight.

A craft show and demonstrations of weaving, pottery, batik and other skills will be held on Saturday from 2 to 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, 106 Superior. Most of those taking part are members of the congregation.

★ ★ ★

The Kiwanis Club of Saanich will hold its annual golf party at Mattick's Farm on Tuesday. Dinner will be at 7:30 whether or not the weather is suitable for golf.

★ ★ ★

A folk concert in aid of the George Pearkes Clinic for handicapped children will be held July 30 at the Newcombe Auditorium at 8:30 p.m.

Local singers Mark Middler, Doug Lang, Sherman Sheldon and Ted Bath will be featured.

Grant Awarded

ESTON, Sask. (CP) — A $25,000 federal grant will be given this municipality to aid in construction of an airport, Transport Minister Don Jamieson announced Thursday. The money will be used to construct a 2,160-foot gravel runway.

Mime Workshop To Open Here On July 26

A mime workshop will be held at the Open Space Theatre, 510 Fort, three mornings a week, beginning Monday, July 26.

The two-hour sessions will be directed by Kaz Piesowocki, formerly with the Polish National Mime Troupe and now an instructor with the Vancouver City College.

He will be at the theatre Monday to Friday of next week from 9 to 10 a.m. each day to give information on the workshop program.

The instruction will include physical exercises and training in various mime skills.

HALIBUT CATCH FORFEITED

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Vancouver halibut boat skipper Mike Hoffenden has given up his 13,000-pound catch and part of his gear to the U.S. government in exchange for his freedom from charges of illegally fishing within the U.S. three-mile territorial limit.

The young bearded skipper was en route Thursday night to Ketchikan, where his vessel is being held by the coast guard, after the out-of-court settlement.

No dollar value was placed on the gear or halibut.

EMERGENCY CAUSES EMERGENCY

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Captain William Wolf of the Anderson Township volunteer fire department, wanted to advertise the department's forthcoming festival with a gigantic balloon.

He obtained a 35-foot balloon and was filling it with air when the emergency phone rang.

He dashed inside the fire house to answer the call and dispatch the life squad, but he had left the automatic air compressor on.

Now Wolf is looking for a big patch.

Save the Egg

Three Nations Squabble Over Ownership of Island

SAIGON (Reuter)—South Vietnam has joined nationalist China and the Phillippines in a squabble over ownership of the tiny Spratly island group in the South China sea.

In a statement, the foreign ministry said the Spratly Islands have been part of Vietnamese territory "from time immemorial."

The foreign ministry said south Vietnam has full sovereignty over the Spratly and Parcel island groups and "therefore rejects any claims from any foreign power over those islands."

The dispute comes at a time of speculation over the possibility of oil fields under the South China Sea.

The Spratly Islands, about 300 miles southeast of South Vietnam, have been claimed at various times by China, Nationalist China, the Philippines, South Vietnam, France and The Netherlands.

The latest dispute over ownership of the 22 tiny islands flared up early this month when a Filipino congressman charged that an "alien force" fired at him from the islands during a fishing trip.

The Manila government charged that Nationalist China was illegally occupying the islands and asked the Taipei government to withdraw its troops from the area.

The Philippines said the islands should be under the trusteeship of the powers that defeated Japan in the Second World War.

Outlining the historical background of South Vietnam's claim to Spratly, the foreign ministry said the islands figured as part of Vietnamese territory on the first maps published by Vietnam in 1834.

U.S. Rail Line Hit by Strike; Talks Fruitless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strikers began shutting down today the Southern Railway and the Union Pacific after all-night summit negotiations.

The two lines together account for 8.9 per cent of the rail miles and carry 23 per cent of all rail shipments of farm produce in the United States, industry figures show. Few commuters are affected.

The first pickets were reported shortly after the 6 a.m. strike deadline at Southern's facilities in Knoxville, Tenn., and Asheville, N.C., and at the UP's headquarters in Omaha.

However, negotiations among cabinet officials, rail presidents and President Charles Luna of the AFL-CIO United Transportation Union were set to resume later, possibly today.

ISSUES CLARIFIED

The extraordinary summit session began Thursday night and included Transportation Secretary John Volpe, acting Labor Secretary Laurence Silverman, Assistant Labor Secretary W. J. Usery, four rail presidents and the representatives of a fifth rail chief.

Silberman said, "We were unsuccessful in averting a strike. However, we believe the issues were clarified and narrowed."

The strike over work rules would make idle an estimated 48,000 employees on the two roads and affect southern and western states. However, effects of the strike—the third major rail stoppage in seven months—would be felt in various degrees by other railways.

Also at the labor department bargaining table were the president of the Norfolk and Western and a representative for the Southern Pacific, the two roads set for a UTU strike next Friday, and the president of Chicago and North Western whose 6 a.m. strike deadline has been delayed by a federal court until July 23.

REPRESENT 190,000

The UTU represents 190,000 brakemen and other operating crew members.

In addition to work rules, key issues are wages and working conditions.

Rail spokesmen have argued the UTU should accept a contract package similar to the one signed by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. That package included a 42-per-cent pay raise over 42 months and elimination of disputed work rules.

One of the key work rules at issue requires train crews to change after about 100 miles of travel.

To combat the strike, the rail industry promised to impose tougher work rules against employees of non-struck lines, including raising that 100-mile limit, eliminating extra pay for certain tasks and requiring yard crews to service all sidings within four miles of their yard.

The Southern and Union Pacific employ 48,734 persons. But the industry says a strike, and implementation of the more rigid rules, would result in loss of thousands of other UTU jobs.

Compensation To Mines Next Step

SANTIAGO (Reuter) — The government of President Salvador Allende now has to consider compensation for Chile's nationalized copper mines, aware that its decision may dictate the future course of relations with the United States.

Allende launched the takeover of Chile's huge mining industry —in which three American companies have an investment estimated at more than $700 million —at a ceremony in the presidential palace Thursday. In a further move to fulfil the government's pledge to nationalize the mining industry, private banks and monopolies, Central Bank President Alfonso Inostroza announced the state takeover of the British-owned Bank of London and South America.

The nationalization of the British bank—the oldest foreign bank in Chile, and the 14th to come under state control — came just 24 hours after Inostroza announced that the government would take over the Bank of America's Chilean subsidiary July 31.

In Washington, U.S. officials said they hoped a satisfactory compensation agreement could be worked out between the Chilean government and the three American copper-mining companies — Kennecott, Anaconda and Cerro Corp. They noted that Chile already owned a 51-per-cent stake in each of the three, but they made it clear they were paying close attention to the way it got hold of the remaining 49 per cent.

The companies would make no comment.

The government has a full six months provided by the nationalization law to reach its decision on the question of compensation. Copper industry sources said Allende, the Western world's first freely-elected Marxist head of state, would consider the question for a long time in view of its effect on future relations with the U.S.

Minister Fined

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — A Baptist minister was convicted of violating Virginia Beach's anti-littering ordinance by distributing religious handbills on the streets. Rev. George T. Stallings, pastor of First Colonial Baptist Church was fined $50 and costs in municipal court. He had been arrested July 6 on complaint of a passer-by who was handed one of the handbills.

Hot Pants A World Apart

Times News Services

One makes her own and another says "never again."

The girls are beauty contestants and the subject was hot pants.

Australia's shapely Toni Rayward, left, brought a dazzling hand-made wardrobe to Miami Beach for the Miss Universe pageant which ends Saturday, July 24.

The 19-year-old daughter of a Sydney mechanic, 35-22-35, says she sews everything from hot pants to formal gowns.

On the other side of the world, Miss Bangkok, 19-year-old Supak Likikul, returned home to strong criticism for wearing hot pants.

She got off the plane from California wearing a smashing hot pants outfit.

What was supposed to be a warm welcome turned into a chilly greeting from her mother who said: "Nice girls don't wear such clothes."

Miss Bangkok retired to an airport room, changed, and vowed never again to wear such clothes.

CAUSES 'GREAT PARANOIA'

Clean-Cut Doctors Needed

TORONTO (CP) — Rochdale College's medical clinic has reacted sharply to a "clean-cut" advisory issued doctors at two Toronto hospitals "in the belief a well-groomed doctor affects patients favorably.

Staff at the clinic were ordered Wednesday night not to cut their hair or beards or wear jackets and ties.

"There is no justification for the clinic staff to add to a person's fears by adopting an authoritarian mode of dress, behavior and grooming which tends to produce great paranoia such as is routinely generated by the staff of some major hospitals in Metro," a Rochdale release said.

Rochdale is a downtown high-rise, run by students whose uninhbited behavior has frequently been a source of criticism. There has been pressure to close the college, now in financial difficulties and sometimes the target of police drug raids.

Bomb Scare Forces Plane To Make Emergency Landing

STEPHENVILLE, Nfld. (CP) — A National Airlines DC-8 jet, en route to London from Miami, made an emergency landing here early today after receiving word that a bomb was aboard.

An unidentified caller notified the National Airlines office in Miami that a bomb was hidden on the plane he demanded $50,000 to say where the bomb was hidden and how to de-activate it.

Captain Jerry Kepner landed the plane at 12:06 a.m. just five minutes before the caller said the bomb would go off.

All 110 passengers and crew aboard the plane were evacuated safely.

Transport department officials and the RCMP searched the plane but no bomb was found.

The jet resumed its flight to London at 4:55 a.m.

FROM A BEACH

'Society's a Cook And I'm an Eater'

A week ago in this space I recorded some impressions on seeing a young man and woman living in a driftwood shack near China Beach beyond Jordan River. It was, I suppose, an envious account since it seemed, on the surface, an idyllic, carefree existence, totally removed from the conventions, anxieties and responsibilities of the treadmill society.

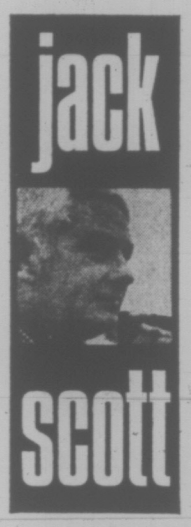
"I don't know if these young people bring a philosophy to their way of life," I confessed.

The letter that follows reached me yesterday. It is unsigned. If it does, in fact, reflect the thinking of a significant number of young people who have dropped out it is a disturbing letter and a disturbing philosophy.

★ ★ ★

Dear Mr. Scott:

A friend of ours in Jordan River has brought us the article you wrote about our life on the beach and how you were wondering how come that me and my chick obviously were drinking in life. Also you were questioning why it was that you lived such a complicated and, may I assume, less happy existence than we did. You expressed the wish that you could be like us. Unencumbered and free.



It is not a habit of mine to assist others if it does not benefit me but you sounded so tired and so hungry for your own freedom that I will make an exception in your case and try to explain how to become like we are.

First of all, let's take a very simple example that, at the same time, deals with a basic function, namely cooking and eating a meal.

There are very many (usually female) people that seem to gain far more satisfaction out of preparing food than eating it. My mother used to work for two or more days preparing a meal for guests and when it came to eating she hardly had any of it herself, but seemed to enjoy watching the others have a ball. There are also very many people that don't care a hoot or a holler about making a meal for others, but get their kicks out of eating food.

As we all have to eat to sustain ourselves it seems logic to me, and I hope to you, that the second group has the more practical approach as far as being free of preparing food is concerned. I only prepare a meal if there is no one around who does it for me.

I hope you are with me so far because from here I take a jump to draw a parallel with our great society. In our society we are all taught to serve it, produce for it and find enjoyment out of the fact that others feast on it. Every function in society is a matter of producing more than one consumes. Because every function is based on the principle of being the cook we accept the fact of being responsible for others' welfare.

In other words, Mr. Scott, your freedom has to be sacrificed for your guests.

★ ★ ★

Most people accept this arrangement for most of their lives mainly because all these different functions are sugar-coated with nice, warm phrases. Such as Love, Responsibility, Honor, Care, Duty, you name it. But it all means one thing and that is, Goodbye freedom.

In my case I have simply declared my refusal to participate in this merry-go-round as another upright, uptight citizen. If the whole society is so keen to cater and be productive for each other and have learned to do this without protest then I am willing to be one of those that sits down at the table and feast on what they are so eagerly producing all their lives.

Society is my cook. I am the consumer.

You name it and if I like it I consume it. Did you say Love? Certainly I am always willing to consume love. Everybody is allowed to love me. It's wonderful and it's delicious. Parent's love, brother's love, neighbor's love and, the best of all, girl's love. Don't ask me to produce it. Just let them serve it to me and I feast on it. The chick you saw me with on the beach is on the same wave-length. We consume each other, but she is really madly in love with herself and I am madly in love with myself.

Anyway, Mr. Scott, that little something that won't stop haunting you is freedom. You can never have it so long as all your time and strength is taken up with producing.

So go on and envy us wherever you may run into us, on a highway hitching a ride, in a youth centre having a meal, in an abandoned shack having a sleep, on a street corner bumming a smoke, or laughing on our beach. You will envy us until you stop catering and start digesting.

Until that time, be seeing you.

Doctor 'Quixotes' Annoy Cumming

The chairman of the Capital regional hospital board said Thursday he is tired of doctor Don Quixotes in the St. Joseph's Hospital dispute who set up mythical windmills so they can knock them down.

Jim Cumming was replying to a Times story earlier this week in which Dr. Gordon Lott, president of the Victoria Medical Society, said it was misleading of Cumming to present size and cost comparisons between land alongside St. Joseph's Hospital and property in View Royal under consideration for hospital development.

★ ★ ★

"The regional hospital board has never proposed, suggested, discussed or supported an acute hospital in the western area," said Cumming.

"We are in the process of acquiring land for extended care, a 225-bed unit, with extra land for future expansion, just as we did on the (Saanich) peninsula over a year ago when we acquired 22 acres for future expansion.

"We are on record from last December that we purchase the land made available by the Sisters of St. Ann to us at St. Joseph's Hospital.

"It is becoming tiresome to read of the Don Quixotes of the medical profession setting up artificial windmills so they can knock them down. They should check the record first and then get into print."

ULTIMATE LOSER in a drawn-out battle over expropriation of his land, Pat Codyre of 1890 Munn Road watches a helicopter install poles for B.C. Hydro's power line from Pike Lake substation to downtown Victoria. Codyre has refushed to cash a cheque from Hydro which the company claims is fair payment for the land expropriated from him. He also has refused to move from his home, and claims the positioning of the poles Thursday shows Hydro didn't need the expropriated land.

Social Workers' Brief 'Only Negative One'

A brief by the local branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers was "the only negative one" of the 20 to 30 received on integration of social services, Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning said today.

Mrs. Gunning, chairman of the capital Regional District's social services committee, was replying to criticisms by local branch president R. T. Ferris.

She said the brief was received unsigned and had not been taken before a full meeting of the branch.

"In spite of this, the committee gave full consideration to the brief and it was acknowledged to Mr. Ferris," she said.

Referring to other favorable briefs, she said the Family and Children's Service, which has publicly expressed its reservations, agreed to the concept but that the integration should be under the F and CS.

She said integration of social services was studied by a citizens committee which interviewed 85 agencies.

"Naturally we were talking with social workers," she said.

Referring to Ferris' comment that only statistical quantity and not service quality was considered, Mrs. Gunning said "our terms of reference were to study the administrative structure for delivery of service. We found it a most uneven pattern and confusing network. The best quality service in the world would be of no use if not delivered efficiently to those who need it."

To Ferris' comment that no attempt was made to ask people who receive service from agencies what they think, Mrs. Gunning said "we did interview the Low Income Group" and a public invitation was made for individuals or groups to write or telephone their comments.

"Of all those, truly this was the only negative one," she said of the social workers branch.

Local municipalities are being asked to approve the "regionalization" of such services as Victoria, Saanich and provincial welfare and the Family and Children's Service, if approved, would become a department of the regional district.

Garth Homer, director of the Community Council of Greater Victoria, which issued a report on the feasibility of regional social services last December, said today that he has had "considerable discussion" with Ferris.

HADDOCK 'FAIRLY GOOD'

Mayor Courtney Haddock spent a comfortable night and his condition remains "fairly good" today, according to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Haddock, 65, suffered a heart attack Tuesday. No date has been set for his return to city hall.

ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY

Uvic Pair in Air Crash

Two University of Victoria students were among five passengers who escaped serious injury Thursday night when their light plane crashed in the bush 10 miles north of Fort St. John.

Bryan McConnell, 22, of 2406 Central Ave., and Hayden Thomas, 19, of 73 Kingham Place, were treated and released from hospital after the twin-engined Dornier in which they were passengers crashed into the bank of a stream shortly after takeoff.

Richard Swanson, 21, of 845 Ryan Rd., Richmond, also was released from hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

Pilot Doug McKinnon of Fort St. John and Peter Guise of Mile 175, Alaska Highway, suffered leg fractures. Both are out of hospital.

All but the pilot were employed by B.C. Forest Service.

Air Executive Ltd., owners of the plane which was rented to the forest service, said the aircraft was a write-off. It had just taken off from a lake, and tops of trees at the end of the lake had been clipped off.

The five were flown out of the bush area by helicopter after a brief air search.

Shortage of Blood May Curb Surgery

Doctors at both Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals said today some surgery may have to be cancelled next week because of a critical shortage of blood.

They appealed for a major turnout of donors at clinics to be held by the Red Cross in Victoria next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Both hospitals received only half what they requested from the central supply depot in Vancouver recently because that's all that was available.

Blood from all clinics goes to the Vancouver depot and is distributed from there to all hospitals.

"The hospital is in a precarious position," Dr. Charles Bellam, medical director at Jubilee said. "There's a critical shortage of blood and carrying out essential surgery and perhaps even emergency surgery is prejudiced and jeopardized.

"The Vancouver blood bank is doing all it can but they can't give us blood they don't have."

At St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. Embert Van Tilburg, executive director, said the blood supply is also half what it normally is and there is a possibility surgery might have to be cancelled.

The problem is compounded by the number of emergencies recently such as car accidents.

"We had a real rush over last weekend," he said.

The blood donor clinics Monday and Tuesday will be at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort Street, from 1:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon and 6:30 to 9:00 in the evening.

On Wednesday the clinic moves to the Student Union Building at the University of Victoria, from 9:30 to noon and 1:15 to 3:30 p.m.

People aged 18 to 65 in good health and not using medication qualify as donors.

The turnout at two Red Cross House clinics in Victoria last month was 73 and 77 when the minimum objective each day was 150.

At the same time, clinics in New Westminster with the same objective drew 185 and 213 donors.

The medical director of the Red Cross blood transfusion service in Vancouver said today that some clinics in Victoria such as at the dockyard and Legislative Buildings have been quite good.

But the Red Cross must depend on the regular clinics at Red Cross House and if the blood supply is not good there next week "we'll go from trouble to deep trouble," said Dr. T. D. Stout.

'Bodies Were Lying' On Sidewalks, Lawns

An Esquimalt man was fined $75 in court today when he pleaded guilty to allowing drunkenness in his home.

John H. Ibbetson, 854 Lampson, asked Judge William Ostler if his name and address could be kept out of the papers.

Ostler said he had no control over the press and from the facts the man's address "seems to be pretty well-known."

Prosecutor J. W. Anderson said the section was rarely applied but was in this case as a result of police activity at the Lampson Street residence starting about a year ago.

Anderson said the incident involved a woman and another man at the home. The other man, the prosecutor said, had appeared before Ostler on another matter earlier in the year.

Anderson said complaints had been received by residents and neighbors and added that police had been called a minimum of 20 times.

He said incidents took place inside, outside the house and on the street and all involved drunkenness of persons at the home.

The prosecutor said there had been "bodies lying on the front lawn and sidewalks" on occasion and there had been numerous assaults.

Ibbetson told Ostler he was trying to control the situation as best he could and had kicked out various people.

Ostler said he was not trying hard enough and it was "a public scandal, and public nuisance" and "disgraceful."

Ibbetson said he was "a natural target for partying people" but Ostler said there was no such thing.

Pedestrain Killed By Pickup Truck

An 18-year-old pedestrian was killed early this morning when struck by a pickup truck on the Trans-Canada Highway near Grange Road.

Saanich police identified the victim as David Gardner, 3923 Wlkinson Road.

Police declined to name the truck driver because the accident is still under investigation.

The accident occurred about 12:55 a.m.

AS A CONVINCED Vancouver Islander, I'm not easily persuaded into leaving our sea-girt paradise, but those potted house-plants I mentioned last week need transporting to Yellowknife, and through the kindness of Victorians who have made the long haul by car, we're well-stocked with useful advice.

When my wife and I began to plan the trip, we found that detailed information about how best to cope with its specialized problems was hard to come by.

What to take? What to expect and prepare for? How best to handle the hundreds of miles of gravelled highway that begin in northern Alberta and end deep in the Northwest Territories?

A Mayday to readers brought a speedy return of phone calls and letters. For these, our grateful thanks.

For others who may be contemplating a jaunt along the Mackenzie Highway this summer, here's a digest of travel tips received.

Some who got in touch took no special precautions, arrived home with the original air in their tires, and didn't pick up so much as a gravel pock in a windshield.

One or two others remember the trip as an ordeal they wouldn't care to repeat. They stressed dry-weather dust or rainy-day mud, also the mosquitoes and black flies, and the damage done to their vehicles.

But most of those who filled us in took a position between these extremes.

A great country and a rewarding experience, was their verdict. They looked forward to repeating the venture some other year. But we might as well resign ourselves to certain tribulations, and we would be wise to minimize these by preparing for them before we tackled the gravel.

In a typical dry northern summer, we would run into dust where the blacktop ends near Manning, Alta. Each car and truck trailed a rolling wake of it, and the stuff got into everything. Stow your suitcases in big plastic garbage bags, one caller advised. Keep your windows up when other rigs are approaching or overtaking (passing is dangerous, he warned) and you'll miss some of the dust.

The highway itself is wide and well-maintained. You can drive it at reasonable speed. (I should note here that the definition of "reasonable" varied with the driver.)

But where car protection from gravel is concerned, the verdict was all but unanimous. Gas tanks need guarding from stones that your car's front wheels kick back at high velocity. Failure to do so is to court punctured metal and lost fuel.

"Don't try sheathing the underside of your tank in rubber." said one man who drove down from Yellowknife with his family earlier this month. "Here's how we do it."

Scrunched down and peering, I saw that he had wired an apron of heavy industrial webbing to hang from the frame a few inches ahead of his gas tank as a rock-guard.

He and most other informants leaned on the need for clip-on headlight protectors if we hoped to reach Yellowknife with sealed-beams intact. "Mae Wests," hearty northerners call these plastic bubbles. A time or two, plastic windshield guards were mentioned — although the attitude prevailing is that we'd best be prepared to shuck out for a new windshield when we come home.

Bug screen? Some recommended one. Others considered a bug screen an unnecessary nuisance. On this item, it seems to be driver's choice.

But we were told that it would be unwise to extend this casual approach to our car's rubber.

We would see plenty of busted tires alongside the highway, and might add to the number. Good tires are a must, and one spare isn't enough. Take another, preferably wheel-mounted. Just as well too, if we tossed in a spare fan belt, a fuel can to provide emergency gallonage if needed on the stationless run of over 300 miles from Fort Providence near the Mackenzie River ferry crossing to Yellowknife on Great Slave Lake.

And here's a driving hint. When a car or truck is approaching, or passing, pull well over and slow down. This will lessen the risk of gravel damage. But don't stop, or you could be tail-ended by someone who can't see you for dust.

Motels and campgrounds don't precisely crowd each other, but we were assured that finding overnight accommodation poses no serious problem. Also, we'd get more out of the trip if we made some side-excursions for waterfall viewings and such.

For the mosquitoes and blackflies, best approach a philosophical outlook, backed by a spray can of insect repellant. On second thought, better take two cans, or maybe three. Favored brand: "Off."

Oh, yes — the potted plants. Send 'em by air. Again, the dust.

And that's about it, except to pass on an assurance frequently repeated. There are difficulties. But if you need help, someone will stop —and you'll find it a trip to enjoy and remember.

DIPLOMATIC HORIZONS EXPAND

Nixon to Visit Peking

THE MAN who engineered the visit, Dr. Henry Kissinger, far right, joins President Nixon in receiving an enthusiastic crowd after leaving a Los Angeles restaurant where they dined following Nixon's announcement that he will visit mainland China in the near future. (AP Wirephoto)

Surprise Speech Stuns U.S.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (CP) — President Nixon announced Thursday night he will visit Peking within 10 months at the invitation of Premier Chou En-lai of the People's Republic of China. The president said he will seek a "normalization" of relations between the United States and China.

The White House added today that the visit will take place well before the 10 months pass.

The visit was arranged last weekend by Chou and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's adviser on national security affairs who made a secret stop in Peking during a 10-day trip around the world.

The president's unexpected announcement was made on television and radio.

Speaking for five minutes from the National Broacasting Co. studios in Burbank, Calif. Nixon said the purpose of his mission "is to seek a normalization of relations between the two countries and also to exchange views on questions of concern to the two sides."

EFFECT CAMPAIGN

The Nixon journey is expected to have an impact on the 1972 presidential campaign in the United States and may have an influence on the search for a negotiated peace in Vietnam.

Now it is more widely assumed than ever that the Nixon administration will not challenge the bid this fall for admission of mainland China to the United Nations.

In fact, Nixon's reference to "normalization of relations" seemed to suggest that his visit to Peking will be climaxed by establishment of full diplomatic relations between the United States and the Communist government which took over mainland China 22 years ago.

Nixon said: "I will undertake what I deeply hope will become a journey for peace — peace not just for our generation, but for future generations on this earth we share together."

The president quoted from a joint announcement, made simultaneously in Peking.

ACCEPTS INVITATION

"Knowing of President Nixon's expressed desire to visit the People's Republic of China, Premier Chou En-lai, on behalf of the government of the People's Republic of China, has extended an invitation to President Nixon to

Formosa Lodges Protest

TOKYO (CP) — Nationalist China lodged a strong protest today against President Nixon's plan to visit Communist China and a South Korean spokesman termed the trip shocking news. But other Asian allies of the United States approved.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu was not immediately available for comment, but an aide said: "This is something he considers as an encouraging development."

The report reached the Far East in mid-morning and took government officials and the public by surprise. Newspapers rushed out extra editions and anxious callers jammed newspaper switchboards for details.

James C. Shen, Nationalist China's ambassador to the United States, said in Washington he was not informed of Nixon's plans until about half an hour before the president's broadcast.

His report apparently did not reach Taipei before the news reports and at the news top officials of President Chiang Kaishek's regime went into a hurried conference. Afterward, a spokesman said, the government had "lodged a strong protest to the government of the United States."

SURPRISES OFFICIALS

Nixon's announcement surprised officials and private citizens in South Korea. A spokesman for the foreign ministry said "it was shocking news."

Seoul citizens, many with bewildered looks, intently read the news on bulletin boards in front of newspaper buildings before the evening papers hit the streets.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government termed Nixon's announcement a "very good thing." Acting Foreign Minister Toshio Kimura said: "We welcome the visit as an improvement of relations between the United States and China." He said his government was informed in advance of Nixon's plans.

Prime Minister Sir Keith Holyoake of New Zealand called Nixon's announcement heartening and said: "I hope this development will give more depth to recent tendencies on the part of China toward more relaxed relations with other countries."

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman of Thailand, whose country has troops in Vietnam, said Nixon's trip may help bring peace to Southeast Asia.

"It is big news and important news," he said while attending the Asian foreign ministers conference in Manila.

HAIL NEWS

Prime Minister Trudeau today described President Nixon's decision to visit Peking as "a very significant move."

He told reporters he was "very pleased" that a dialogue has been established between the United States and China.

Mr. Trudeau said there is a growing international awareness that mainland China cannot be frozen out of world affairs.

The prime minister said timing for his own tentatively scheduled visit to Peking has

Armed Gang of Irishmen Snatch Man From Hospital

BELFAST (Reuter) — An armed gang of Irish Republican militants burst into a heavily-guarded hospital here today and snatched a wounded patient as nurses watched helplessly.

One of the gunmen broke the hospital's security by donning a white doctor's gown, walking calmly into the ward and then producing a sub-machine-gun from under his coat.

The gang of five men were believed to be members of the militant provisional branch of the outlawed Irish Republican Army and the wounded man a comrade captured in a bomb incident in a Roman Catholic part of Belfast this week.

A car drew up outside the Royal Victoria Hospital in the heart of the Catholic part of Belfast.

The five gunmen scrambled out, entered the building and tied and gagged two security guards. Apparently acting on inside information, they made their way to the ward where their comrade was under police guard.

The bogus doctor then held up the police guards with his submachine-gun and called his four colleagues, also armed, who trooped in.

One of the policemen was reported to have been slightly injured when he resisted. The patient was carried out by the men.

The wounded man had been shot in the thigh during his capture and was reported to have lost a leg. He and his rescuers clambered into the waiting car and drove off.

Security forces immediately threw a net around the city and roadblocks were set up on all highways leading to the Republic of Ireland where the gang was expected to try to smuggle the patient.

Thursday, Prime Minister Brian Faulkner told the people of Londonderry, where some of the most violent and bloody clashes have taken place involving Catholics, Protestants and British troops, that they could have social and economic benefits, or they could have riot and the fruits of riot—"destruction, injury and death."

"They cannot have both," he said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Boycott Announced

BELFAST (Reuter) — Northern Ireland's main opposition party announced today it will boycott the Ulster Parliament following the British government's refusal to hold an independent inquiry into the shooting of two civilians by British troops last week.

Train Derailed

QUESNEL (CP) — Eight cars of a Pacific Great Eastern railway train left the track today about three miles south of here. There were no injuries. Rail crews expected to have the track back in service later today or Saturday. Cause of the derailment was not known.

Air Canada Union Strikes Saturday

By DAVID BARKER

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada will be hit by the first of a series of rotating strikes of its maintenance and ground personnel at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Mike Pitchford, chief negotiator for the International Association of Machinists which represents the 6,200 Air Canada employees involved, announced the decision at a news conference today.

He said the union would decide tonight what city or region would be affected by the first 24-hour walkout.

An Air Canada spokesman said the airline will try to maintain normal operations as long as possible, but it cannot make any preparations until it finds out where the first strike will take place.

The spokesman said Mr. Pitchford had promised "to give us ample advance notice" of strike action so that the travelling public would not be inconvenienced.

"We'll try to keep operating unless it becomes too much for us to handle."

The starting time of the first 24-hour strike would be 8 a.m. local time in the region affected.

Mr. Pitchford said the union is not prepared to discuss its contract dispute with Air Canada unless the airline agrees to resume talks "without any prior restrictions."

POSITION UNCHANGED

In a telegram sent to airline President John Baldwin, the union said bargaining is impossible if Air Canada refuses beforehand to discuss any proposals that would cost more than a contract offer it made a week ago.

"It is still apparent that Air Canada's position toward the resumption of bargaining remains essentially unchanged from that taken by your committee last Friday, July 9," the telegram said.

"It is not possible to bargain effectively under these circumstances."

The union therefore was not prepared to resume talks unless Air Canada "is free to enter into negotiations without any restrictions on any matter remaining in dispute."

The union says the main issues at stake are job security, length of contract, overtime pay and scheduling of shifts.

ASK MACKASEY AID

In another telegram to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey, the union asked for his intervention "contingent on your ability to persuade Air Canada to resume collective bargaining without any prior restrictions."

"It is our feeling that unless Air Canada agrees to lift their restrictions on their negotiations concerning matters to be discussed we do not believe any useful purpose would be served by your department."

The union has promised to give advance notice of strike action for the convenience of the travelling public.

Air Canada's operations have not been disturbed since the end of a 24-hour study session Tuesday by 5,200 employees in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Airline president John Baldwin talked with Mr. Pitchford on the telephone Wednesday night and Thursday in an attempt to find some common ground in the dispute.

Face-to-face negotiations broke down last Friday.

Tobacco Ad Restriction Challenged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eight firms concerned with tobacco advertising have started a court challenge of British Columbia's pending ban on tobacco and alcohol.

A writ filed in B.C. Supreme Court Thursday by four major tobacco companies, three publishing firms and the advertising wing of the Canadian Football League claims the provincial government went beyond its powers when it passed legislation last spring that would ban such ads effective Sept. 1.

The writ names Attorney-General Leslie Peterson as defendant.

It is filed on behalf of Benson and Hedges (Canada) Ltd., Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd., Macdonald Tobacco Marketing Ltd., Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd., Maclean-Hunter Ltd., Southstar Publishers Ltd., Time Canada Ltd., and CFL Properties Ltd.

CFL Properties handles advertising contracts for the football league, such as those connected with ads in game programs in the nine CFL cities, including Vancouver.

The plaintiffs seek a Supreme Court declaration that

Vote Defies Nixon On Pakistan Aid

WASHINGTON (WP) — The House foreign affairs committee voted Thursday to cut off military and economic aid to Greece unless it restores constitutional rule, and to suspend major aid to Pakiston until the "reign of terror" in East Pakistan is remedied.

This major, double challenge of Nixon administration policy by the once-passive House committee caught U.S. officials by surprise. State department sources said they hope to overturn the actions in the full House or in the Senate.

The following votes were reported taken in a closed meeting of the House committee which is still in the process of marking up the current $3.3 billion foreign aid authorization bill.

● On a 17 to 12 vote, to stop all military assistance and sales to Greece until the present military junta permits a return to constitutional rule, unless President Nixon specifies in writing that continued U.S. aid is required by "overriding requirements of the national security of the United States."

Even if the president makes that finding, U.S. military aid to Greece still would be limited to the $80 million ceiling for the fiscal year that ended June 30. Instead, $117 million is being requested for Greece in the current 12-months that started July 1.

● On a 17 to 6 vote, to suspend all military and economic aid to Pakistan, until the president reports to congress that Pakistan is "cooperating fully in allowing the situation in East Pakistan to return to reasonable stability" and millions of refugees who have fled to India have been allowed to return to East Pakistan to reclaim lands and property, to the extent feasible.

KOREAN REQUEST

The aid suspension for Pakistan would permit use of $100 million voted earlier by the committee for refugee relief. But the withholding vote on other aid would suspend $118.3 million requested by the administration for development and technical aid to Pakistan.

Among other actions taken by the committee, an attempt to increase by $50 million the $239.4 million sought by the administration for military aid to South Korea was defeated 16 to 12.

The votes to withhold Greek-Pakistan aid funds were described by congressional sources as "a questioning of the administration's judgment," arising in large part from the "re-thinking" under way in Congress stimulated by U.S. policy in the Indochina war.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D — Ohio) led the fight to ban arms aid to Greece, which he lost in the committee on Wednesday on a 14 to 12 vote. At that time, a more moderate proposal by Rep. Paul Findley (R — Ill.) to limit military grants to Greece also was defeated.

Arabs Report Rocket Attacks

BEIRUT, Lebanon (Reuter) Palestinian Arab commandos said the Jordanian air force was using rockets and napalm against them in fierce fighting in the north Jordan town of Ajloun that still raged early today.

In Damascus, guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat said fighting between the army and the commandos had continued into its fourth straight day.

Jordanian authorities, meanwhile, said in Amman that the army had forced the commandos out of their last stronghold in Jordan and moved them to an unpopulated area overlooking the ceasefire line with Israel.

Drug Proceeds Buy Votes

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu and Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky had no immediate comment today on a report that the illegal drug traffic is helping to finance their presidential campaigns.

Phil Brady, a National Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Saigon, said his report was based on information from Vietnamese sources. It was broadcast Thursday on NBC news.

Brady said the sources told him that many illegal drugs are brought in by the South Vietnamese Air Force with the "blessing" of Ky, a former air force commander.

"And, they added, Ky needs the money more than ever before for his presidential campaign chest."

Ky, who has announced he will oppose Thieu in the Oct. 3 election, has denied previous allegations that he smuggled narcotics and gold.

Brady said Thieu is obsessed with being re-elected and because he needs money for the campaign he is "not asking where it comes from."

Brady quoted his sources as saying "another outfit pushing drugs is the Vietnamese national police," commanded by Maj.-Gen. Tran Thanh Phong.

"The biggest pusher is said to be Lt.-Gen. Dang Van Quang," Brady reported, adding that Quang was relieved of his command for corruption several years ago but "today Quang is Thieu's closest adviser" and has "filled Thieu's campaign chest."

Representative Robert H. Steele (Rep. Conn.), told a House of Representatives subcommittee in Washington last week that Maj.-Gen. Ngo Dzu, a military commander, was a major trafficker in narcotics.

But Brady said that "according to extremely reliable sources," Dzu "is being framed by others higher up who are involved in drugs." Brady said Vietnamese and American officials have the evidence.

Pledge to Taiwan Removed From Pact

MANILA (AP) — Nine traditionally anti-Communist Asian governments ended a three-day conference today with an agreement to give close study to events in Communist China.

A joint communique omitted a paragraph from the first draft that would have pledged continuing support for the Nationalist Chinese regime's claim to be the only legitimate government of the Chinese people.

Most of the delegates to the sixth ministerial conference of the Asia and Pacific Council also welcomed United States President Nixon's announcement that he is going to Peking.

Members of council are Australia, Nationalist China, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, Philippines, Thailand and South Vietnam.

The other ministers overrode protests of the Nationalist Chinese foreign minister, Chow Shu-kai, who warned that the Nixon trip could be a Peking trick and "a result of the psychological warfare of Communist China." Chow's government later filed an official protest with Washington.

Chow had tried earlier to convince the conference that dealing with the mainland regime is futule.
